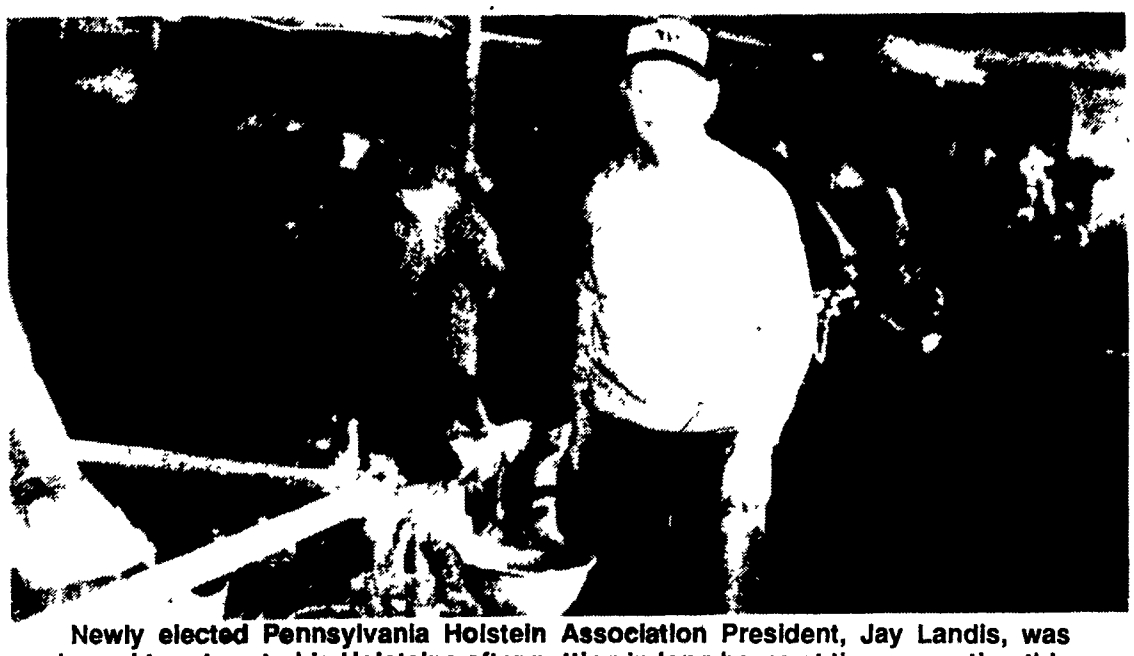
VOL. 33 No. 16 | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, February 27, 1988 | Five Sections | $8.50 Per Year



Newly elected Pennsylvania Holstein Association President, Jay Landis, was pleased to return to his Holsteins after putting in long hours at the convention this week.

Landis Elected As PHA President

BY PAT PURCELL

LANCASTER — The high level of cooperation from all eight counties that pulled together to successfully create the southcentral Pennsylvania Holstein Convention, is the same level of cooperation newly elected PHA President Jay Landis believes the association needs to meet the challenges that PHA will face in the next two years.

"We came through the south-central convention very well. Under Art (Baxter) we have seen all the counties pull together from the whole state, and I believe that

PA Holstein Association Executives Call 1987 The 'Gold Medal Year'

BY PAT PURCELL

LANCASTER — 1987 was an Olympic Gold Medal Year for the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, according to treasurer, Walter B. Wurster and executive secretary Bill Nichol.

Although the net income was down from $65,801 in 1986 to $57,693 in 1987 fiscal year, there were many positive developments throughout the year. In specific areas the consignment sales were down from the budget, but so were the expenses and the profit was close to budget figures. However, domestic sales was a bright spot in 1987. Domestic sales added up to $420,859 with expenses at $378,322. Profit of $42,537 was nearly three times the 1986 profit figure and more than doubled what was budgeted.

"Domestic sales have been very good this year and look good for 1988. We enjoyed a substantial increase over budget," said Wurster. Hard to believe perhaps, but the export sales showed a gross profit of $291,229, while $110,000 was budgeted.

"Export sales were a high money maker, but it did not appear to be so around this time last year," said Nichol. "The profit from exports to Brazil was $90,000-$100,000 but it was a

Maryland Holstein Convention Report

BY SUE CROW — Maryland Correspondent

The 24th Annual Convention of the Maryland Holstein-Friesian Assn., Inc., was held February 18-19, 1988 at the Sheraton Inn, Frederick, with the Frederick County Holstein breeders as the hosts.

President Joseph Schwartzbeck opened the meeting stating that the Association was in very good financial position. The new membership fees and the well supported Convention Sale of this year and last year brought the Association out of the red. The low interest rates and the lower membership each year has kept the profit low. The income from the membership has always been spent and the area which demands the most money is the Juniors. This is however vital to the future and must always be recognized and supported.

The Junior Association is celebrating their first anniversary this year at the Convention. The new slate of officers are: Shane Schwartzbeck-President, Matt Iager-Vice President, Jack Kahler-Treasurer, Jenell Reinhart-Secretary, Donna Johnson-Reporter. Chairman of the Junior Committee, Donna Myres, was recently appointed to the National Holstein Junior Advisory Board.

Committee reports and Awards followed. The Production Awards were accompanied by slides of the farm operation and the cows. The following is the list of winners in each category.

Rotate Tops Sale At $9,900

The 1988 Maryland Convention Holstein Sale held in Frederick, saw some 62 outstanding registered Holsteins paraded under the chandeliers in the Grand Ballroom of Sheraton Inn. Twenty-five were out of Excellent Dams with the sale averaging $2,740.

Peticote Coldsprings Sabo-et was the sale topper at $9,900 consigned by Marlin Hoff. This Arlinda Rotate heifer is out of Pen-Col Jetson Desire-et, a VG Browncroft Jetson daughter. Her index stands at Ci +64P +78F +2490M CI$ +238 +264 CTPI +995. As a two-year-old her top record was 22,836m 3.7% and 854f. Desire has two full sisters who have records of 25,923m 991f and 28,769m 1092f both at two years of age. She also has two maternal sisters who have records of 27,104m 1141f, 24,300m 932f, 22,003m 841f. Three of these sis-

PA Holstein Hall Of Fame Winners Named At Banquet

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LANCASTER — A highlight of the 75th Anniversary Banquet for the Pennsylvania Holstein Association Wednesday evening was the announcement of two long time holstein breeders as members of the 1988 Hall of Fame. They are Albert W. Smith and Howard B. Weiss.

Smith and his wife Mary started farming on his Susquehanna County Farm in 1936 following his graduation from Penn State in Dairy Husbandry.

Albert's herd consisted of around 150 Registered Holsteins, 99% home-bred. He won the Progressive Breeder Award 12 conse-

FARM BUREAU ACRES

FUTURES MARKET TRENDS GRAIN AND LIVESTOCK

This market information provided by ACRES ACRES is a copyrighted market information service developed by the American Farm Bureau and available to Pennsylvania farmers on a daily basis through Pennsylvania Farmers' Association Farm Management Services For additional market comments and trading service contact PFA Commodity Futures Service (717) 761 2740

Acres Corn Update: Corn futures settled higher from 3/4 to 2-1/2 cents this afternoon with buying attributed to possible Soviet purchases 350,000 M1 was sold to the USSR according to the announcement after the close
Country movement remains light to moderate and PIK certificate activity picked up this morning with bids 1/4% higher. March futures stayed in the $1 98 area most of the day with a low of $1 97-3/4 and a settlement of $1 99.

Acres Soybean Update: Soybeans futures settled higher and in the mid-range of today's activity, with gains posted of 1 to 3-3/4 cents in the old crop and unchanged to 1/2 weaker in the deferreds Prices plunged in the last few minutes of trade but quickly recovered on strong professional buying Confirmed export business with Venezuela and Iraq boosted soymeal prices along with stronger high protein basis levels The upside potential for this market will be dictated by South American weather forecasts, but strong export demand has provided support for the March, even with first notice day on Monday March closed at $6 24-3/4, up 3-3/4 after trading in a range of $6 19 to $6 26

Acres Wheat Update: Wheat futures settled from 1/2 to 3 cents higher with March staging a dramatic recovery from a low of $3 09 posted midmorning. Strength late in the session was attributed to export whispers of interest from India. Early morning weakness was in response to increases in deliverable supplies as commission houses continued their long liquidations March is still technically weak with first notice day coming up on Monday and could come under more stress this week Today's close at $3 17 was down from the high of $3 19 posted shortly before the closing bell

Acres Cattle Update: Cattle futures closed higher this afternoon supported by short covering buying based on ideas of tight fed supplies A higher opening was attributed to higher cut-out values and ideas that losses were overdone yesterday. Front month feeder weakness was in response to lower trending cash prices April live cattle closed up 43 points at $ 72 20 after touching a low of $ 71 70
ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK cash -steady futures-steady to higher

Acres Hog Update: Hog futures settled mixed today with strength in the April option attributed to bull spreading of April/July Further gains were pared by weakercash prices and higher than expected receipts Bellies ended the session mixed as ideas that oversold conditions were near encouraged some buying, as well as ideas of some support in in the market because of its failure to settle limit down yesterday.
ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK cash - steady to lower futures - mixed

Alfalfa's Triple Crown.

Emerald. Maxim. Funk's G-2852. These hardy alfalfas from Hoffman will place you in the winner's circle with improved yields, exceptional stand longevity, and broad-based disease protection

Emerald s the yield leader from start-to-finish It has consistently bested Hoffman trials, while producing 5½ percent better than average yields in New York and Pennsylvania state trials

Maxim s a sure bet for exceptional stand longevity And its two-year production average of 9 6 tons/acre will give you front-running yields

Funk's G-2852 tops the field with some of the best disease resistance available Backed by years of research, this new-comer has shown annual yield advantages of ½ ton/acre

When you're looking for a winning alfalfa yield, call your local Hoffman seed representative Or call Hoffman Seeds direct for more information about Alfalfa s Triple Crown

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

FEB. 29-MARCH 6, 1988

On leap year day women ask away.

Average length of days for the week 11 hours, 19 minutes Republic of Texas founded by 59 Mexicans March 2, 1836 Full moon March 3 (Thurs.) Lincoln said With malice toward none with charity for all, with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right, March 4, 1865 Davey Crockett killed at the Alamo March 6 1836 Thomas Gorson ate 22 hamburgers and two quarts of ice cream in 25 minutes March 6, 1938 in Chicago Pens may blot but they cannot blush

Ask the Old Farmer: How do you get rid of silver fish? L B B Branford CT

Sprinkle borax powder along the baseboards keeping children and pets away from it If this isn't possible then wipe the area where the silverfish are found with a cloth soaked in turpentine

OPINION

It's FFA Week and more than 416,000 FFA members in 8,000 chapters have promoted FFA, high school agriculture, and the Food and Fiber Industry. Chapters across the U.S., in the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands planned events and activities to create awareness of and support for high school agriculture and FFA. This year's theme is "FFA-- Agriculture's New Spirit." High school agriculture classes stress hands-on experience in many diverse areas of agriculture. FFA activities provide leadership development, career training, and award incentives for these young people. Locally FFA chapters did such things as make announcements on the school P.A. system, fill display cases, give out pens and pencils, dress up in FFA jackets, give out placemats to restaurants, and make radio spots.

Kelli Evans, national FFA president from Hayes Center, Neb., said FFA Week is the chance for members and communities to recognize achievements and activities available through FFA and high school agriculture.

"We're proud of this commitment to young people and agriculture. As FFA members, and students in agriculture classes, we are receiving the business, science and leadership skills we need to prepare for the diverse and challenging careers in agriculture," Evans said.

Each year FFA Week is held during the week of George Washington's birthday (traditional) to recognize his leadership and commitment to American agriculture. The National FFA Center is located on part of Washington's original Mt. Vernon estate near Alexandria, Va.

FFA students promoting agriculture among their peers in high school must be one of the most effective agriculture communications programs in the nation. For this we thank you, FFA members.

FARM FORUM OUR READERS WRITE

Editor,

An advertisement recently appearing in your paper troubles me. I'm referring to the full-page ad run by Farmland Dairies- "Due to Continued Expansion (They are)... Looking For Your Milk."

Is it indeed due to expansion, or are they feeling the pressures of an RCMA milk diversion? I was surprised to see this advertisement in a paper printed for farmers. Why not give RCMA a chance?

If some of you dairymen haven't signed up with RCMA because you don't need more money, by all means sign anyway and send the checks to me. RCMA is responsi-

NOW IS THE TIME

By Jay Irwin
Lancaster County Agriculture Agent

To Apply Manure

This is the season of the year that a lot of manure is applied in preparation for corn planting. We need to be concerned with proper application of liquid or solid manure in such a way as to minimize odors and avoid pollution complaints.

Application should be made from mid-morning to mid-afternoon to allow maximum odor dispersion and manure drying before the calm, nighttime hours when neighbors are home from work. Fields for disposal should be downwind, rather than upwind from neighbors, if possible.

Whenever possible the manure should be plowed under or disked into the soil as soon as possible after spreading. This practice not only minimizes odors but also preserves nutrients and reduces potential for surface run-off that causes water contamination.

To Attend Poultry Progress Day

The six annual Poultry Progress Day will be held on Thursday, March 3, in the auditorium at the Farm and Home Center, Lancaster. The program will start at 9:00 a.m. in the morning and end at 3:00 p.m. Lunch will be available. An excellent and timely program has been developed by the Poultry Association Education Committee. Speakers will deal with the important areas of Poultry Health - 1988 and Beyond; New Pesticide Regulations; Egg Nutrition and Cholesterol, The Whole Story; Salmonella and the Consumer; Nutrient Management and more. We are pleased to have nationally recognized speakers like Dr. Hugh Johnson, Director, Poultry Department, American Farm Bureau Federation; Cathy McCharen, Vice-President, Egg Nutrition Center, Washington, D.C.; and Dr. David Kradel, Avian Veterinarian at Penn State University.

We encourage poultry producers and people interested in the poultry industry to attend this important meeting.

To Mend Pasture Fences

Pastures can provide cattle a lot of good, nutritious forage, and it's a place for them to get fresh air, exercise and sunlight. Before too long, we will be turning our cattle out to pasture, but let's not turn them out too soon. It's best to let the sod develop and the ground firm up. Spend the time now to fix fences and pick up trash and debris before the grass gets too tall and before you're tied down with spring field work.

It might also be helpful to section off the pasture in order to make best use of the grass. For example, wet areas and flat areas may be fenced off from other areas. This will enable you to keep cows out of wet areas until the ground firms up, and could help prevent the development of foot problems. During the early spring flush of pasture growth, you could keep cattle out of the flat area; save it for hay and feed it to cows later in the summer.

To Use Heat Lamps Safely

A portable heat lamp is a useful item around the home and farm during cold weather. The lamp's infra-red rays can be used to keep pigs from chilling, relax aching muscles, or warm crankcases of tractors and automobiles so they'll start easier. The heat lamp can also be used in brooders for small pigs or lambs, or baby chicks or at your workbench to give you quick heat.

But, I'd like to add a word of caution. A heat lamp can be dangerous because the lamp's rays can easily burn you, the same as a sunburn.

Also, if you are using the lamp continuously for a long period, use a porcelain socket. Most plastic sockets will not be able to stand the heat. Another thing... in a brooding area, use a wire or chain to support the lamp. Don't hang it by its cord; the cord was designed to carry the current and not the weight. Remember, a heat lamp can come in handy around the farm or home in cold weather. But handle it with care.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHO IS #1?

February 28, 1988

Background Scripture:
Matthew 20: 17-28.
Devotional Reading:
John 13: 12-17.

We live in a world where being "number one" is extremely important. That is how success is measured. As we climb the ladder of our vocation or avocation, we become more successful — at least as society reckons it. As Jesus reckons it, however, success may have nothing at all to do with society's measurements. As in almost everything else, the teachings of Jesus about being "number one" are radically different from what the world teaches us.

Once again, we Christians are somewhat schizoid on this score. We embrace Jesus' teachings on this matter, but we generally run our churches by the world's standards. Who is successful in the church? The clergyman who pastors the largest church or becomes bishop. The layman who wields the most influence and holds the highest positions of lay power.

I have no aspirations of ever being a bishop. Nevertheless, if tomorrow I were informed that I had just been elected bishop, I would certainly feel successful beyond my greatest expectations. The same would be true if I were offered "the largest pulpit in Methodism." That would be success, wouldn't it?

LORDING IT OVER

That standard of success has been with us a long time. It was this standard that led the mother of James and John of Zebedee to ask Jesus, "Command that these two sons of mine may sit, one at your right hand and one at your left, in your kingdom" (Matthew 20:21). What mother wouldn't want that for her sons? Jesus recognized this human desire: "You know that the rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, and their great men exercise authority over them." Having the power to "lord it over" someone else has always been the world's measure of success.

Until Jesus came, saying: "It shall not be so among you; but whoever would be great among you must be your servant, and whosoever would be first among you must be your slaves; even as the Son of man came not to be served but to serve..." (20:26-28). Once again, Jesus recognizes the human desire to be great or first. He does not criticize James, John and their mother for wanting to be first in the kingdom of heaven next to Jesus. What he does do, however, is to give them a radically different way of being the greatest: by being a servant to others.

Once again, Jesus is looking to the long run, instead of the short run. In the short run, "lording it over" other seems to be the way to success. But, in the long run, that doesn't work or count for real success. What works in the long run is the willingness to serve, rather than to be served. Only in serving others can we truly be "number one."

WILLING TO SERVE

Writing on this is a very uncomfortable experience for me, for I know how likely I am to judge success, not by the standards of Jesus, but by those of the secular world. I believe with all my mind that a Christian must be willing to serve others as Christ did, but I don't very often live by those beliefs. If someone came to me today, not to tell me that I had been elected bishop, but to inform me that God had chosen for me the servant's role in a specific situation, could I feel that same degree of satisfaction? Could I view this as a superior means to becoming "number one."

Could you?

30 YEARS AGO
THIS WEEK

- A week of "just the right kind of weather" removed much of the record snowfall during the past week without danger of flood or much damage to crops.

Lancaster Countians were still nervous last week with the Weather Bureau holding out a promise of more snow over the weekend. Fortunately the promise failed to materialize.

- Value of all livestock inventoried on Pennsylvania farms as of Jan. 1 showed an increase of more than $34 million last year, the State Department of Agriculture announced today.

- Farmers of the United States can look forward to an ideal set-up for the 16th annual National Plowing Contest and Conservation Exposition to be held at Hershey, next Aug. 21-22, according to the man who originated the national farm event 16 years ago.

- Sugar preserved dairy cream that keeps well, unrefrigerated, just as do sweetened condensed and evaporated milk, is a promising new product of dairy research.

The manufacturing process is a simple one that any well-equipped dairy plant can carry out. It produces a sweetened cream product containing 40 percent butterfat, additional nonfat milk solids, and sugar in sufficient concentration to preserve it at room temperature for at least six months. Further storage tests are underway.

- The State Department of Agriculture Monday cleared the way for spraying 100,000 acres of farm and forest lands to eradicate gypsy moth caterpillar next May in seven Northeastern Pennsylvania Counties.

Retail Marketers Tour York

YORK — Four York County retail agriculture markets welcomed visitors from across the region, as hosts for the annual Mid-Atlantic Marketing Association's tour.

The York tour was an opener for the marketers' annual conference, hosted at Willow Valley, south of Lancaster, February 16-18.

Some 250 of the market retailers enjoyed stops at downtown York Central Market, now celebrating it's 100th year, Miller's Plant Farm south of York, Brown's Retail Market and Orchard Bake Shop at Loganville, and The Farmer's Daughter produce, plant and crafts market at Shrewsbury.

Participants in the Marketing Association conference represented retail farm markets in Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, New York, New England and Ohio.

Lancaster County Dairy Days Scheduled

LANCASTER — Lancaster County Dairy Days will be held 10:00 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. March 1 and March 8 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center. A variety of commercial exhibits will be on display throughout each day, starting at 9:00 a.m. Each day will feature a different program. Lunch tickets may be purchased at the door before 11:00 a.m.

Topics for the first day include: "Raising Growthy Heifers- Why and How?", "Are New, Emerging Health Problems a Threat to Your Herd?", "Teat Dipping, Washing, Sanitizing and Drying Udders- What Works and What Doesn't?", "Engineering Dairy Systems to Reduce Heat Stress", "Herd Health Check List - What do Do and When", and "Vacuum Fluctuations Inside and Outside the Teat - Causes and Significance."

First day speakers are: Penn State Dairy Specialist, Arlyn Heinrichs; Cornell Dairy Specialist, David Galton; Penn State Extension Veterinarian, Lawrence Hutchinson; and Penn State Agricultural Engineer, Dennis Buffington.

Before coming to Penn State, Dr. Buffington worked in Florida and helped to design systems for reducing heat stress in cattle.

Dr. Galton and his colleagues did compare the effectiveness of various udder preparation and teat dipping techniques on udder infections and milk quality. They also studied the effect of various milking techniques and milking failures (ex. inflation slips) on vacuum levels inside and outside of the teat.

The second day (March 8) features the following topics: "What Affect Do Growing Conditions Have on Forage Quality?", "Recent Research and Developments in Milking Equipment", "Surviving and Thriving in the Dairy Business", "Cost Effectiveness of Additives, Preservatives, and Alternative Sources of Protein", "Strategies for Keeping Cows Milking and Testing Well", and "Boosting Milk Checks by Lowering SCC, PI and SPC's."

Speakers for the second day are: F.M. Brown's Nutritionist, Tom Kichura; Penn State Dairy Specialist, Stephen Spencer and Joseph Hlubik; and Farmer Panelists, John Brubaker, Gordon Hoover, Stephen Hershey and Donald Risser.

Growing conditions this past summer varied considerably from area to area, and on some farms, from field to field. The varied conditions had an effect on forage quality, which was reflected in milk production. Not all forage tests reflected these changes. Tom Kichura will discuss some of these changes and the things dairymen can do to minimize their effort on the herd.

Perhaps you have been putting off the purchase of a new milking system or updating your present system, waiting for more predictable future milk markets or for further refinements of some new ideas in milking equipment. Or, you might be looking for ways to improve labor efficiency or milk quality, with or without the aid of new equipment, so you can become more efficient or so you can qualify for quality premiums on milk. If so, you might be interested in Steve Spencer's presentations on these topics.

Feed costs and feed quality are always a concern of serious dairymen. Can you reduce your feed costs by treating corn silage with anhydrous ammonia, or by using other sources of NPN? How much NPN do cows need, and how much is too much -- and under what conditions? How much can you afford to spend on preservatives and additives? When are preservatives needed and what kinds work best under which conditions? Joe Hlubik will be addressing many of these concerns.

During the tighter farm economy of recent years, many dairy farm families find themselves working harder and enjoying life less. The four young farmer panelists will focus on what it takes to get started in dairying today. Learn about their concerns for today and for the future, the goals they set for the farm business and for their family, and hear about some of the management concepts they put into practice.

This two-day event (March 1 and March 8) is conducted by the Penn State Extension Service of Lancaster County which is an affirmative action, equal opportunity educational institution. Anyone interested in dairying is invited to attend.

Wayne County Dairy Day

Committees for the 1988 Wayne County Dairy Day to be held Thursday, March 10, 9:30 a.m. - 3:15 p.m. at the Wayne County Veteran's Memorial Armory have been announced by Wayne County Extension Service personnel.

Arthur Davis and Debra Bryant will be serving as program co-chairpersons. Additional committees are as follows: Lunch-William Werner, Clark Williams, Ed DeVrieze, Rick Dulay, Wayne Olver and Robert Nearing; Space assignment- Peter Wilken and George Swingle Jr.; Sound system- Clark Williams; Registration-Patricia Mohn and Ted Kostige; Seating-John Pawloski, John Mazzga, Robert Schmidt, Joseph Krompasky, Joseph Schweighofer, Karl Eisenhauer and Fred Nordenhold; Dairy Princess-Daisy Dix and Kathryn Dix; Door awards- John Pawloski and Ronald Davis; Milk, Ice Cream and Cheese Bars- John Mazzga, Art Noble, Ellis Dix, Andy Dean, David Hudy, Gid Theis, and Dairy Princess representatives. Clean up-Clark Williams, chairman.

The program at Dairy Day will include educational presentations, commercial exhibits, dairy product bars, door awards, lunch, and a report from a Dairy Princess representative.

Agri-business firms and farm organizations interested in participating in Dairy Day and having an exhibit should contact the Wayne County Extension Service at 717-253-5970 ext. 114 very soon.

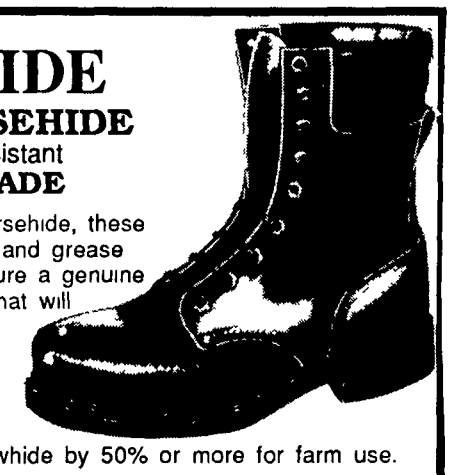
HORSEHIDE
GENUINE HORSEHIDE
Barnyard Acid Resistant
AMERICAN MADE



Made of tough, long wearing horsehide, these shoes stand manure, silage, oil and grease better than cowhide. Shoes feature a genuine Goodyear welt, nitro cork sole that will not track, steel shank, padded collar, cushion insole and arch support. Ideal for barn use. Sizes 7-13 including ½ sizes. 1st quality. Our experience shows that horsehide outlasts good cowhide by 50% or more for farm use.

shows in the strength of our organization," said Landis.

Jay and his wife Pat farm 120 acres south of Millersville, with their son Gregg. They milk 42 Holsteins and according to Pat, Jay is still an active farmer.

"He still has to get up every morning and do the milking and milks in the evening. He is a working farmer," said Pat.

Landis will follow Art Baxter as president for a two-year term. He praised the management and the executive committee for their good work, but said he believes the strength of the PHA comes from the members across the state.

"Our strength comes from the grass roots: it is all the members who continue to register their cattle and to take part in the county clubs and events. This is where our leaders come from. I encourage more members to get involved in field days and local clubs, to become a part of what's going on and support the programs."

While encouraging more members to get involved at all levels, Landis notes there are some items on the PHA agenda to be addressed.

"PHA wants better milk prices and better sales prices for cattle. We have endorsed RCMA and would like to see farmers continue with RCMA to keep milk prices at a level that farmers will be satisfied with. The RCMA can build a good milk market that will in turn strengthen milk prices," stated Landis.

Also on the agenda...

The National Identification Program Proposal is one of the most pertinent items before the Pennsylvania association.

"I encourage everyone to become familiar with the proposal; read it in the January issue of 'Profiles'. And anyone who has input into that, I ask them to attend the Winter Forum. I do not think as an organization we can look at certain issues and not discuss them," explained Landis.

The Winter Forum is a national level meeting to be held at State College on March 14 and 15.

In long range planning, Landis feels the time is now to get the ball rolling on a regional milk pricing program.

"I know it's far away, but somebody's got to make that first move," said Landis. "PHA can be the leaders, because in spite of the buyout program, milk production in several areas of the country is back up to the same level."

With the PHA Convention a pleasant memory, members are looking forward to the spring events. The Spring Show will be held March 28 in Harrisburg at the farm show arena, and it is a statewide show.

Perhaps one of the most exciting events will be the Supreme Creations Calf Sale and the Pennsylvania Showcase for Bred Heifers being held April 8 and 9. For 1988 the sale site has been changed from Harrisburg to State College in the new ag arena.

Ed Doeberiener, Holstein breeder from Jamestown, has selected the animals this year and from all his reports there will be a lot of excellent, pedigreed stock. Supreme Creations will feature 165 calves, and the Pennsylvania Showcase will feature bred heifers.

Jay and Pat Landis, at home, organize notes from the convention and begin planning the next year for PHA.

Franklin County Farmer Vies For Seat As Representative

BY BONNIE BRECHBILL
Franklin Co. Correspondent

ST. THOMAS — A Franklin County farmer has declared his candidacy for a seat in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives. C. Eugene Wingert, 52, operates a 500-acre hog and beef farm in St. Thomas. A lifelong county resident, Wingert served as regional director for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture for eight years during the Thornburgh administration. He also is a past director of the Agriculture Department's Bureau of Planning and Research, and past president of the Southcentral Pennsylvania Pork Producer's Association. He currently serves on the Executive Committee of the National Pork Producer's Council Board of Directors.

The 90th District House seat for which Wingert, a Republican, is running is currently held by State Representative Terry Punt, R-Waynesboro. Representative Punt is running for the 33rd Senate District seat held by Senator William Moore, R-New Bloomfield, who is retiring at the end of the year. The 90th district includes Washington, Quincy, Antrim, Montgomery, Peters, St. Thomas and Warren townships and the boroughs of Mont Alto, Waynesboro, Greencastle, and Mercersburg in Franklin County. Three rural townships in Fulton County — Thompson, Belfast, and Ayr — are also included in the district.

C. Eugene Wingert

Issues of concern to Wingert are farmland preservation, tort reform and liability insurance. "We're suing everybody for everything today," he said.

One of Wingert's major concerns is farm-city relationships. "It's important that we have a legislator there who understands agri-culture and understands the urban side. How agriculture gets along with their urban friends will be very important," he said.

After serving for eight years under the Thornburgh administration, Wingert feels he has insight into the workings of state government. He has worked with all eight south central Pennsylvania counties. "I have a good handle on agriculture, and I have administrative experience," he stated.

The candidate is currently in the process of opening campaign headquarters in Waynesboro. "Support has been tremendous, and there have been lots of volunteers," Wingert said, "especially from rural areas." Gerald Reichard, a vo-ag teacher from Waynesboro, is campaign manager. Wingert plans to contact all the registered voters in the district—approximately 50,000-- through mailings, meetings, receptions and door-to-door visitations.

Wingert, who is campaigning full time, is finding the campaign challenging. "It's interesting. You have to like people," he said.

Wingert will face three other Republicans in the April 26 primary. A Democrat is also seeking the seat.

Wingert and his wife, Betty, have three grown children, Carol, Teresa and Jere. Jere and a hired man are operating the family farm while Wingert campaigns.

Atlantic Juniata Local To Meet

Successful Dairymen Must Love Cows

BY
EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LANCASTER — Based on his veterinary experiences working with dairymen, Dr. John McCormack, University of Georgia, told the State Holstein Breeders meeting Wednesday morning that if he were lending money to a dairyman, he would want to know that he loved cows. According to McCormack, persons that are afraid of manure don't love cows. "You need to be more comfortable in the dairy barn than in this ball room," McCormack said.

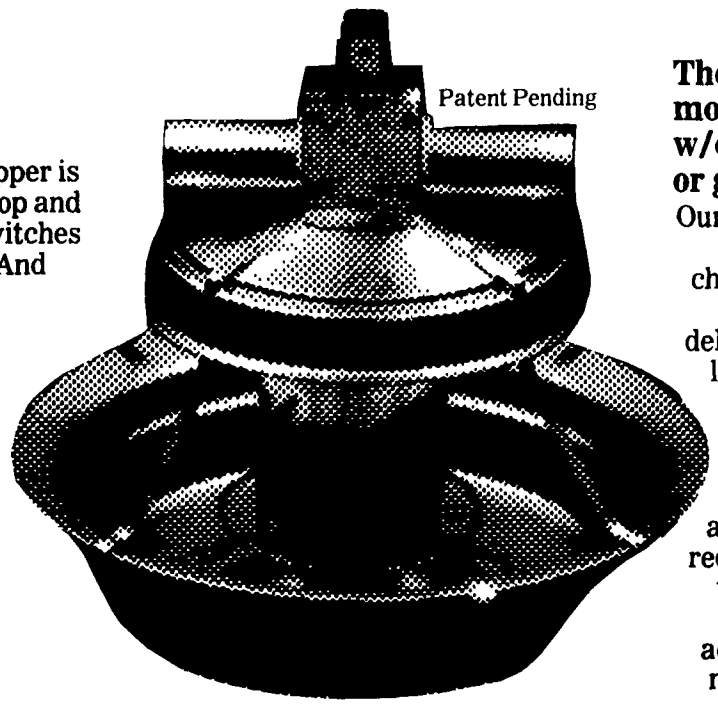
In addition, McCormack urged dairymen to increase their knowledge of the reproductive process, develop proper milking techniques to control mastitis, use DHIA reports more, and raise calves better. "Be committed to preventive medicine," McCormack said. "Veterinarians can do more for you now than in the past. In addition, keep up with the industry by reading and going to meetings," McCormack said. Much of McCormack's talk entitled "Watch For The Cloud Of Dust" centered around humorous stories from his experience and from his book by the same title.

I'M NOT LION...

THE CLASSIFIED LIVESTOCK SECTION HAS BEASTLY SELECTIONS!

More gobble for less scratch.

Beacon's Automatic Turkey Feeding Systems.



Patent Pending

The Hopper - fewer refills, easier maintenance.
Our 150 lb. capacity Hopper is available with safety stop and unimax level control switches for accurate feed flow. And the Hopper slides completely off its base so the entire system can be raised to its maximum height for easy clean-out of the house.
In place of the crimped auger tube, we supply a single roll tube that's so durable we guarantee both auger and tube for 12 years.

The Feeding Stations protect your birds while serving more of them
The exclusive nylon collar on our feeding stations allows each station to rotate completely around the tube while preventing metal to metal friction and wear. This free-swinging feature protects birds from bruising and makes cleanout of the house a snap. Just turn the stations upside-down and empty. For maintenance, the stations release in minutes by removing two bolts. There's no need to dismantle the auger tube.

And there's more. Our feeding pans - the largest on the market - are 20 inches in diameter with a feed saving ring to reach more birds with less equipment.

The Drive Units - more efficient power w/choice of belts or gears
Our drive units come with a 1/3 HP motor and your choice of belts or gears. At 425 RPM, our belt drive delivers a remarkable 1200 lb./hr. - 33 percent faster than the conventional gear method. Both belt and gear units have identical features, such as dual hanging cables to reduce torque and balance the system, and an automatic on/off switch for accurate feed control and maintenance-free operation. Our drive units, as well as hopper, have double race bearings for longer life. A lot longer.

These are just some of the ways Beacon Feeding Systems can improve the efficiency of your entire operation.

For the complete story on how to improve your feed conversion, reduce your maintenance cost and bird mortality, contact Farmer Boy Ag for a free brochure. And find out how more turkeys can gobble for a lot less scratch.

cutive years. He claimed many All-Pennsylvania awards during his show career. Albert also bred and developed 17 Excellent cows and a great number of Very Good cows.

Albert is a 44 year member of the State and National Holstein Associations. He served 12 years as a State Board member from Susquehanna County. He also served three years as an Executive Committee member from the Northeast District. He served as State Sale Chairman for three years and was also on the State Show Committee. He was President of the Susquehanna County Club during which time the membership rose from 32 to 143 members.

Albert helped to establish the first 4-H Dairy Club in Susquehanna County. He was recognized as an outstanding judge and he judged many county fairs and 4-H shows. He still enjoys working with young breeders and 4-H members just getting started with Registered Holsteins.

Albert was elected 16 years as a delegate to the National Holstein Association. He was an original promoter and supporter of the Official Registry of Purebred Red and White and Off-Colored Holsteins into the National Herdbook.

After the dispersal of his herd, he worked as a Herd Analyst in the GEM program for the Holstein Association.

Howard and his wife Amanda took over his fathers farm in 1941. They raised two daughters and one son on the farm before completely dispersing the herd and farm equipment in 1967.

Following the dispersal, Howard was employed by Hanover Canning Company, York from 1967-1973. He then began his employment as Farm Superintendent for Pennsylvania Holstein Association. He remains employed on a part-time basis with the Association.

Howard has served the Pennsylvania Association in many leadership roles including serving on the Executive Committee, and State Board of Directors. He was also President and Treasurer of the Lebanon County Holstein Club. Howard also served as Chairman of both the State Sale Committee and State Show Committee. He served many years as the Treasurer of the Lebanon County DHIA and he was the driving force behind starting the Lebanon County Holstein Sale.

Howard's many achievements in the show ring are well known and recorded. Some highlights were breeding and developing two All-American animals. He was also the Premier Breeder and Premier Exhibitor at the State Holstein Show. He showed many Grand Champions and Junior Champions over the years. Howard was recognized as an outstanding cattle judge, having worked numerous shows and fairs during his younger years.

At the time of the herd dispersal, the Weissdale herd was one of the top herds on DHIA. His herd dispersal averaged $861, which was the second high average in Pennsylvania in 1967.

Howard has also had an active life in his community. He has served as a church trustee, 4-H Leader and Ag Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce. Howard has served continually on the Eastern Lebanon School Board since 1967 and on the Lebanon County Vo-Tech School Board since 1969. He served as President of Vo-Tech Board from 1969-1974.

Howard has engineered the development of the facilities of the PA Holstein Farm where he has served as Farm Superintendent since 1976. From 1973-1976, Howard assisted the Association with Livestock Exports using other facilities in the Harrisburg area. During Howard's 14 years he has been a prime contributor to the Associations development of the Export and Domestic Sales Program that reached the $5 million figure in 1987. In addition to his involvement with PA Holstein Association Sales, Howard has assisted numerous other exporters who rent the PA Holstein Farm, a U.S.D.A. Approved Export Facility that now has capacity for 800 bred heifers.

Ivanhoe Stained Glass Portrait Sells

This Ivanhoe Portrait sold for $4000 to help the Pennsylvania Holstein Junior Scholarship Fund. Making the purchase was Arthur Baxter for the state association. Contending bidder was Wayne Harpster. After the sale, Harry Roth made a matching donation from Atlantic Breeders. The Portrait will be on display at Atlantic where Ivanhoe made his contribution to the holstein breed.

ADADC Farmers Review Promotion Programs

SYRACUSE — The 28th Annual Meeting of the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council (ADADC) was held on February 17, 1988 at the Sheraton Inn in Liverpool, New York. Dairy producers representing New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania met in order to elect local officers and to review advertising and promotion programs implemented by ADADC.

Re-elected as president of the ADADC was Raymond Johnson, a dairy farmer from Schaghticoke, New York. Also, re-elected were Vice President Allen Ostrander, Second Vice President David Hardie and Secretary Fred Epler. Newly elected was George Haddad as treasurer.

"Reaching Regional Markets" was the theme of this meeting which highlighted a panel of four experts who discussed regionalization through county promotion, nutrition education, marketing and advertising.

Clyde E. Rutherford, president of Dairylea Cooperative Inc., was presented with the Service to Dairying Award at the evening banquet. This award is presented once a year to an individual or organization which has made a significant contribution to the dairy industry.

The ADADC is a dairy promotion organization representing 20,000 dairy producers from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Water Quality Workshop

Are you concerned about well contamination in agricultural areas?

Ephrata Adult Farmers Group is sponsoring an evening water quality workshop to discuss this growing problem on Tuesday, March 8th from 7:45 to 9:00 pm at the Ephrata High School Agriculture Department.

The program will feature Joe Makuch, Water Quality Specialist at Penn State University. Makuch will use a slide show, short videotape, and handouts to discuss groundwater quality problems and protection in Lancaster County.

Over half the wells in Lancaster County are polluted with nitrates. Nitrate pollution has been identified as among the causes for the decline of the Chesapeake Bay which receives half of its freshwater from the Susquehanna River Valley.

The Pennsylvania Chesapeake Bay Program is working with local agricultural groups to promote better nutrient management in the Susquehanna River Basin.

Economy Will Continue To Grow, Says Hamilton Bank Economist

BY LISA RISSER

LANCASTER — "The economy's moderate and reasonable growth of 1987 will contine this year," predicted Carol A. Leisenring, executive vice president and chief economist for CoreStates Financial Corp. "You can expect weakness this year, particularly in the first half of 1988 followed by a pickup in the second half."

Addressing nearly 350 people at an agricultural seminar sponsored by CoreState's Hamilton Bank, Leisenring is not sure how much of the current economic status is a result of the October 19 stock market crash, but "some of what's happening is a very direct reflection of the event. You can especially see this in the consumer section where there's been a slowdown in spending."

Other factors influencing the economy are the stabilization of the dollar, resolution of the trade deficit, and the questions of if, how, and when the budget deficit will be resolved and if it can be accomplished without wrecking the economy.

Leisenring predicted an inflation rate of 4.3 percent, which is almost the same as experienced in 1987. Her prediction is related to the decline in oil prices in recent months and the weakness in the economy. "Interest rates probably will be in a decline in the first half of the year and turn around and rise during the second half," she commented.

Several important trends emerged in 1987 that will be key influences on the economy, according to Leisenring. First, there was a substantial slow down in the rate of consumer spending. During 1985 and '86, the American consumer was the driving force of the economy, spending a lot of their income. Last year saw a dramatic slow down in spending throughout the year. "The decline in spending was happening long before October 19, but the crash reinforces the slow down," Leisenring stated. "You can expect consumer spending doldrums to continue in 1988."

Another trend Leisenring noted is the $45-billion improvement in the trade deficit. "Progress has been slow and will continue to be slow, but we expect it to be better," she said.

The presence of an export boom in this country is the third trend Leisenring mentioned. Total exports were up 11.5 percent last year over 1986 and agricultural exports increased 10.1 percent. "We can't blame the deficit on exports," she observed. "The problem is on the import side.

"To summarize the economy, my phrase is that we'll have a 'muddle through' kind of scenario for 1988."

The farmers and agribusinessmen gathered at the seminar also heard presentations by H. Louis Moore and Larry G. Jenkins, Penn State agricultural economists; David M. Kohl, Cornell University; Wilson D. McElhinny, chairman of Hamilton Banks; William R. Hartman, executive vice president of wholesale banking for Hamilton; and Joseph M. Del Tito, senior vice president and area executive officer for Hamilton.

Olympic Fans Get Fitness Message About Milk

This past week, with winter winds still howling relentlessly outside, many Americans staved off the cabin fever blues by watching excellence in athletic performance during the Olympic Games in Calgary. Cheered on by the crowd and millions of home viewers, the world's top amateur athletes gave it their all in heated competitions that were the culmination of years of training, practice and eating for peak performance. As television viewers in the Mid-Atlantic watched this inspirational event, they were reminded of the importance of milk in any fitness regimen.

In a 30-second television commercial produced by the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA), Helen Sjursen, a member of the 1948 U.S. Women's Olympic Gymnast Team, told Olympic viewing audiences how she continues to work out and keep her bones young by drinking milk. MAMMA originally created the Gymnast Milk commercial in 1985 when concerns about calcium and osteoporosis came to the forefront. MAMMA reworked the award winning commercials for placement during the 1988 Olympic games. The remade version of the commercial continues to position milk as "Fitness You Can Drink," and incorporates a new strategy that promotes the three types of milk... Whole, Low-fat, and Skim, and encourages consumers to choose the milk that's right for their lifestyle.

Olympic Basketball Coach John Thompson also endorsed milk as "Fitness You Can Drink" in another television commercial produced by MAMMA and placed during the Olympics. This commercial also promotes the concept that there is a milk that's right for anyone, either whole, lowfat or skim. These commercials were on air, WHTM, 19 times in Harrisburg during the two weeks from February 13-28. In Philadelphia 16 milk commercials ran on WPVI. In Washington, D.C. 14 spots ran on WJLA, and in Baltimore 10 spots ran on WJZ. MAMMA estimates it reached 11,200,000 Olympic fans in Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Lancaster and York an average of 2.86 times with its fitness message about milk.

York Holstein Barn Meeting

NEW CUMBERLAND — York County's Holstein Association has announced it's annual spring barn meeting will be held from 1:00-3:00 p.m. on Wednesday, March 3, at Beshore Farms.

Topic of discussion for the meeting is DHIA testing on a A.M.-P.M. program, using an official timer. Speakers on the use of the timer are Dean Amick, explaining "Timer Mechanics," Bob Damm on "Record Calculations, and East Berlin producer Ralph McGregor, detailing his two years of experience on the timer testing program.

Although sponsored by the Holstein club, the barn meeting is open to any dairymen and interested industry representatives.

ble for the extra checks I have been receiving. Of course, if we all united, these checks would be even larger.

Selling milk to Farmland is NOT helping the RCMA (and the farmers) cause.

Why then, I ask, are you inviting RCMA's foe to advertise in your paper? Will you be promoting margarine and cheese food next?

Sincerely,
Cara Kneser
Mt. Vision, N.Y.

Editor:

As a retired dairyman, I have long found LANCASTER FARMING to be a staunch friend of my industry. It was particularly gratifying to note the message, "Enjoy Milk-- Pennsylvania's Official Beverage" at the Farm Show. Of course, milk should also be the official beverage of The Garden State.

But, permit me to express my chagrin and disappointment at your acceptance of a full page ad (Page C48, January 30, 1988) from Farmland Dairies "looking for milk".

On the front page, February 6, it was reported that "Farmland has not paid RCMA $400,000 in over-order charges accumulated between September and November...and another estimated $250,000 for December and January milk for which charges have not yet been made."

The president of Farmland suggested that "farmers should continue to concentrate on quality and marketing considerations rather than what he called "price-fixing."

Farmers have always been told to concentrate on quality, but they rarely were paid to produce quality. However, when they attempted to market their products, i.e., get a fair price, they rarely were successful. Relatively few buyers; too many independent sellers.

Participants in RCMA must work together for the good of all. If all Northeast dairy farmers would market their total production through RCMA, where would Farmland go?

It is hoped that LANCASTER FARMING will demonstrate its friendship to dairymen by refusing to accept advertisements from those who seek to weaken their marketing position.

York Atlantic Breeders Coop Report Increased Sales

BY JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK — A positive financial picture and production recognition shared the spotlight at the District 6 Atlantic Breeders Cooperative Dairy Day, held February 18 at Wisehaven Hall. The luncheon and business session followed a morning dairy management program coordinated by the York Extension Service.

Increasing sales and a by-laws change facilitating expansion of membership area have combined to strengthen the Lancaster-based breeding cooperative. Quality of sires available and in use by membership continues to improve, according to reports given cooperative management and region director Paul King.

An election was held for a director from Region 6 to fill the seat being vacated by King, who recently left the dairy production business. Results of that election will be announced through the cooperative's newsletter.

Seven county high production herds, with at least two-thirds of the herd sired by Atlantic bulls, earned recognition certificates. Honored were Smyser's Richlawn Farms, 75 head with 23,931 milk, 835 fat, 96 percent Atlantic-sired; H.S. and R.E. Fetrow, 85 head, 22,484 milk, 811 fat, 64 percent; Paul King, 56 head, 20,561 milk 792 fat, 95 percent.

Also, Sinking Springs Farm, 67 head, 19,409 milk, 718 fat, 79 percent; Wayne B. Mummert, 84 head, 19,222 milk, 707 fat, 65 percent; B. Robert Charles, 45 head, 20,024 milk, 700 fat, 100 percent; Earl Fuhrman, 116 head, 19,024 milk, 649 fat, 71 percent; and Smokey Hollow Farm, 48 head, 19,095 milk, 620 fat, 77 percent.

Milk Promotion T-Shirt Warms Up Wrestler

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

MILLERSVILLE — Drinking milk comes naturally to most farm boys, and Tom Barley is no exception. He not only enjoys dinking lots of milk, he also does his part to promote nature's most perfect food to audiences of his peers.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Barley, Conestoga, Barley wears a milk promotion T-shirt for warming up before his wrestling matches as a part of Penn Manor High School's wrestling team. He said he began wearing the shirt last year, and it has become his "good luck shirt." So for every meet, it is his mother's challenge to be sure the favored T-shirt is clean and ready to wear.

The shirt is yellow, and on the back for all to see, it reads, "Milk. It's fitness you can drink."

Indeed, Barley is the perfect advertisement for the virtues of milk. A junior at Penn Manor, he has been wrestling since he was eight years old, made the varsity team as a freshman, and has been undefeated in regular season play so far this year. Last year he was undefeated in league play and also advanced to the district playoffs.

This weekend he will have sectional playoffs, and most likely will again go to districts which are being held next weekend in Shippensburg.

Barley began the season wrestling at 126, and is now wrestling at 119.

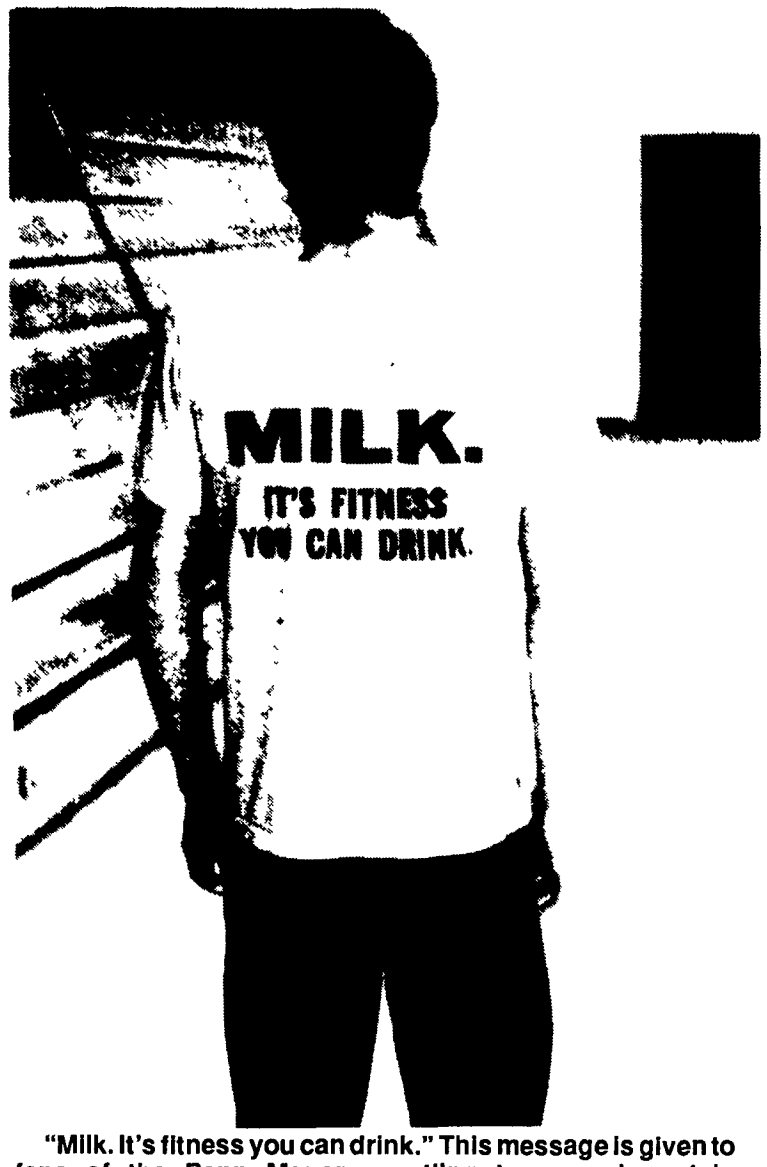
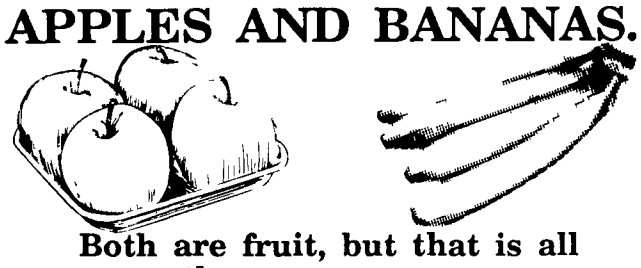
(Turn to Page A37)

Penn Manor wrestling coach Arlen Mummau gives some tips to Tom Barley prior to a match. Barley is sporting his milk promotion T-shirt, which he wears for warm ups prior to each match.



"Milk. It's fitness you can drink." This message is given to fans of the Penn Manor wrestling team each match, because Tom Barley always wears his milk T-shirt for warming up.

COMPARING LIMESTONES CAN BE LIKE COMPARING APPLES AND BANANAS.



Both are fruit, but that is all that you can say.

Limestone is a term for a geological deposit containing calcium, magnesium and a varying amount and number of impurities. Based upon its original natural formation, "Mother Nature" determined its purity, hardness, mineral levels and the availability of those minerals. Chemistry has determined if a given "limestone" deposit is used for making concrete, spread on roads, spread on farmers' fields, used in toothpaste, or fed to poultry and livestock. Limestones high in silica are adapted to the Construction industry; dolomitic (high magnesium) and "hard" calcitic (high calcium) limestones are used for soil neutralization and "soft" calcitic limestones are used in toothpastes, poultry and animal feed sources of calcium.

Only soft calcitic limestone is used in the production of YORK CALCIUM CHIPS - 38% Ca - 94+% acid solubility.

More and more egg producers are discovering that YORK CALCIUM CHIPS are their most economical source of large particle size calcium. Good shell quality and improved feed conversions are positive benefits, especially in low priced egg markets.

Ask your feed supplier to add YORK CALCIUM CHIPS to your formulas and be certain that you are using a least cost feed.

Forage Preservatives And The Farm Bill Are Topics At York Dairy Day

BY JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK — Dairy producers attending York's Dairy Day February 18 discussed a range of topics, during the morning management session sponsored by the Extension Service.

Speakers included Scott Hodgson, Beacon Feeds; Boyd Cook of Dairymen, Inc.; extension area farm management agent Roland Freund; Dr. Michael Radebaugh, Parkton, Maryland, Veterinarian; and Sue Beshore, Dairy of Distinction committee.

Speeding the dry-down time of mown hay reduces quality loss and lessens exposure time to rain, Hodgson reminded York dairy producers.

According to Hodgson, 50 acres of alfalfa takes an estimated 12 hours to cut and 12 hours to bale. Stabilizers and preservatives, which hasten the drying of thick hay stems, help reduce the quality-loss time between cutting and baling.

Drying agents used alone shorten drydown by about one day. Applying both drying agents and acid products to hay at cutting, may under ideal conditions, allow for mowing and baling the same day.

Cost estimate for such materials is about $6 per acre, plus an estimated $1800 to $2000 for the investment in application equipment.

"You must get the agent on the stems and not the leaves," Hodgson emphasized. "Apply it after the hay is run through the cutting part of the system."

Federal Support Programs

Boyd Cook, manager of Dairymen, Inc.'s Middle Atlantic Division, reviewed the recent history of the government milk support program, noting how supports became so high in the late '70's and early '80's that it was fairly profitable to produce milk. However, the government became the buyer of much of it.

With the 1985 Farm Bill came changes, including the 15-cent per hundredweight mandatory promotion checkoff and the whole herd buyout program. Commercial removal of milk is up ten percent, attributed to increased advertising and favorable retail prices. But reduced production following the buyout is now climbing so quickly that another 50-cent support price cut appears likely in January of 1989.

According to Cook, the Farm Bill legislation has a clause permitting another buyout program.

"That's not likely to happen during a major election year," is Cook's assessment.

On their checks for January milk, producers were assessed 2.5 cents per hundred toward self-funding of dairy program costs, under the mandated Gramm-Rudman budget deficit cutbacks. The assessment was an industry-sought alternative to deeper support price slashes, which would have cost dairymen considerably more.

Numerous self-help solutions to the milk surplus problem are being evaluated. Among those possibilities are the capping of federal dairy program costs at a pre-determined level, with over-production discouraged through price penalties.

A limited and regionally targeted herd reduction program, funded by producer assessment, is being studied by the Dairy Stabilization Committee and Producer Task Force of the National Milk Producers Federation. Under this proposal, herd reductions would be targeted to regions, based on their expected CCC sales.

Cook additionally reviewed the over-order pricing obtained for producers through the efforts of the Middle Atlantic Cooperative Milk Marketing Agency (MACMMA).

"Profit benchmarks", says management specialist Freund, are spot check figures which can be used to gauge a dairy business' financial efficiency. Guidelines range from very good to serious, and spotlight problem areas in production and cash flow.

Freund's benchmarks at the very good side of the capital scale included one hundred percent owner equity, per-cow facility investment of under $2,000 book value and equipment investment of $250. A 40-percent owner equity, showing no improvement, and per-cow investment of $3,000 for facility and $500 for equipment, point to potential serious financial problems.

Other measurements of profitable operations include $230 return over $100 feed cost, as opposed to $150 over $100 for problem ones. Milk to grain ratio of 4.5 is positive, with a ratio of 2 considered serious. Calving intervals of 12 months are ideal; a 15-month calving interval is of concern.

Mastitis costs the dairy industry an estimated $2 billion per year, or an average of $182 per cow, noted Dr. Michael Radebaugh. Somatic cell counts on DHIA sheets offer a guage of problem cows. Radebaugh recommends an ideal of 90 percent of the herd, and 100 percent of heifers, have SCC's in the low range. Other goals would be Standard Plate Counts of 5,000, and PI counts of 10,000.

"The goal of mastitis prevention is a clean, dry, non-traumatized teat," summed up the Parkton dairy-specialty vet.

Dairy of Distinction

Dairy families interested in applying for the Dairy of Distinction award have until April 15 to file their application, according to Sue Beshore, New Cumberland. A regional chairperson last year for the program, Beshore noted that the shipping of quality milk will be checked before a farm applicant is considered for the award this year. The handler or cooperative which markets the milk for each applicant will be contacted to determine if the quality of milk sent from the farm is acceptable.

Farms are primarily judged on their neat and attractive appearance, from the road, which the motoring public would see. Inspections are made from roadside only, with judges not entering the property or buildings.

Atlantic District 5 Locals To Meet

SOUTHAMPTON — The Witmer, West Lampeter and Millersville Locals of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative District 5 wil hold their annual dinner meeting March 3 at 12 p.m. at the Bird-In-Hand Family Restaurant.

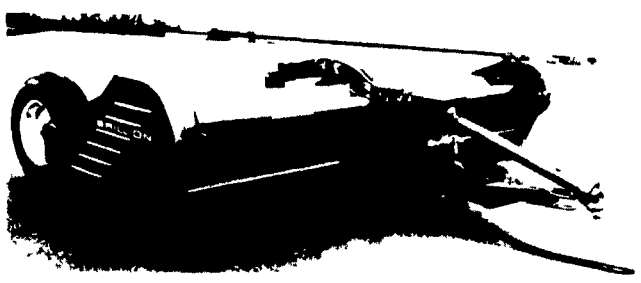
James S. Fraher, Atlantic's economist, will be the guest speaker. Fraher will report on cooperative business and dairy issues.

A business meeting will be conducted to elect officers, delegates and alternate delegates for the coming year. Current presidents are: Mervin Bare, Witmer Local; Roger Mills, West Lampeter Local; and Glenn Binkley, Millersville Local.

In addition, a 50-year membership plaque will be awarded to E. Curtis and Betty K. Funk of Lancaster.

FLAIL SHREDDERS

When you buy a Brillion Flail Shredder you avoid gear box failure and other problems that result in costly down time and repairs because Brillion has built-in quality and extra strength where it counts! Brillion Flail Shredders are available in 12 foot and 15 foot cutting widths.



The "heart" of the shredder is the heavy duty gear box, made of high strength cast iron, powered by a free telescoping, integrally shielded drive shaft. The unit is available in 540 or 1000 R.P.M.
The hood is 7-gauge steel with a 3/8" thick center plate and has a full width replaceable wear plate. The rotor assembly is dynamically balanced with the side-slicing knives attached to provide smooth, vibration-free operation. Wheel mountings are adjustable to fit various row spacings. These are only some of the features that keep the Brillion Flail Shredder going when others quit. Remember... you may be able to buy cheaper, but never better than a Brillion.

very long, hard pull. We did make money though."

The bottom line on the statement of income was gross profit at $484,937 up from 1986 figures of $335,252. The 1987 fiscal year budget was $282,000 for gross profit.

PHA export shipments from October 1, 1986 to September 30, 1987 were:

Saudi Arabia 76 bred heifers, Oct. 29.

Brazil 98 bred heifers, Dec. 13; 85 bred heifers Mar. 12; 85 bred heifers, Mar. 19; 83 bred heifers, May 2; 79 bred heifers and cows, May 22.

Morocco 10 bred heifers, Dec. 19; 32 bred heifers, May 27.

Japan 2 bulls, 1 bred heifer and 1 cow, Feb. 2; 6 bulls, June 23; 1 bull, Aug. 4.

Venezuela 400 bred heifers, April 22.

Canary Islands 476 bred heifers, June 24; 810 bred heifers, July 21.

Nichol credited the success of the 14 shipments to 2243 total head of Registered Holsteins to the good network of sales help in conducting the sales and the export business.

Nichol told members that the profit margin for the coming fiscal year on export sales may not be as high as previously experienced. "We (PHA) will be paying more for cattle and we must realize that we are in an international competition situation. But I feel sure we will have another very busy year," said Nichol.

Jeff Harding, Director of Sales, reported the fall sale in 1987 was stronger than in 1986. Harding told members that in an effort to get away from a regional sale image, the All-American sale may be moved to the Penn State campus to gain full state support. Harding reported the Holstein sales have had tremendous support from out of state buyers with one-third of the calves and heifers going out of state.

Sixteen counties reached membership goals in 1987 for PHA, according to Ken Raney. This is up considerably from previous years and Raney says he feels it is a good omen. Total membership is 5,478 for 1987. Raney encouraged members to spend time visiting non-members to tell them about the advantages of PHA membership and PHA programs. Raney also urged members to let the association directors know what is needed in their areas.

"We can't read minds. If you have an idea or need something, let us know," said Raney.

Elected to serve as President was Jay Landis and Wayne Harpster was elected to serve as vice-president. Harvey Stoltzfus was elected to the executive committee from the eastern district and George Cashell will serve on the committee for the south central district. Jay Landis, Tim Merwarth and Sam Minor was honored with plaques for their service to the association.

Tony Bennett Scheduled In Poultry Fundraiser

HARRISBURG, Pa. — The Pennsylvania Poultry Federation announced that internationally-known entertainer Tony Bennett is scheduled as the featured performer at the Federation's Annual Fund Raising Banquet, April 28, 1988, at the Hershey Convention Center, Hershey, Pa.

A recording artist with Columbia records, Bennett is widely recognized by his hallmark tune "I Left My Heart In San Francisco" and has been criss-crossing the world for nearly 35 years wowing thousands with his rich voice.

During his career, he has produced 89 albums. The most recent, "The Art Of Excellence," is simply that... excellent, with a blend of new songs by such notables as Michael Legrand, Fred Astaire and Sergio Mendes.

But Bennett will not be alone in Hershey. Anthony Dominick Benedetto, the highly celebrated artist, will join him.

Actually, both men are one and the same. Painting under his real name for the last 25 years, Bennett's original artwork has sold for as high as $20,000 and lithographs of his work sell for over $700.

Sometimes combining the two art forms, Bennett has been known to use slides of his art as background during his concerts.

Tony Bennett, singer. Anthony Dominick Benedetto, artist. They'll both be in Hershey on April 28, 1988. How about you? Purchase your tickets today!

Plant Physiologist To Speak At Retail Farm Marketing Meeting

CLARKS SUMMIT (LACKAWANNA) — All farmers interested in direct marketing are invited to the Northeast Regional Retail Farm Marketing meeting on March 9 at 9:30 a.m. at the Ramada Inn in Clarks Summit arranged jointly by the Lackawanna County Horticultural Association and the Cooperative Extension Service of Penn State University.

Dr. Kathy Evensen, professor of plant physiology at Penn State, will speak on harvesting methods and post harvest handling to maintain quality and shelf life for fruits and vegetables.

Kathleen B. Evensen

Other topics will include the growing and marketing of specialty crops; refrigerated storage for retail markets and meeting the needs of retail customers.

Speakers are Dr. Peter Ferretti, Extension vegetable specialist; Dr. Jon Carson, Extension ag engineer and Larry Yager, Extension marketing agent all from Penn State University. Ken Martin, manager of the Buffalo Valley Auction in Lewisburg and J. Scott White, Lackawanna County vegetable grower will also be on the program. Core credits for holders of private applicator permits to apply restricted use pesticides can be earned at the meeting.

Reservations of $6.00 must be made with the Lackawanna County Cooperative Extension, 200 Adams Avenue, Scranton, Pa. 18503 by Monday, March 7 or calling the office at 717-963-6842 by Friday, March 4.

The Ramada Inn is located on Routes 6 and 11 just off of Exit 58 of Interstate 81.

CHICKEN FEED IS BIG MONEY

Don't Waste It!

For fifty years BIG DUTCHMAN CHAIN has been carrying feed to chickens. And for fifty years poultry equipment companies, including Big Dutchman, have tried to find a better way. There isn't one...only other ways.

If you are a poultryman who is tiring of "pie in the sky" claims of extra cage rows per house and truckloads of feed savings... then look to Big Dutchman, the leader in poultry cage equipment systems. Take a "hands on" look at time-tested fully proven cage systems, to find out why producers are putting over a million layers every month into new Big Dutchman installations. Then look to the really successful poultry farms world wide and you will find Big Dutchman Chain carrying the load.

Ackermanville Clinic Holds Dairy Seminar

BETHLEHEM — Over 120 dairymen and veterinarians took a day away from the farm this past Tuesday, to attend a full day of discussions on fine tuning a dairy herd's health. Hosted by the Ackermanville Veterinary Clinic, the dairy management seminar, "Feeding for Profit," featured Dr. Jenks S. Britt, from Russellville, Kentucky, in a program focused on feeding the dairy cow for better health and production.

In opening the program at the Holiday Inn, Dr. Charles Gardner stated, "Those of us who are dairy oriented should be involved in your feeding program." Dr. Charles Gardner, a member of the Ackermanville Veterinary Clinic group, stressed the fact that a dairyman should make his veterinarian a key figure in planning his total nutritional program for his dairy herd. This concept, stressed throughout the day by the speakers, has been enabling dairymen-clients to achieve high production in their herds with minimal herd health problems. "We can be helping you reduce the incidence of disease," Dr. Gardner continued. "We are in a position to sell advice. We can be an unbiased source of information to you," Dr. Gardner informed dairymen about their veterinarians.

On this note, Dr. Gardner introduced Dr. Jenks Britt, Kentucky, who operates Animal Health Management Service and Bov-Eq Embryo Transfer Service at his practice in Russellville. Also a columnist for Dairy Herd Management magazine, Dr. Britt is widely known for his practical herd health advice. His specialized veterinary service and embryo transfer service encompasses 57 dairy herds in Kentucky with the average herd size of 100 cows in a freestall-herringbone parlor type of setup.

"I think that what makes the key nutritional service work is speedy service," Dr. Britt began his discussion on coordinating a dairy's nutritional program for optimal production and minimal health problems. As he centered on "Feeding for Profit," Dr. Britt stated, "None of the programs are going to work solely by themselves." But, according to Dr. Britt, a veterinarian is on the farm regularly, can readily view health problems and associate them with nutritional imbalances, and can steer the dairyman on the right track immediately. "The feed salesman may be well versed in nutrition, but does he know anything about mastitis"? Dr. Britt asked the audience.

There is room for improvement in a dairy herd if one or more of the following items are found in the herd according to Dr. Britt.

1. The herd average is less than 16,000 per cow.
2. The somatic cell count is greater than 200,000 or the DHIA liniar score is greater than 3.
3. The calving interval is greater than 13 months.
4. There is a death loss of all calves (bulls and heifers) greater than five percent.
5. There is no parasite control program on the farm.

In the calf and heifer program on a farm, is a real chance to increase cash flow with a better nutritional/health program, according to Dr. Britt. Farmers should strive to lower the death loss to less than five percent and also the calving age should be lowered to 24 months or less. With better dry cow management and nutrition, calf loss is minimized. More calves mean extra dairy stock to sell. Healthier calves mean better grown herd replacements that have the growth and ability to calve earlier and produce more.

"Maximum consumption gives 75 to 80 pounds of milk," Dr. Britt stated. "That's about all we can feed a cow for," he continued. The higher producers eat more percentage of their body weight in dry matter intake, according to Dr. Britt. He advised that a dairyman should work towards seeing that a cow increases her weight as she lowers production and when she is dry. This extra weight will yield a farmer up to six pounds of milk per pound of body weight as the cow burns this up when she is milking again. It is this extra weight and prime body condition that will push a cow towards higher production. "We can convert that fat into free milk," Dr. Britt stated.

A goal of production, said Dr. Britt, is to "maximize dry matter intake." Dry matter intake relates to body weight, milk production, cow individuality, climate, and the ration nature. Climate, stated Dr. Britt, has more impact on dry matter intake, which can drop up to 40% in heat. In the ration nature, palatability plays an important role and although it may be the perfect formula, "the cow must like it to get maximum dry matter intake," said Dr. Britt.

Dr. Britt stressed observing cow condition throughout a lactation. The first months into a lactation, a cow should be losing weight, in middle lactation she should be holding steady at that weight, the last third of a lactation, the cow should gain weight. Dr. Britt likes to see producers again 75 to 150 pounds while dry. "Worry more about thin cow syndrome instead of fat cow syndrome," he told dairymen.

In regards to summer feeding, Dr. Britt told dairymen "Base summer feeding systems on cow comfort." With milk consisting of 87 percent water, he advised providing clean water at all times. To kill bacteria in water, Dr. Britt advised adding bleach to large tanks of water. He also told producers to check for voltage around their waterers.

The limiting factor in most high producing cows is energy, according to Dr. Britt. First calf heifers should receive 20 percent more energy in rations. Farmers should watch energy levels in forages too. Forages vary in energy content depending on the weather.

Dr. Britt also told dairymen that it is best if cows chew cud at least eight hours a day. By observing this, farmers can judge if rations are too high or too low in fiber. Chewing cud produces more saliva. Saliva buffers the rumen. "Feed the rumen, the rumen feeds the animal," Dr. Britt maintains. Too high fiber decreases energy.

By checking monthly DHIA sheets a dairyman can judge in which direction his feeding program is taking him. Look at the average days in milk compared to the production per cow per day. Dr. Britt stated, "for every 30 days increase in days in milk, there should be a nine percent or less drop in production." If production drops greater than this in a 30 day interval, nutritional requirements are not being met.

In closing his part of the program, Dr. Britt also reminded farmers to watch closely, 1. cropland utilization, 2. storage systems, 3. records and weights. "The most important job on the farm is feeding the cows," he stated.

Also included in the seminar was a discussion on using the forage lab by Dr. Dale Streams, Quakertown, and a presentation of herd health problem case histories by three area veterinarians. Dr. Howard Redlus, Mt. Holly, New Jersey, Dr. David Nirschl, Reading, Willow Creek Animal Hospital, and Dr. Robert Cloninger, State College, gave brief presentations on working with their clients to single out a herd problem and working on a nutritional and herd health program to solve it and improve the herd.

Using DHI Figures To Control Dairy Farm Costs

Franklin Co. Correspondent

LEMASTERS — "Cost Control on the Dairy Farm" was the topic discussed by Dr. Joseph Hlubik, Extension Dairy Specialist, at the joint Extension-Atlantic Breeder's Cooperative Dairy Day, February 17.

The Rolling Herd Average, according to Dr. Hlubik, is an indicator of how a farmer is managing his animals, but it does not say how he is doing financially.

"You can produce a lot of milk," he said, but not have a high profit."

The RHA should progress 200-300 pounds per year. Some high profit farms sell only 12,000-15,000 pounds of milk per cow. Large herds have the potential for large losses.

"Getting bigger is not the answer for everyone," he added.

In the area of income over feed cost, an item on the DHI report that the dairy farmer should monitor carefully is "percent changes in milk." A drop greater than eight to ten percent should be investigated to determine the reason for the reduced production. This may include health problems or a problem with the ration.

"This is the first thing I look at on the monthly sheet," Dr. Hlubik said. "Then I look at the days in milk." The rate of drop is steeper after 240 days.

If cows are not getting bred back, they will have a longer lactation. Instead of a 305 day lactation, they may milk as long as 340 days. Therefore, a drop in milk production may not be a nutritional problem, but a problem with the breeding program.

The somatic cell count is also important, as it can cause a drop in production. "You might be blaming nutrition for a drop in production, but it might really be mastitis, so watch your somatic cell count," Hlubik advised.

Nutrition and feeding goals should include providing a balanced ration for every group of animals on the farm. Heifers must have the proper feed to attain optimum growth. It costs the farmer $30 per month for each month over 24 that a heifer does not freshen. If housing and labor are added in, the figure is about twice that. Overfeeding of young animals is undesirable, as this puts fat, instead of milk-producing tissue, into the udder.

"You can use the poorer quality forages you have," Hlubik said, "but they must be balanced out with grain."

A second nutrition and feeding goal is to have the highest possible income over feed cost — at least a $1.05-$1.10 return. This does not necessarily mean the highest production per cow.

Dr. Hlubik cited calibrating, measuring and testing as important items for any farm manager to know if he has a handle on production.

Feeders, "whether it's a computer or a scoop" should be properly calibrated, so that when a cow is supposed to get a pound of something, she gets a pound, not eight-tenths of a pound. Sprayers and fertilizer spreaders should also be checked for proper calibration.

Intakes — especially forage and grain intake — and outputs must be accurately measured.

Soil, feed, water and manure should be tested at regular intervals. "Are you actually delivering what you think you are in your TMR?" Hlubik asked. "An unbalanced ration can mean overfeeding nutrients, not just underfeeding. Both can be harmful."

One of a farmer's top priorities, Hlubik said, should be the production of the best quality and quantity of forage possible for his given set of resources and economic constraints. "What works for your neighbor won't necessarily work for you," he added.

"The impact of poor forages is decreased animal performance resulting from lower quality feeds, limited feeding, or improperly balanced rations for cows and young stock," Hlubik said. The farmer will notice lower milk production, a lower rate of growth in heifers, increased veterinary costs, breeding problems, and other consequences of nutritional stress.

A delay in harvesting forages has an impact on their nutritive value. Weather damage causes leaching of nutrients and leaf loss.

Some farmers are going back to pasturing their animals. "If a pasture is well-managed," Hlubik said, "it can be a low-cost source of forage for summer feeding."

Often a farmer will have to settle for producing forage of average quality, but Hlubik advised farmers to "shoot for 30 to 40 percent excellent quality forage."

High producers in early lactation should have the best quality silage. "That's hard to do if it's all in one silo and you have to wait till you get to the good forage," Hlubik said.

Philip Wagner, Franklin County Extension Dairy Agent, presented a slide set by Dr. Robert Graves, Extension Agricultural Engineer, titled "Restraint and Treatment Facilities for Dairy Animals." Wagner also showed slides of freestall bases that have been installed by two local dairymen.

Nathan Eby, State Line, built a freestall area using whole tires with concrete poured around them. He used six to eight tires per stall. On average, each tire is half full of concrete. Sawdust is used for bedding. Cows use these stalls as well as they used the previous earthen ones, and sawdust use is cut in half. The tires are warmer than concrete, and have a cushioning effect, increasing cow comfort.

Roger Benedict of Duffield poured four inches of concrete in his heifer barn, then pushed pieces of tires into the concrete. Each tire was cut into six pieces, and ten pieces were used per stall. The new stalls hold bedding well, and only half the amount of corn fodder is used.

Wagner stated that there is some interest in using old railroad ties in the same manner as the tires. If a cow's teats come in contact with the creosote in the ties, however, the milk supply may become contaminated. "We don't know the likelihood of that happening, but Penn State will not recommend the use of railroad ties for that reason," Wagner said.

Keyser Joins York Extension Staff

BY JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK — Dr. Robin Keyser has joined the staff of the York County Extension Service as a Dairy Agent.

A Maryland native, she was raised on a family dairy farm in Montgomery County and spent ten years in the 4-H program.

Dr. Keyser earned a degree in animal science, and a masters in ruminant nutrition, at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. She taught graduate classes in animal nutrition, along with her research studies, for seven years at Purdue University, while earning her doctorate.

Prior to moving to York, Dr. Keyser taught animal science and related agriculture courses at Missouri Western University, until the teaching position was phased out last year.

"I've been interested in extension and also wanted to return East," she says. "Having lived in Maryland, I was familiar with York County and always enjoyed the area."

Dr. Keyser, her husband, and six-year-old daughter are residing in York.

HAPPENINGS

Twin Valley Chapter

Twin Valley FFA recently participated in the county project book contest. Of the 35 students that took place in the competition, seven received first-place awards.

In the pleasure horse project book contest, Marybeth Hassler won first place, Kim Brossman was third, and Lauren Schwartz placed fourth. Steve Pavlesich won the wildlife conservation category, while Jason Albirght placed second in the miscellaneous single enterprise category and Bob Bell placed second in the four enterprise records contest.

Rick Hicks was second in the sheep book contest, Bunny Hicks was third and Doug Shantz was fourth. Chuck Stoltzfus took second place in the dairy herd book category while Dwight Stoltzfus was third. In the two enterprise record book contest, Sue Burkhart was first, Duane Stoltzfus was second, and Jill Burkhart placed sixth.

In the work experience record books contest, the classes were determined by the amount of hours each individual worked. In the less than 500 hours category, Jason Albright was third, Tom Morgon was fourth, and Lisa Hopps was seventh. In the 501 to 1,000 hours category, Damon Dixon was first, Lisa Kimball was second, Brian Beam was third, Rick Hicks was fourth, Penny Radcliffe was fifth, and Missy Fanning was sixth. In the 1,001 to 1,500 category, Denny Charron placed first, Rich Slonaker was secon, Joel Welsh was third, Bob Amey was fourth, and Dan Nonamaker was seventh. Bob Carlson worked between 1,501 and 2,000 hours and placed first in this contest. Eric Marshall and Dodie Reed worked more than 2,000 hours and placed second and third respectively in that category.

Dairy Products Contest

Asked if his teammates or high school friends razz him about his choice of T-shirts, he admits that they do, but obviously he's not about to change. The message "Milk - It's fitness you can drink," comes across loud and clear on the T-shirt, and it's reinforced with his physical abilities.

Barley is one farm boy who both enjoys drinking milk, and enjoys promoting it!

Spreading The Wealth Of Genetic Excellence In Pennsylvania Holsteins

BY PAT PURCELL
& EVERETT NEWSWANGER

LANCASTER — Spreading the wealth was the story at the 1988 Pennsylvania Holstein Convention Sale held Tuesday evening at the Palm Court Ballroom of the Willow Valley Convention Center.

Spreading the wealth happened in two ways. While two digit prices usually capture the top bid, in this sale there were several animals earning above five and six thousand dollars. This meant not one animal stole the show, but several were able to bathe in the spotlights. More consigners received excellent prices and more of the genetic excellence from the tremendous Pennsylvania Holsteins was made available to more of the black and white and red and white cattle breeders.

Of the 62 animals, five brought five thousand or better. The top Holstein sold for $6,600. Oakenbound-W Tradition Fanny ET sold to Wilmer Hostetter of Oxford, Chester County. Fanny, consigned by Richard Troutman and sons and Gary Willier of Richland, Lebanon County.

"One of the best uddered if not the best uddered daughters of Chief," was the way Horace Backus described Fanny as she entered the ring. She is classified a VG-87 at 4 years old. Her 3-year-old record for 365 days was 24,470M, 4.2% butterfat test and 1,024 lbs. of butterfat. Fanny is a full sister to Oakenbound-W Tradition France-ET who at 2-years-old produced 24,636, 4.1 test, 1,013 lbs. of butterfat. France sold for $34,000 in 1986 to Rothrock, Fanny has 5 tons to date in AI.

Hillmont Chairman Pansy, a 3-year-old producing 114 lbs. per day, according to Backus, sold to U.S. Superior Genetics for $6500. Pansy is a VG-87 with an excellent mammary system. She was consigned by Jay and Kirk Hillegass of Berlin.

"Buy the best and breed the best This cow has a tremendous future. She's tall. She's sharp and look at that excellent teat placement," said Backus. Fanny's dam is an EX-2E. She is a maternal sister to Hillmont Glendale Pinky with 27,000 lbs. milk.

A magnificent, young red and white heifer captured the third highest bid at $6,000 from Neil and Michelle Stewart from Marion. Consigned by Stonehurst Farms, Inc. of Strasburg, Visions Jon Mandarin-Red ET. Mandarin was fresh only 36 hours prior to the sale. Born 11:41 a.m. Monday morning, her calf Heidi Ho brought $1,000. Mandarin was born March 12, 1986, not quite a two-year-old, is a maternal sister to Hubbys R Maple Bootmaker Mara. Mara at 4-years-old in 362 days is at 27,040 lbs. of milk, 3.9% butterfat test and at 1,047 in lbs. of butterfat.

Solid-Gold Ned Boy Lacy-ET, consigned by Solid Gold Holsteins, Mike and Cindy Weimer of Emlenton, sold to Ronald M. King for $5500. Described as having an excellent chance of being an AI contract and embryo donor cow of the future, this two-year-old is the daughter of several VG dams. She is the daughter of Mun-Cre Glendell Lola (VG-88), Lola's 3-year-old record in 365 days was 31,564 lbs. of milk, 4.5% butterfat test, and 1,422 lbs. in butterfat.

Lacy's third dam topped 30,000 lbs. in milk production and four full sisters had butterfat records of 1043, 1130, 1150 and 1355. If Solid Gold Remedy sounds like a relation, he is. This is Lacy's full brother at Sire Power. Rounding out the top five bids was a dazzling two-year-old consigned by Lewis and Barbara Berkley of Berlin. Berkline Dazzler Tamara sold for $5,000. She is the daughter of Berkline Apollo Chief Tara who topped 26,000 lbs. milk with a 3.6% test and 1,033 lbs. of butterfat.

High selling animal in the sale at 6,600 was Oakenbound-W Tradition Fanny-ET.

Hillmont Chairman Pansy was the first cow in the ring and sold for $6500.

The unofficial sale average, according to Ken Raney, PHA Director of Membership Service, was $2780 on 62 lots. The 1987 sale average in Wilkes-Barre was $3,857. In 1986 the convention sale averaged $3,293.

This was the first time Willow Valley hosted animals in their ballroom. and according to the sale committee it took some explaining to Willow Valley owners. The beautiful ballroom was made even more so by the auction area decorated by large white columns topped with vases of flowers. In honor of their 75th anniversary, diamonds dangled from the ceiling and chandeliers.

The sale cows were housed at the Fultonway Farm of the Mowery Frey, Jr. family in Willow Street. The event drew hundreds of spectators with standing room 10 to 15 deep. It was an over capacity crowd.

Harry Bachman and Mike Weimer were auctioneers with pedigrees read by Horace Backus. Sale ringmen were Charles Myers, Jay Howes, and Donald Welk and Jeff Harding. Sale clerk was Ken Raney.

Rabies Comes To Lancaster County

MOUNT JOY — Tuesday afternoon Summerdale Laboratories confirmed a case of rabies that occurred on the the Richard Miller farm, which is midway between Mount Joy and Mastersonville on Meadow Road.

Miller, owner of a horse operation, began to suspect rabies when a horse attempted to bite anyone that came near it. The horse was put down a week ago Friday and its head sent to Summerdale.

"There was no way to tell how the rabies got on the farm," said Charles Buller, Miller's son-in-law.

Because Miller's horses are not innoculated, the Pennsylvania Department of Health placed the farm on a six-month quarrantine in an attempt to contain outbreaks. They also gave Miller the option of quarrantining his dogs, which had not been vaccinated, or destroying them. He chose to put them to sleep.

Veterinarians recommend that all domestic animals be vaccinated for rabies. If an animal won't let the farmer approach, or displays unusual behavior, it should be killed. In addition, all wildlife coming onto the farm, especially in the day, also should be killed.

Any animal that is killed should be buried immediately without being touched by the farmer or any other human being.

Although the symptoms for rabies differs widely, it is often characterized by drooling, abnormal aggression, and a limp tail.

If a farmer suspects a wild animal is rabid, he should kill it and bring the head to Summerdale Lab, where it will be tested free of charge.

Milk Promotion awards went to (L to R) standing, Kathy Sturgeon, Paul Corbin, Deb Metzber and Paul Countrymen. Seated, karen Lentz and Phoebe Bitler.

Dairy Spokesmen Review Concerns

LITITZ — Two spokesmen, one for RCMA and one for Farmland Industries, contacted Lancaster Farming this week with concerns about the milk diversion controversy. Marc Goldman, President of Farmland Industries, Wellington, NJ, and Harold Ely, Pennsylvania RCMA Coordinator. The discussion now centers around efforts of RCMA to sign up more members and divert members' milk and Farmland's efforts to replenish diverted milk with new producers who are not members of RCMA. Goldman's concerns centered around the independent handler's need to bear the business responsibility of possible losses from operation while cooperatives can reblend the price back to producer members.

Ely's concerns centered around the price of milk that's now under producers' costs and the need to find a way to extract more of the consumers milk dollar back into farmers' pockets.

Goldman said that independent milk handlers bear the total responsibility of losses and seasonal fluctuations when they purchase milk from farmers. "Cooperatives can reblend the price to compensate for losses or to split up income with all the coop members."

Goldman said that premiums in recent months have come from competition for supply rather than RCMA's diversion of milk. And he questioned what will happen when the surplus appears again. "What will RCMA do when they need to dispose of milk in a flush season-- maybe even as soon as this spring?" Goldman asked. "We take all the milk whether we need it or not."

And he quoted Section 2.3 of the RCMA Bylaws that says RCMA can reblend its potential losses back to its members. Unlike RCMA officials, Goldman interprets the wording of the bylaws to mean RCMA can recoop losses from members beyond the overorder premiums.

Goldman said his company paid lower premiums to their RCMA members but this came about because Farmland had paid $46,000 into an RCMA escrow account for September milk under a special agreement. The agreement was later declared invalid but the money in the escrow account has not been returned to Farmland. "That's part of our legal suit," Goldman said.

Ely said, "We think highly of tourism in Lancaster County because it brings dollars into Pennsylvania from out of state. In Lancaster County alone, 824 dairymen ship milk out of state to Order 2. If we had the total support of farmers, we could add $5,000 average per farm per year. That would be dollars from out of state back into the farm economy," Ely said. Without RCMA, the share of the consumers milk dollar has gone down from 52% in 1981 to 44% in 1980; that's a loss of 14%. Reliable economists are predicting continued downward prices for milk. "There's really nothing cooperatives can do to keep the price from slipping to $9.60 by 1990," Ely said.

Even now, there are lots of farm sales. You may want to continue farming but your banker will make the decision. What we extract from the market could be increased by one-third if we had all the shippers as members. "What we are going to be able to do about the decreasing milk price to farmers other than going to over-order pricing, I do not know," Ely said.

Our Reputation Is Growing

CIMARRON alfalfa has a reputation as a high-yield, high-quality alfalfa. As a result, it's one of the most widely accepted alfalfa varieties.

CIMARRON alfalfa is a proven top producer in state university tests. And CIMARRON offers consistent performance that's only available from a premium variety.

CIMARRON is an extra leafy/full season alfalfa with excellent stand persistence and broad spectrum disease resistance.

And because of its hardy germplasm, CIMARRON is well adapted to all major alfalfa growing regions of the U.S.

If you're searching for a consistent, high-performing alfalfa with unmatched pest resistance— ask for CIMARRON alfalfa.

Former Secretaries Recall Extension's Beginnings

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

LANCASTER — Margaret Beilmann Kirchner was 21 years-old when she went to work for "Extension" in 1924. Hired by "Dutch" Bucher, Lancaster County's first county agent, she remembers his asking her to work on some bookkeeping one Saturday afternoon as a trial. He told her if she did it well he would hire her; if the performance was not satisfactory, he would pay her for her afternoon's work.

Margaret says, "They were way back on their bookkeeping, and I did it all. It was single entry bookkeeping." She was hired and continued to work for the Farm Bureau and Extension, which functioned out of the same office, for the next ten years. The offices were located in the six-story Woolworth Building on North Queen Street. They were at the rear, on the sixth floor.

She found out about the job because Samuel Zug, an assistant county agent, boarded with her aunt who passed on the information about the open secretarial position. Margaret says, "I was interested because I wanted to better myself. I had been working at Raub Supply, and Extension paid $14.00 a week." Eventually her salary increased to $30 a week, but when the Depression came, "They put me on parttime," she recalls.

In 1927, there was enough work that Barbara Musser Hostetter was hired. Barbara recalls that she started out at $18.00 a week, and eventually moved to $20.00 a week. However, during the Depression her salary regressed to $18.00 per week.

Reminiscing about their salary experiences with the Extension Service which is celebrating its 75th anniversary this year, Barbara and Margaret both agreed that the job was an enjoyable one, with a lot of variety every day. Barbara will be 80 this year, and Margaret is 85.

Being a secretary in the 1920's and 1930's remains a world away from secretaries today who use word processors, mail sorters and computers in a modern office.

Barbara recalls, "The equipment was as meager as you could get - a typewriter and an adding machine."

Individual envelopes had to be typed each time for the many mailings that went from the office, and the newsletters were fed "by hand" through a mimeograph machine. Barbara developed a system for lining up the envelopes so the flaps and stamps could be moistened with a sponge.

Margaret adds, "We didn't have electric typewriters then, either." As for mistakes, she added, "We pulled off the original and erased the carbons." Barbara said, "If we made too many mistakes we would start over."

Workdays for these secretaries were five and one-half days, from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. during the week, and from 8:00 to 12 Noon on Saturdays. There were no coffee breaks, although they did have one hour for lunch. Margaret says, "Coffee breaks were unheard of. We didn't have anything like that." There were no fringe benefits, like insurance and pension, but they were allowed a one week vacation each year.

She added, "We worked hard. That was the way it was. I turned over my whole paycheck to my mother when I lived at home."

When farmers came to Farm Bureau they could make their purchases as well as get needed advice from the Extension Service. Parking was then allowed on both sides of the street. Market stands were often right along North Queen Street, as well as in Central Market.

They both agree that Dutch Bucher was the perfect man for the county agent job. Margaret says, "He was super." Barbara concurs, "He was quite a man." His Pennsylvania Dutch background stood him in good stead with the farmers he worked with, and Barbara recalls being very amused by some of the strange expressions used by the farmers, including a reference by one man to "the back part of the week."

Margaret Beilmann Kirchner, left, and Barbara Musser Hostetter look over the program for the 75th anniversary of the Lancaster County Extension Service. Mrs. Kirchner worked for Extension when it was still part of the Farm Bureau office, and Mrs. Hostetter continued to work for them after the move to the Post Office Building.

By the time they were hired, Bucher was already well-known for his motorcycle and side-car. Margaret remembers that he owned 43 in his lifetime. Barbara says, "I remember the State College men coming in after riding with him and their hair would be standing up."

As technology advanced, farmers would often come in to the office and "talk it over with Dutch and Sloat to see if they had something to recommend," Barbara said.

They also had kind words for former home economist Anne Forbes. Margaret said, "She was terrific. She had a calm way." Barbara said, "She was always trying to improve working conditions in the home."

There were many summer home economists during Barbara's 17-year tenure with Extension, and she says, "They were always looking for a place to stay. We had a big house and several lived with us. I'm still in touch with one from Clearfield."

When the Extension Service moved from the Farm Bureau offices to the Post Office on Chestnut Street, Barbara and Margaret no longer worked together, but remained friends. Each married, and changed jobs, but they continue to socialize even today.

About the move, Barbara remembers, "I thought I was in heaven. We each had our own office, and we had a new mimeograph machine." She was the only secretary for the three professional members of the staff, and she said it was only after she was gone that they added additional help.

She said her days were full, usually beginning with taking dictation from Bucher, Home Economist Anne Forbes or Assistant County Agent Harry Sloat. It wasn't unusual to spend one or two hours taking dictation. After spending several hours in the office, the agents and home economist usually went out in the county. Then, Barbara says, "I answered the phone and put notes on their desks. I had enough to keep me busy."

Barbara and Margaret never questioned the long hours, or the working conditions. Both women said they were happy for the job, and that it was a really desirable job.

For Margaret, the world of agriculture was new, since she had been born and raised in the city. To acquaint herself with agricultural methods, she often took notes when Bucher was talking with farmers. That way, when she got phone calls with questions, and Bucher was out of the office, she would check her notes and relay accurate information.

She remembers that one time she gave a talk on an unfamiliar subject. Her notes helped her give farmers accurate information.

Secretaries Recall

Barbara was more familiar with agriculture since she grew up on a farm in Illinois. After she graduated from high school, she went to business school. She noted that during those years, "The only thing a woman could do was teach school or be a nurse." She only finished 11 months of the 12-month course because she got a job offer at Lehman's Grocery Store near Southern Market. A cousin who taught at the school advised, "If you get a job take it." She started at $15 a week, and then was recommended for the Extension Service job. Once there, she said, "I felt at home with it because I was familiar with farm work. They had a pleasant office set-up."

During Barbara's tenure, M. Maxwell Smith was hired. Barbara says, "He said I was the first person in Lancaster to greet him. Dutch and Sloat took him under their arms. Smitty was very personable. He fell right into the work." She remembers that he was engaged when he arrived in Lancaster, but it wasn't long before his fiancee came and they were married.

Barbara's husband started a body repair business in 1939, and she would work in his shop in the morning and the evening, after working a full day in the Extension office. When World War II became a reality, she left her Extension job and cared for a niece. While working in her husband's shop. After the war, she was asked to return temporarily to the Extension office, which she did for several months. Eventually, she asked how the search for a new secretary was coming, and discovered that they were not really looking. With some prodding they hired a new secretary.

Barbara also managed the payroll for Valley Frocks. Today, she continues to work in the family business, working two days a week.

When Farm Bureau moved its offices from North Queen to North Prince Street, Margaret chose not to move, because she understood that pumping gas would be part of her job requirement. She held a series of jobs after leaving Farm Bureau, but during the War Bucher asked her to work for the Farm Labor Office which operated out of the YMCA, but was organized through the Extension Office.

Margaret says, "It was very interesting work. We placed school-age children and others on farms. Farmers would call in when they needed labor." She also helped to place German prisoners of war from Indiantown Gap and workers from Newfoundland who came here to help on farms.

She held that job for five years. Through that position she was offered a job at Penn State, but her husband wasn't willing to move, so she didn't consider it seriously.

She later worked for the Lancaster County Dairymen's Association, a group of all the different dairies in the county.

Both women recall that they usually wore dresses to work sometimes skirts and sweaters but never slacks. Margaret says, "I often wore middy collars, putting a new one on each time. I made a lot of my clothes."

Margaret reminisced that they were working together during the "flapper age," and she would often go dancing up to three nights a week. Dancing to big bands, they would go to Maple Grove, Rocky Springs, Hershey and York, traveling in an Oakland with a rumble seat. "It was gorgeous," she says with a smile.

Each remembers walking to and from work, since they did not want to spend the money or the time to take a streetcar, because often the route was so circuitous. Margaret says, "We walked everywhere. I walked about eight blocks to the office." She also remembers being so "skinny" that she had a pint of cream delivered to the office each day.

Barbara added, "I walked home at lunch because I didn't want to spend the money to eat out."

Margaret and her husband lived with his parents for nine years and traveled to Atlantic City nearly every weekend. Shopping was done mostly on Saturday afternoons, and Margaret fondly recalls when Garvin's Department store had a restaurant and a grocery store. They both agreed that neighborhood grocery stores were so prominent that they could easily purchase what they needed as they walked home.

Seventy-five years after the start of the Extension Service, the basic work of answering the phones, doing mailings and serving the public remains the same. Margaret and Barbara served as secretaries during the growing years of the Extension Service, and retain good memories of the experience.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

As I walked around this morning with flower watering pot in hand, watering my many plants, I pondered what my column should be about this week. And, then it came to me as I watered two plants that were recently acquired.

You see we have attended seven different farm related banquets this year. That is almost one each week. In fact, one time we had three on three consecutive days. Each one hopefully has some particular highlight. Somehow they do tend to grow a bit dull after you've been attending them for years and years.

Sometimes they celebrate a particular anniversary or emphasize a certain subject. Or, they may try to sell a product or service. No matter how you view them, they are a social event of sorts.

Usually the business part of the meeting is cut short. Then there is some kind of entertainment. Screen adaptations of some kind have gained acceptance and are viewed appreciatively. They say "a picture is worth a thousand words."

An interesting feature of one banquet was the serving of a big roasted turkey to each table of eight people. One person was chosen by chance to carve the bird. It was a real conservation piece and livened up the gathering.

At two other meetings, my husband and I were lucky enough to each receive the centerpiece on the table. One was a beautiful arrangement of foliage plants and African violets while the other was a cyclamen with red blossoms.

Too soon I will be busy outside planting the flowers which I've ordered from a catalog. Hope they'll be as pretty as their pictures.

Cutting Down On Sugar

A significant health program from eating too much sugar is tooth decay. This risk of decay is not simply a matter of how much sugar and sugar-containing foods you eat but how often you eat them. The more frequently you eat sugar and sugar-containing foods, the greater the risk for tooth decay -- especially if they are eaten between meals, and if they stick to your teeth.

Cutting sugar out of your diet can be a difficult thing to do. However, if you are interested in trying, start in your supermarket. Read the ingredient labels on items you plan to buy before you place them in your shopping cart. Look for words like sucrose, glucose, dextrose, sorbital, fructose maltose, lactose, mannitol, honey, corn syrup, high fructose molasses and maple syrup.

These words indicate the product contains sugar. If one of these words is one of the first couple of ingredients, or if several sugars are listed on the label, the product is probably high in sugar.

Canned fruits have a surprisingly high sugar content. You would do better to buy fresh fruit or at least buy canned fruit packed in water, juice or light syrup rather than fruit packed in heavy syrup.

You can cut down on sugar in your favorite recipes. Do this gradually and you will eventually be able to prepare most recipes with one-third less sugar than it calls for. Spices can be used to enhance the flavor of many foods.

Be careful about what you drink. A 12-ounce glass of fruit drink or punch equals 12 teaspoons of sugar. Twelve ounces of cola equals 9 teaspoons of sugar.

You cannot avoid all sugar because most of the foods we eat contain some sugar in one form or another. Keep the amount of sugars and sweet foods you eat moderate. When you do eat them, brush your teeth afterwards, if possible.

Stash The Cash For Emergencies

The most important part of your family budget should be the part that goes for savings. Before you pay any bills or buy anything new you should set aside a certain amount of money for emergencies. Your emergency reserve fund should be equal to about three months take-home pay. If you do not have that much to fall back on, you should start saving right away.

Three months pay is recommended because all families are hit at one time or another by the unexpected. Suppose you could not work for a while, had to move or a major illness or accident hit one of your family members. Even unforseen home repairs or automobile expenses can cause a lot of heartache if you do not have the money to cover it.

If you do not have any money left at the end of the month to put into savings, you should pay yourself first. Put a little bit aside each and every payday...before you pay the other bills. Make it a fixed expense right off the top of your monthly budget...just like a mortage or rent payment. Joining a credit union is a good idea. Have the money taken out of your check before you get it. Money you do not see you do not spend.

This fund can also be used as an opportunity fund. Suppose you have the chance to buy a side of beef at a good price, or an antique as an investment. These are worthwhile reasons to dip into your emergency fund. Just remember, the first thing you have to do is replace the money before you begin to spend it for other things. Your emergency fund should be separate from other savings, like vacation or Christmas clubs.

CHELATION THERAPY

THIS MAY BE YOUR ANSWER TO: Heart Problems, High Blood Pressure, Poor Circulation, Arthritis, Diabetes, Leg Cramps, Numbness, Tingling, Cold Hands And Feet & Atherosclerosis.

All of these conditions may be helped by Golden Pride Formula #1. This aids in removing approximately 50 detrimental factors including lead, mercury and calcium deposits from the arteries It also lowers triglycerides and cholesterol.

This chelated formula called Golden Pride Formula #1 is available in a pleasant-tasting form containing honey, royal jelly, bee pollen and the chelating agent EDTA. Start to erase years of damage to your system Good nutrition can elevate many health problems The following are just a few testimonies of some of the many local persons using Golden Pride Products.

Dear Golden Pride

I have suffered with various heart problems and high blood pressure for the past 15 years needing hospitalization 13 times! I was also diagnosed as a diabetic 3 years ago

Two and one half years ago I suffered a severe attack of angina was rushed to the Coronary Care Unit with an oncoming heart attack Since I was treated in time the heart attack was averted However, because of my medical history my Cardiologist wanted to perform a Cardiac Catheterization He informed me of the risks and left the decision up to me I consented because I did not want to live the rest of my life as an invalid During the catheterization I had a brain stem stroke which affected my vision and my walking It also caused me to have excruciating vascular headaches

Since I have been taking the Formulas for Health (1 2 3 & 6) my headaches have almost disappeared My blood pressure is stabilizing my vision has improved and I don t have to walk with a cane while I m at home I can even drive for short distances All my heart medicines have been reduced and I am completely off my diabetic medicines but still on a strict diabetic diet I feel so much stronger and better than anyone thought possible so soon after suffering from a stroke!

I m a great believer that God works in mysterious ways through people to reach others I m forever grateful to (Golden Pride distributors) for introducing me to these wonderful products I feel confident that I will continue to improve

Willa Secrest

Dear Golden Pride

I am a nurse and when I heard about Golden Pride I was skeptical My problems included very high blood pressure along with high triglycerides and cholesterol What sold me on Golden Pride was my blood test results and my doctor s wholehearted approval He was very impressed with how well I was doing since I previously had surgery for blocked carotid arteries My doctor encouraged me to keep up the Formula #1 from Golden Pride My blood pressure came down within one week after starting Golden Pride products I am convinced!

Heart Happy Recipes

February is proclaimed as National Heart Month. To welcome this healthy occasion and keep up with the trend toward eating "lite" the American Heart Association is distributing numerous pamplets with information and recipes. We are sharing several of them with you since diet remains the best way to combat high levels of cholesterol and other fats and sugars in the blood. To learn more about controlling cholesterol and the American Heart Association's services, check for a feature on Cart Smart Shopping Tours that appears in this section.

VEAL COLOMBO

⅓ cup wheat germ
1 teaspoon crushed oregano
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon onion powder
¼ teaspoon black pepper
1½ pounds veal cutlet, cut serving pieces
½ cup skim milk
3 tablespoons margarine
½ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
3 tablespoons tomato paste
¼ cup marsala
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Mix wheat germ, garlic powder, onion powder and black pepper. Dip veal into milk, then into wheat germ mixture, coating cutlets well.

In a skillet, melt margarine, then saute veal in it, until golden on both sides

Combine mushrooms, tomato paste and marsala, poour over veal cutlets. Simmer 10 minutes Serve garnished with parsley. Yield 8 servings. 61 mg. cholesterol

APRICOT HAM STEAK

1½ pound ham slice, cut 2-inches thick whole cloves
¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 16-ounce ca peeled whole apricots.

Remove any fat around the slice of ham. Place in a shallow baking pan. Sprinkle with sugar and stud the sides with cloves.

Drain the apricot juice. Pour ⅓ cup of the juice over the ham.

Bake at 325 degrees for 1 hour, basting often with the juice in the pan. Arrange the drained apricots on top of the ham and bake 15 minutes longer or until richly glazed.

BANANA BRAN MUFFINS

1 cup all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
2 cups bran flakes cereal
⅔ cup skim milk
⅔ cup mashed, fully ripe bananas
2 egg whites
¼ cup no cholesterol, low saturated fat margarine
½ cup raisins

Stir together flour, baking powder, sugar, salt and spices. Set aside.

Stir together bran flakes cereal, milk and bananas in mixing bowl. Let stand 1 to 2 minutes or until cereal is softened. Beat egg whites until foamy. Add egg whites and margarine to cereal mixture. Beat well.

Add flour mixture; stir in raisins, stirring only until combined. Portion batter evenly into 12 greased 2½-inch muffin cups. Bake at 400 degrees about 25 minutes or until lightly browned.

FIVE-MINUTE SOUP

4 cups chicken broth
½ raw cucumber, scrubbed, unpeeled and sliced very thin
2 cups shredded cabbage, spinach or lettuce
1 tomato, cubed
½ cup leftover lean meat, shredded
4 raw mushrooms, sliced

Heat the broth. Add the vegetables and meat. Bring to a boil and simmer 5 minutes. Serve immediately. Yield: about 1½ quarts. 6 mg. cholesterol.

BROILED MARINATED FISH STEAKS

1½ pounds fish steaks, cut 1-inch thick
Marinade for fish steaks:
2 tablespoons oil
⅓ cup tarragon vinegar
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Freshly ground black pepper
1 bay leaf
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

In a shallow pan, combine oil, vinegar, Worcestershire sauce, pepper, bay leaf and parsley. Add fish steaks; cover and refrigerate for at least 3 hours, turning occasionally so that steaks are well coated. Remove from marinade. Place broiler pan about 3 inches from heat. Broil about 10 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Baste with sauce.

Long prized by nutritionists, fish is a low-fat, low calorie source of protein and nutrients. Microwave Oriental Swordfish is an example of how seafood can fit into a healthy lifestyle without monotony and extra work.

CRUNCHY CEREAL

2½ cups regular rolled oats (not quick-cooking)
½ cup coarsely chopped peanuts
½ cup sesame seeds
½ cup sunflower seeds
½ cup nonfat dry milk
½ cup wheat germ
¼ cup brown sugar, packed
¼ cup oil
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
2 teaspoons vanilla extract

In a large bowl, mix together the oats, nuts, seeds, milk and wheat germ. Combine brown sugar, cinnamon and oil, stirring until smooth. Mix with dry ingredients and spread mixture on a cookie sheet. Bake at 300 degrees for 1 hour, stirring every 10 minutes.

Remove from oven, sprinkle with vanilla and allow to cool. Mixture keeps well if stored in an airtight container.

WHOLE WHEAT APPLESAUCE CAKE

½ cup oil
¾ cup granulated brown sugar
1 cup applesauce
1½ cups unsifted whole wheat flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Oil and flour an 8-inch round or square baking pan or muffin tins. Cream the oil and sugar together and mix in the applesauce and baking soda. Add flour and cinnamon, blending thoroughly.

Pour the batter into pan, or make individual cakes in muffin tins. Bake at 375 degrees for 30 minutes for an 8-inch cake, about 20 minutes for cup cakes.

HOMEMADE SAUSAGE

¾ pound ground turkey or chicken
¼ teaspoon each pepper, basil, sage and oregano
¼ teaspoon each allspice, nutmeg, garlic powder, chili powder and Tabasco (optional)
1 egg white
2 tablespoons water

Combine all ingredients and mix thoroughly. Shape into 4 patties and place on a rack in a shallow pan. Broil 2 to 3 inches from heat 10 to 15 minutes. Turn patties and broil 5 to 10 minutes, or until well done.

COTTAGE CHEESE AND CINNAMON

1 slice toast
¼ cup low-fat cottage cheese
½ teaspoon sugar
cinnamon to taste

For each serving, spread toast with the low-fat cottage cheese and sprinkle with sugar mixed with cinnamon. Put under the broiler or in a toaster-oven until sugar-cinnamon mixture bubbles. Serve at once.

ANSWER - Mary R. Watkins, Clarskburg, Md., requested a recipe for scrapple. Thanks Doris Brenize, Shippensburg, and Kathryn Graby, Annville, for the following recipes.

Scrapple

3 quarts water
2 pounds country pudding
1 teaspoon salt
Bring the above to a boil.

Mix 3 cup toasted corn meal and ¾ cup flour with enough water to make a paste-like gravy.

Add the flour mixture to the boiling mixture and simmer 1 hour or until a wooden spoon will stand alone in the middle of the pot.

Use a heavy kettle (at least 6-quart size) as it will bubble up. Pour mixture into small loaf pans. Let cool. Slice and fry when cold.

Scrapple

1 13¾-ounce can beef broth
¾ pound pan pudding
1 cup corn meal mixed with 1½ cups water.

Heat broth and pudding to boiling. Mix corn meal with water. Add to broth and pudding. Do not allow liquid to boil while adding corn meal mixture. Over medium heat, cook 30 minutes or longer, stirring frequently to keep smooth. Pour into oblong loaf pan and cool

ANSWER - Rose Delp, Souderton, requested a recipe for Fruit Bars. Thanks Marian Martin, Lebanon, for your recipe.

Fruit Bars

1⅓ cups sifted flour
¼ teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¾ cup oatmeal
⅓ cup brown sugar
¾ cup or 6-ounces cream cheese
½ cup butter
¾ cup fruit preserves

Sift together flour, soda, salt and cinnamon. Stir in oatmeal and sugar. Cut cream cheese and butter into dry ingredients until crumbly and evenly mixed. Reserve 1 cup crumbs. Pack remaining mixture into a greased 9-inch square pan. Spread with preserves. Place small dabs of reserved crumbs on top. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes or until brown. Cool 20 minutes. Cut into 1½-inch squares.

ANSWER - Ruth Detwiler, Telford, requests a recipe for soft pretzels like those sold at the Lititz Pretzel Factory. Thanks Marian Martin, Lebanon, for sharing yours even though you're not sure if they taste like those from Lititz.

Soft Pretzels

2 packages yeast
1½ cups warm water
½ teaspoon salt
4¼ cups flour
4 teaspoons soda dissolved in 1 quart water

Dissolve yeast in warm water. Add salt and flour. Knead. Let rise about 15 minutes. Roll dough in long narrow rolls on unfloured surface. Shape into pretzels. Make soda solution and bring to a boil in a pan. Drop pretzels in soda solution for about 1 minute or until they float. Place on a greased cookie sheet. Sprinkle with pretzel salt and bake at 450 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. Makes 10 pretzels.

ANSWER - Mary Delaney, Centre Hall, requests a recipe for Cajun Buttermilk Chicken. Thanks L. Eugene Martin, Reinholds, for sending your recipe.

Buttermilk Pecan Chicken

2 broiler-fryer chickens, cut in serving-sized pieces
½ cup butter or margarine, melted
1 cup buttermilk
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 cup flour
1 cup pecans, ground
1 tablespoon paprika
1 tablespoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup sesame seeds
¼ cup pecan halves
Parsely
Cherry tomatoes

Melt butter in 13x9x2-inch baking dish. Mix buttermilk with egg in shallow dish. Mix flour, ground pecans, paprika, salt, pepper and sesame seeds in another shallow dish. Dip chicken in buttermilk mixture and then in flour mixture. Place meaty side down in melted butter in baking dish, turn to coat. Place pecan halves around chicken and bake in moderate 350 degree oven for 1¾ hours or until chicken is tender and golden brown. Garnish with parsley and cherry tomatoes. Serves 8.

ANSWER - Eva Burrell requested additional information for making Believe It or Not Bouquet Bouncing Snowballs. Thanks Susanna Bicher, Bethel, for submitting a recipe that works for her. She adds more citric acid and soda when the mothballs stop bouncing.

Believe It Or Not Bouquet

You will need a clear glass flower bowl, a handful of mothballs, a small quantity of citric acid crystals (from the drug store), baking soda, a bit of green or blue vegetable coloring and one or two flowers—a full blown rose with a sprig of leaves is good. anchor to the bottom of the dry bowl, using a tiny needle type flower holder or a bit of adhesive tape or modeling clay to hold it in place. (If the container is a bubble bowl, with narrow opening, the flower may be weighted and lowered carefully into the bowl).

Fill the bowl about ⅔ full of water tinted with food coloring. Make sure the flower is fastened securely so it does not float when water is poured into the bowl. Set the bowl on the table. Just before dinner is served, drop in citric acid and soda (about a tablespoonful of each to one quart of water) and add the handful of mothballs. Suddenly the mothballs become sparkling bubbles that dance up and down in slow rhythmic fashion in the tinted water. There is no odor from the mothballs and they usually keep up their lively performance throughout the dinner hour. Should they stop, add another spoonful of citric acid and soda to start them in motion again.

MICROWAVE ORIENTAL SWORDFISH STEAKS

1 pound swordfish steaks
2 tablespoons orange juice
1 tablespoon low-sodium soy sauce
1 tablespoon catsup
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
2 teaspoons sesame oil
1 teaspoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon oregano
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 small clove garlic, minced
1 small can (8 ounces) sliced water chestnuts, drained
1 large orange, peeled, seeded and sectioned

In a large shallow microwave dish, place steaks with thickest areas to outside edges of dish Combine remaining ingredients, except water chestnuts and orange and pour over steaks. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate 30 minutes, turning once. To steaks with water chestnuts. Re-cover dish with plastic wrap, turning back one corner to vent. Microwave on high power 4 to 5 minutes, rotating dish ¼ turn after 2 minutes. When rotating dish, top steaks with orange sections, re-cover and return to oven Let stand covered 2 to 3 minutes Makes 4 servings.

SPICED RED CABBAGE

4 cups shredded red cabbage
¼ cup cider vinegar
½ cup water
¼ teaspoon ground allspice
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon ground nutmeg
2 tart apples, peeled, cored and diced
1 tablespoon sugar

In a saucepan, combine shredded cabbage with all ingredients except apples and sugar. Cover and cook over moderate heat for 15 minutes, tossing several times so the cabbage will cook evenly.

GINGERED CARROTS

1 pound carrots, peeled and cut in ¼-inch slices
1 tablespoon margarine
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon ginger
2 tablespoons fresh parsley, finely chopped

Steam carrots for 15-20 minutes or until barely tender. In a medium-sized frying pan, melt margarine until it bubbles. Add carrots and toss. Sprinkle with sugar and ginger.

Toss lightly to coat carrots and continue cooking until carrots are lightly glazed, about 1-2 minutes. Just before serving, sprinkle with parsley.

PUMPKIN-PECAN BREAD

3½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
1½ teaspoons salt
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup sugar
1 cup oil
4 eggs or egg substitutes or 8 egg whites
⅔ cup water
2 cups canned pumpkin
1 cup chopped nuts

Sift together the flour, soda, salt, cinnamon, and nutmeg. Add sugar and stir to mix thoroughly.

Make a well in the center of the dry ingredients and add—all at once—the oil, eggs, water, and pumpkin. Mix well and add the nuts.

Pour batter into four 8x4-inch loaf pans, filling each half full.

Bake at 350 degrees for one hour or until a wooden toothpick inserted in the center of the loaf comes out clean.

Teen Finds A Way To Continue Farming

BY LOU ANN GOOD

LITITZ — Eighteen-year-old Daryl Heller eased back in the kitchen chair at his Lititz farm and said, "I was pretty upset when Dad decided to sell his cows because I knew I definitely wanted to farm when I got out of school."

Daryl toyed with his glass of orange juice as he referred to February 1987 when the Hellers sold their cows. His fingers brushed lightly over his black hair before he explained, "My dad was too busy with being a minister and everything. Since I was still in school for another year and our dairy needed updating, it seemed the best thing to do."

Daryl paused, his eyes crinkled, and his slow grin broke into dimples, as he commented, "Now, I'm working for this other guy who has an automated dairy, and I'm learning a lot."

Daryl is like many teenagers who grow up on the farm, dream of continuing the family tradition, but don't always find agricultural supply and demand cooperating. Some wander into business or other jobs, resigned to settling for less than their desired career, but not Daryl. He considers himself fortunate.

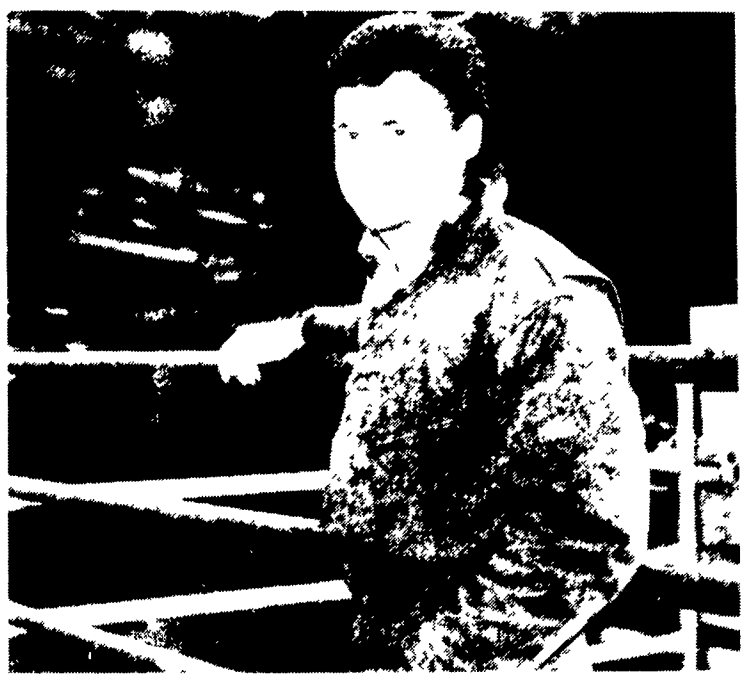
After their dairy herd was sold, Paul Zimmerman, Daryl's church youth leader who lives nearby offered him a job. Daryl said, "He has 120 Holsteins, milks three times a day and feeds five times daily."

The Zimmerman dairy is fully automated and Daryl is intrigued with the benefits of computerized feedings and cow records. "The records save a lot of labor, and we do our own testing—that saves a lot of money," he remarked.

Daryl's parents, Fred and Julia Heller, had milked 60 to 70 cows while crop farming 140 acres. Fred also is a full-time minister. Often pastoral commitments conflicted with the demands of dairy farming. Their three children helped on the farm, but school responsibilities kept them busy. Considering the workload and the barn that needed updating, Fred thought it was wiser to sell the cows, concentrate on crop farming and raise steers and dogs rather than continue with the dairy.

Daryl said, "I had already started a herd for when I would begin farming on my own. But the dairy buy-out program required that our whole herd be sold for beef. I could have gotten a lot more if I'd have sold them for dairy," Daryl flashed his perpetual slow grin before continuing, "Everything seems to be working out okay. I'm going to start building my own herd where I work."

Daryl discusses dairy business with his employer, Paul Zimmerman of Lititz.



"I like everything about farming, especially cows," Daryl Heller said.

Daryl remains optimistic about farming outlooks. "If you're willing to put a lot of time and hard work into farming, you can make it—others do." He brushes off the possibility of earning higher salaries in high-tech careers with the comment, "Money isn't my number-one priority. I just want to make enough to farm, be happy and enjoy it. Besides," he added, "I can't stand inside jobs. I like nature and the sun."

A senior at Lancaster Mennonite High School, Daryl claimed, "I'm not a school freak. I'd rather be outside." Besides enjoying outdoor farm work, Daryl thrives on snow and water skiing, hunting and softball. During summer months, he plants 400 to 600 hills with cantaloupes.

Daryl figures his most important attribute is his ability to work hard. He admits, "Sure some of my friends who don't live on a farm, don't need to work as hard, but I'd rather work than sit around."

Although Daryl enjoys working, he admits, "I try not to let farming interfere with my social life. If anything gets cut out, it's my sleep. Weekends I don't get too much."

But that doesn't mean his work load suffers. He said, "If something needs to get done, than I'm willing to cut (my social life) if I have to."

"One thing I learned," he said, "You can't fall behind in your work. If you lose interest in farming, everything goes down hill fast.

"And another thing, you've got to make investments that will help you down the road. You often don't see quick results in farming."

Daryl is just one of the young fellows who is determined to farm. "I like the satisfaction working on the farm gives," he explained. "I like cows best and the field work and steers. There isn't much I don't like. I like being my own boss and working at home because you can come in any time and eat. It's just a great job."

MOST PENNSYLVANIA ICE CREAM IS TOPS

Prices of one-half gallon vanilla ice cream samples purchased from Pennsylvania stores varied from $1.69 to almost $4.00. These prices reflected the composition of milkfat and total solids and quality of vanilla flavor. There is a price, flavor and body to satisfy everyone. Generally the higher priced products were the highest in milkfat and total solids and only pure vanilla was used for flavoring. Results of testing and evaluation on 221 samples were sent to manufacturers. Net weights averaged about 2.40 pounds per half gallon and 85% of the samples were above 2.25 pounds. Milkfat content varied from about 10% to as high as 16% with an average of about 11.0%. Total solids content ranged from about 36% to more than 42%, but averaged about 39%. Flavor, body and texture evaluations were made. Trained dairy product judges rated 82% of the flavors in the acceptable to excellent range while 88% of the body and texture comments were acceptable to excellent. Generally, you get what you pay for, the higher the price, the better the flavor, body and texture.

Serving The Agricultural Industry For Over 20 Years

Lancaster County Schools Promote National FFA Week

BY LISA RISSER

LITITZ — This past week hundreds of thousands of high school students around the nation spread the word about their club. It is a club that is more than 60 years rich in history and teachings. It is a club that provides leadership development, career training, and social interaction for young people. It is called Future Farmers of America.

Member of the 8,000 chapters across the United States and in the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands celebrated National FFA Week from February 20 through today. The event is intended to create awareness of the organization as well as promote the food and fiber industry.

Students planned a campaign of events and promotions to draw attention to the national organization and their own chapter. At Garden Spot High School in New Holland, FFA members read agricultural related messages over the public address system each morning, distributed placemats to local restaurants, sponsored a recreational night for members and alumni and a buffet for faculty members and alumni.

Students at Solanco High School in Quarryville distributed placemats, had dress-up day where members wore their barn clothes, and created a display.

At Ephrata High School radio spots were sent to WIOV and WGSA, a colossal banner hung in the cafeteria, and a message broadcast on a data board.

"We're trying to show people that agriculture is changing and a lot of career opportunities are open in agriculture that are not related to farming," commented Michelle Arment, 16, of East Earl. Michelle is one of several Garden Spot FFA members reading announcements over the intercom. Others include Michael King, Laura Folker, Jim Shirk, and Kristin Chupp.

Chapter advisors received an idea packet from the national organization that outlines the steps members could take to participate in the week-long celebration. The booklet discusses how to organize, brainstorm, execute, and evaluate the campaign.

"We did most of it ourselves," said Kris Miller, 15, of Bartville. "We got some ideas from the booklet, and the rest we thought of."

Much of the campaign work was done at each school by committees. In Ephrata the chapter's officers did most of the planning with the work carried out by themselves and members of the junior class. Their planning began during Christmas break with an officer's meeting. One of their biggest challenges was assembling the giant poster that was hung in the cafeteria. It came in 12 sections, which was difficult to tape together. Perserverance paid off in the end and the result is an eye-catching message.

While the idea book contained several examples of announcements, at Garden Spot, new messages were created. "The kids helped to write the P-A messages," stated Clifford Day, advisor for the group. "Most of the ones who wrote them were the ones that presented them, although they did have a try-out to be certain they would come across okay."

The poster, placemats, pens, pins and various other promotional items were purchased through the national organization. Items were paid for with monies that the clubs had raised throughout the year. Garden Spot members conducted a Citrus Sale in December, where they earned most of their money.

The lobby display at Solanco High School was put together by Kris Miller, 15, of Bartville; Anna Marie Frey, 17, of Quarryville; and Tracey Landis, 17, of Quarryville. Kris was the chairman of the FFA Week Committee.

A display case depicting the non-farm activities of FFA was exhibited at Garden Spot High School.

Garden Spot FFA members Molly Wise, left, of Denver and Barb Snader, 18, of East Earl distributed placemats commemorating the week to local New Holland restaurants. Here they presented Marvin Weaver, assistant restaurant manager for Yoder's, with 200 placemats.

Store On Wheels For Those Who Shop At Their Door

Kevin Frymyer of Ephrata drives his van throughout Lancaster county to bring the store to the doors of his customers.

BY LOU ANN GOOD

PARADISE — A basket rests at the edge of a sidewalk leading up to a spacious farmhouse. Kevin Frymyer edges his International truck to a stop, picks up the basket and reads the note tucked inside.

Below the listed grocery items, a request is written, "Please put the butter in the refrigerator."

Kevin, better known to his customers as "the store man", delivers groceries and services to the doors, and in a few cases, to the refrigerators of his loyal customers.

"Most of my customers are Amish," he explains, "They live in the tourist section and many don't care to mingle with tourists, so they find shopping from me convenient."

Frymyer's van holds about 800 different items to satisfy the tastes of his customers.

His van holds about 800 items that include plenty of staples and taste-tempting goodies for potential customers. Among the closely stacked shelves, customers will find fresh citrus fruits, carrots and celery. Mostly, his customers stock up on cereals and bulk foods like flour and sugar, but frozen juices and ice cream are available to satisfy the sweet tooth.

Every week, Kevin maintains the same scheduled stops although the time may vary by an hour or two. Basically, he stocks the same inventory because he found that his customers prefer traditional foods and aren't eager to try new things.

His biggest competitor is the small country store, Kevin said. His prices are less than a convenience store and a little more than a small grocery. No minimum order is required for his weekly stops, but the average customer buys $30 to $40 weekly. He accepts coupons and offers a 5 to 7 percent discount when items are purchased by the case.

For the past two years, Kevin has steered his truck around the Lancaster countryside. He purchased the established route from Leaman Place Store which had it for 26 years. Since then, it has grown through word-of-mouth advertising.

Kevin serves his customers with a ready smile and trys to adapt his services to whatever they require. "Some like to chat, others are quiet. Some like to browse and choose, others hand me a list and let me pick it out." Regardless of their requests, Kevin brings the store to their door.

Mary Alice Fyock: The Professional Seamtress

BY LOU ANN GOOD

LITITZ — Have you always wanted to learn to sew? Perhaps, you've conquered basic steps but you're far from a professional seamstress. You dream of stitching tailored suits complemented with stylish blouses, ultrasuede belts and matching purses.

If you cherish those dreams, then Mary Alice Fyock is the person to see. She teaches extensively on all areas of sewing. During February through May, Mary Alice is slated to teach several sewing extension workshops at the Farm & Home Center in Lancaster.

Mary Alice is a peppy go-getter brimming with ideas on how to take the confusion out of following pattern directions. She said, "I spend days preparing for my classes, trying to foresee how the class will react to the project so I know what needs to be emphasized. And I always give plenty of handouts so students can refresh their memories by rereading my notes."

As Mary Alice flipped through the notebooks that she has compiled from her handouts, she admitted, "I have a secret desire to write a sewing textbook." This home economy graduate of Indiana University has an impressive start for her dream textbook. Her notebooks are neatly organized and illustrated with extensive details in every area of sewing.

With her husband, David, and three children, Amy, 14; Dean, 9; and Michael, 7, Mary Alice lives on a 75-acre Century Farm in Lititz. The house decor reflects Mary Alice's artistic touches. Stenciling and needlecrafts portray its owners' talents. "My life goes through stages," Mary Alice remarked. "I've had different interests which I've developed into curriculum and taught, but after a while I lose interest and go on to something else."

Regardless of her wavering interests in assorted crafts, sewing has remained constant. "I think sewing is my thing," she confided. "God gave me a natural ability to do it, so I use what I have and pass it on to others. I get a lot of joy out of helping others."

For years, Mary Alice has taught 4-H'ers and filled other volunteer positions. Acquaintances who are familiar with Mary Alice's dedication to helping others often question, "Why do you do it? You aren't getting paid for it."

Make an ultrasuede skirt that retails for $320. Mary Alice models hers and the silky, polyester blouse that she will help participants learn to do in another workshop. She holds her tailored jacket that features an ultrasuede collar.

"Since I got my own sewing room with a sewing grainboard and other sewing essentials at my fingertips, I get a lot more sewing done," said Mary Alice.

Ultrasuede scraps make a one-of-a-kind sweat shirt for Mary Alice's five-year-old son.

But Mary Alice adamently defends her loyalty to sharing her sewing expertise. She said, "I get a lot of pride and accomplishment out of seeing 4-H'ers sew something and feel they've done a good job." She pauses, grins mischieviously and adds, "That doesn't mean I don't enjoy being paid for teaching sewing."

Mary Alice admitted that some people think she is wasting her education by teaching only on a part-time basis. But Mary Alice disagrees. "I enjoy my life," she said. She appreciates the opportunity to be home with her children, to manage her own schedule, to do the things she enjoys. She explains, "I teach enough to keep me motivated."

As an eight-year-old, Mary Alice began her own journey in sewing. "My mother worked. I don't recall ever watching her sew,

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Backgrounded by snow-capped craggy peaks and white-iced pines, a colorfully clad figure hurtles itself down the bumpy, steep, slippery side of a mountain. And the eyes of the world focus on a high-rise, downhome, cowtown nestled at the foot of the Canadian Rockies.

The spirit of Calgary has held our prime time television attention these last two weeks, just as it has millions of households worldwide. For brief moments, our jaded weariness with election year political bashing, government-official corruptions, and stockmarket shakiness is displaced as we share through a screen the courage, dedication, glamour, and disappointments of our Olympians.

Olympic fever always bring to mind comparisons of these athletes with the rigors exercised daily by another group of rugged individuals, who daily battle fickle elements and contending teams of high cost, low return, stagnant markets and the whims of world trade.

The American Farmer is an Olympian of his own sort.

In our tiny corner of competition in these production games, we are presently holding time trials for the annual Mud-lympics events.

Mud-lympics are held seasonally, as winter buildup of frost goes out of the ground and leaves the playing fields a sticky, mushy, messy consistency of ooze.

Slide and Balance is an individual event, open to both men and women. Just as it wreaks havoc with winds on the Olympic ski runs and jumps, Nature's fickleness weaves an element of danger through this competition. The cross-country run threads through alternating patches of frozen-tundra-like terrain and protected, sun-splashed corners of precarious footing through melting stretches of bottomless mud.

Worn-soled footgear is part of the required equipment; anything over one-hundredth inch of tread is subject to disqualification. Ability to remain on one's feet while traversing this treacherous, changing course is enhanced by years of mud-layered experience. Extra weights are required, preferably a bag of feed or square, solid hay bale.

Grace and style, plus a bit of ballet training, enhance chances in the Reach Out and Touch The Mailbox freestyling. Footgear is critical; no boots allowed, just fluffy slippers or ancient, air-conditioned tennis shoes.

Contestants traverse a roadside field of thawed mud, then reach across a two-foot-wide stretch of icy, roadside runoff gurgling along the postal delivery vehicle's tracks. Favorite maneuver is a version of the popular Hammil-Camel iceskating stance, one leg stretched while balancing single-footed on the other, arm outreached toward the mailbox, across the stream of bubbling water. Judged on both technical and artistic merit.

Offering the breakneck excitement on bobsled and luge is the Farmlane Course, run in weight classes for appropriate wheeled vehicles. Classes include those for milk tanker and feed trucks, four-wheel pickups, and farm wives' cars running the endless trips full of kids headed to school, practice, 4-H or car pool.

Years of training come into play to maintain vehicle speed through rutted path, tight cornering on turns, skirting waterholes and holding mud-splattering to below the chrome strip halfway up the side panels of the doors.

A companion event is the Wash The Mud Off The Vehicle Before It Sun-Bakes Fast To The Exterior Team Relay. Except, in most cases, the team vanishes and only the driver is left holding the bucket and hose.

Lasting continuously through the many days (weeks?) of Mud-lympics is a primarily-women's event, the Wipe The Mud From The Floor Marathon. Contestants are generally well-practiced, having spent previous weeks honing their technique through the Wipe The Snow From The Floor Preliminaries.

As the Olympics wind down and the Mud-lympics (eventually) dry up, interest and training will turn toward the next major seasonal athletic highpoint, based on recent years of weather experience.

The mid-July Dust Derby.

so I taught myself," she said. Later she supplemented her sewing skills by taking 4-H classes in sewing.

"When I was a kid, I thought everybody could sew," Mary Alice remarked, but after years of experience, she has changed her mind. "I'd estimate 75% of my students cannot pick up a pattern, read it, and sew it. They must have someone else show they how it is done." But sewing techniques can be acquired. "The more people sew, the better they get and the more confidence they develop."

There's nothing Mary Alice would like better than to help transform a "I'd like to sew person" into a capable, satisfied seamstress. The workshops listed below enable her to make that desire come true. Mary Alice maintains, "Extension classes are a great bargain for the consumer. The same type classes offered in Washington D.C. and other cities charge $80 that the extension offers for $5 to $25." For more information, call the extension office 717 394-6851.

The Search Is On

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The entry period has officially opened for the 38th National Chicken Cooking Contest and the search is on for the next $10,000 chicken recipe.

According to the National Broiler Council, contest sponsor, anyone may enter a recipe in the competition and the only required ingredient is chicken — whole or any part or parts. Deadline for entries is October 15.

A new national chicken cooking champion will be chosen at the Cook-Off on May 25, 1989, in Hershey. Fifty-one finalists — one from each state and the District of Columbia — will be selected to receive expense-paid trips to the national Cook-Off where they will compete for a total of $20,000 in prizes. A panel of well-known food experts will select the winners. Recipes are judged on taste, appearance, simplicity and appeal.

Entry blanks are available at various locations but are not required. Those who enter should write their name, address and telephone number on the front of each recipe submitted and mail before October 15 to:

Chicken Contest
Box 28158 Central Station
Washington, DC 20005

The chicken cooking contest is one of the nation's oldest food competitions, dating back to 1949. Top prize in the last Cook-Off went to the Connecticut finalist who won $10,000 for Chicken Avocado Melt, a creative dish made with boned chicken breasts.

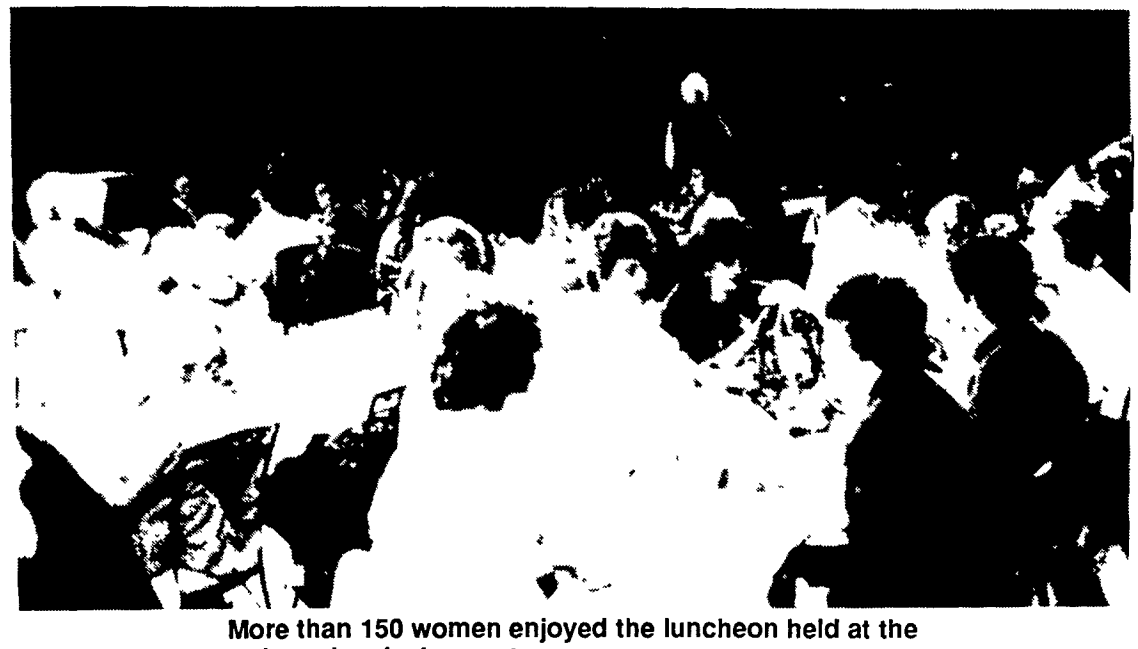
Ladies' Day At The Pennsylvania Holstein Convention

BY LOU ANN GOOD

This is the team that headed the committees that put the Ladies' Day Program together. Dorothy Frey (right) was chairperson and her daughter Susan Howard was general co-chairperson. Both are from Willow Street. Dorthy has been attending the conventions for 28 years. She said, "You always meet someone new and the programs are so stimulating."

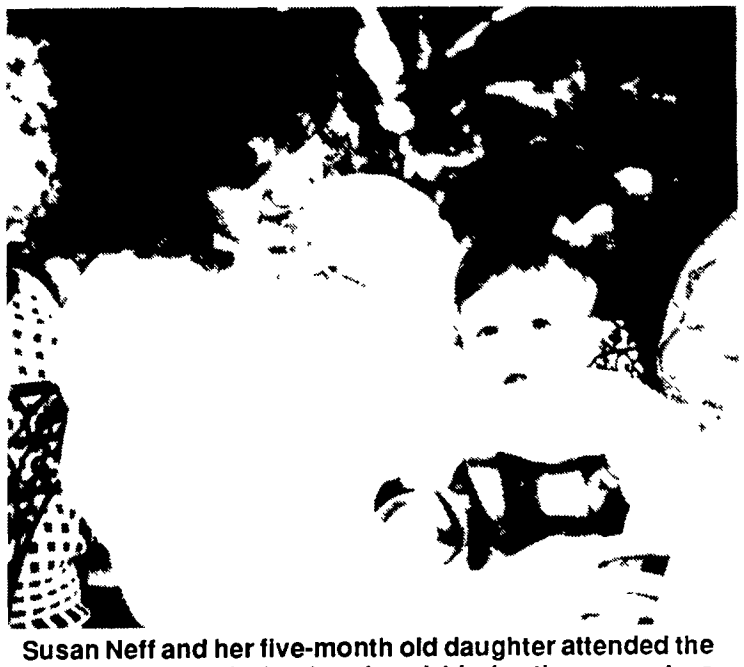
Her daughter agrees by saying, "This is really where our interests lie since we are Holstein farmers."



More than 150 women enjoyed the luncheon held at the Treadway Inn in Lancaster.

Bertha Reppert, of the Rosemary House in Mechanicsburg, enthusiastically presented tidbits of advice for health, beauty and nutrition by using herbs.

Deb Brubaker, Mount Joy, and her daughter Heather greeted the ladies that attended the state Holstein convention on Wednesday. Both served as models for the fashion show that was part of the program.



Susan Neff and her five-month old daughter attended the convention. Susan's husband and his brother operate a partnership farm of 280 acres in Lycoming county. She said, "We were originally from Quarryville so we like seeing our old friends again."

Doris Schaffer, Elizabethville, said that this convention was the first one she has attended. "I love it." She said, "We go from one thing to another."

A lucky winner of a centerpiece admires the handiwork that The Rosemary House in Mechanicsburg put into it.

Cart Smart Shopping Tours

BY LOU ANN GOOD

LANCASTER — Are you concerned about high cholesterol, but confused about the terminology that surrounds this highly publicized subject? If so, Cart Smart Shopping is for you.

The American Heart Association started this innovative program that places you in a local grocery store for about one and one-half hours with a registered dietition who will take you on a guided tour showing you how to buy heart healthy foods.

Lee Glatfelter, registered dietition for chapter headquarters, is overseeing the event in the southeastern Pennsylvania area. Lee has a reason to be concerned with the danger high cholesterol diets pose. Her husband died from a coronary at 40 years of age. She said although she was a dietition, she worked with a company that emphasized rich foods and she did not have much awareness of prevention diets. Her husband's death kindled a desire to research the cholesterol dilemna. Glatfelter returned to school for her master's degree that enabled her to do research on the subject for six years at the College of Medicine in Cincinatti. She has an additional six years with the heart association. Consequently, Lee has a firm grasp on understanding how saturated, polyunsaturated and monounsaturated fats affect our bodies.

Cholesterol is a fat-like waxy substance required by the body in small amounts, but too much can cause high blood pressure and increase the risk of heart attacks, strokes and kidney disease. When eaten in the proper proportion with other foods, polyunsatuated fats can adhere to cholesterol and help eliminate excessive amounts.

If you a "real dairy product loyalist", don't worry. Glatfelter won't insist you remove those products from your diet. She maintains that non dairy products like creamer and whipped topping are actually more satuated with fats than real dairy products. She recommends low-fat dairy products and she allows occasional indulgence in foods that are high in cholesterol. "Moderation is the key," she reports.

While modifying eating habits, some feel they are denied good tasting food, but Glatfelter said, "When people eat foods that contribute to heart healthy diets, they feel better and eating right becomes a habit."

"Cholesterol buildup is a long and gradual process. You don't feel it until arteries are 70-90% clogged," Glatfelter said. "Everybody should be aware of their cholesterol levels by having them checked at least every 5 to 10 years."

Participants of the cart smart shopping tours will learn to select foods low in sodium, fat and cholesterol; read food labels for nutritional content; prepare heart healthy meals and identify foods that meet the American Heart Association guidelines and attain more nutrition for your food dollar.

Tour participants receive an extensive packet of information that includes recipes, nutritional information, a grocery guide, coupons for dairy food and much more. The tour fee is $10 per person. To register for a Cart Smart Shopping Tour, contact your local American Heart Association office.

Here's a hot idea: Place a few heavy sheets of foil under your ironing board cover. The foil acts as a reflector and will actually keep the ironing surface hotter, longer. The added heat will make your ironing easier and faster.

Need a shirt ironed quick? Here's a few shortcuts you can use when cramped for time. First, iron the collar, then the sleeves and shoulders. Next, iron the left front—the side with the buttonholes. Finally, iron the back of the shirt. It should fit perfectly on the wide end of the ironing board and can be done in two "moves".

Need a hammer and chisel to take starch off your iron? Not anymore. If starch sticks to your iron, put two tablespoons of salt onto a piece of paper and rub the iron over it. The starch comes off like magic. If you scorch an article while ironing it, just wet it, apply cornstarch to the spot and rub in well. Allow this spot to dry.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Airville Community Club

The January Airville 4-H meeting was a phone-in meeting. Members called leaders to confirm information about their 1988 projects and to offer suggestions for trips. Ideas include going to Gettysburg and Philadelphia and to Baltimore for a baseball game.

Becca Hunsicker of Yardley holds her sleepy puppy, Daphne.

Bucks County Seeing Eye Puppy Club

As part of "Colgate's Youth For America" campaign, members of the Bucks County 4-H Seeing Eye Puppy Club held a "baby shower" in late January in Doylestown.

Members bought and wrapped baby gifts, decorated the room, and opend the gifts with their puppies. The gifts were donated to the Needlework Guild of America in Southampton to be distributed to unwed and needy mothers.

Southeast Regional Teen Weekend

Six Bucks County 4-H members attended the Southeast Regional 4-H Teen Weekend at Camp Tel Hai in Honeybrook (Chester). The weekend focused on mental health and physcial fitness activities for teenagers.

Attending were Ann-Marie Dickson, 17, Richboro; Katherine Hermann, 16, Perkasie; Richard Schofield, 17, Morrisville; Janice Lunova, 16, Churchville; Karen Lunova, 18, Churchville; and Meg Montgomery, 14, Doylestown.

Workshops included stress reduction, building self esteem, and nutrition needs. The attendees participated in a "Winter Olympics" planned by Dickson and Hermann.

Lehigh County Potato Judging

Four Lehigh County 4-H members composed the state's first-place potato judging team. The members are Travis Fink, Germansville; Lee and Scott Ringer, Schnecksville; and Duane Wanamaker, Kempton.

Duane was second high individual, while Scott placed third in the individual standings. The contest consists of identifying potato defects and diseases, judging potatoes, and a timed grading of potatoes.

Northern Berks Dairy Club

The first meeting in 1988 of the Northern Berks 4-H Dairy Club was held late last month. Michael Davis, acting president called the meeting to order. All members received notebooks and new project books.

New officers were elected, they are: Michael Davis, Leesport, president; Brad Werley, Hamburg, [illegible] president; Sandy Gross, Ham[illegible], secretary; Angela Werley, [illegible]burg, treasurer; Amy Phillips, Mohrsville, news reporter; Jennifer Davis, Leesport, Scrap Book.

Members discuessed entering [illegible] carton boat race at the [illegible]ival held at Gring's Mill [illegible]e summer. Sweatshirts, T-[illegible], and jackets were ordered for [illegible] member.

ANNEX A
AMENDED QUARANTINE ORDER

WHEREAS, the Varroa mite has been found in Florida, Indiana, Maine, Michigan, Mississippi, Nebraska, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, and Wisconsin, and

WHEREAS, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture hereby declares that the Varroa mite when introduced into a colony of bees is a serious threat to the health and survival of the colony; and

WHEREAS, there is evidence that the movement of honey bees by man contributes substantially to the spread of the Varroa mite; and

WHEREAS, a quarantine order was issued by the Department on October 14, 1987 restricting the movement of honey bees into, out of and within the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and

WHEREAS, as a result of surveys made by the Department to detect the Varroa mite in the Commonwealth and the depopulation of those colonies where the mite was found to exist, the Department now considers the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to be free of the Varroa mite

NOW, THEREFORE, THE PENNSYLVANIA DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE pursuant to the authority granted by Section 3 of the act of April 6, 1921 (P L 95, No 56) (3 P S SS 691-704), as amended by the act of September 10, 1965 (P.L 513, No. 260), promulgates the following amended quarantine order to prevent the reintroduction of the Varroa mite into the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania

For the purpose of this order Varroa mite shall mean the insect scientifically known as Varroa jacobsoni Oudemans

1 The transportation or movement of honey bees into the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is prohibited without a certification issued by the state entomologist or appropriate official of the state of origin that the bees in question are free of the Varroa mite

2 The transportation or movement of bees out of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania from their present location is prohibited without a certification issued by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture that the bees in question are free of the Varroa mite

3 Beekeepers will maintain adequate and complete records of all bees that they acquire or dispose of during the pendency of this Amended Order

4 The Department of Agriculture shall conduct surveillance throughout Pennsylvania as deemed necessary to detect the presence of the Varroa mite It is the duty of every person having information of the existence of the Varroa mite in Pennsylvania to report that information to the Department

5 This Amended Order is hereby adopted on February 18, 1988 and is effective immediately and shall remain in effect until further Notice This Amended Order supersedes the Order issued on October 14, 1987

SLICK CONCRETE CAN BE ROUGHENED

SCABBLING is an effective way to avoid unnecessary losses of cattle. The SCABBLER makes bands about two inches wide approximately 1/8" to 3/16 in. depth. This gives sufficient area for good footing while allowing you to scrape the smooth surface as before. It is near enough to the surface to give your cows full advantage of the roughness and deep enough to remain effective for years. It greatly aids in heat detection.

And the good news is that it is reasonably priced. You have the choice of doing it yourself or having us do it for you. We offer service right to your door. Call us for more details.

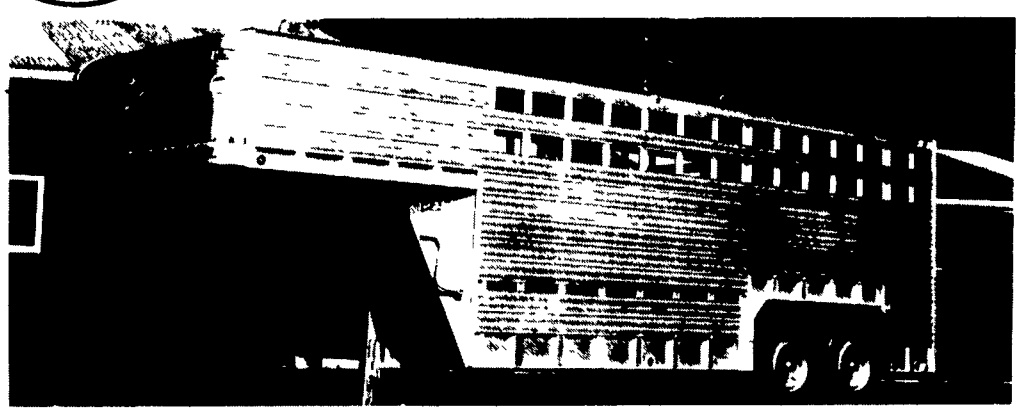
ALUMINUM GOOSENECK TRAILERS



20' Gooseneck Trailer

A versatile, lightweight, Eby aluminum stock trailer is built to provide years of maintenance free service. An Eby trailer is custom built to fit your individual hauling needs - No mass production! We use only quality components and strong alloy aluminum to manufacture what may be the last trailer you'll ever buy.

- LIGHTWEIGHT - Eby stock trailers are 25-35% lighter than comparable steel trailers. Less weight means better fuel mileage or increased payload.
- MAINTENANCE - Eby aluminum trailers won't rust. Welding and painting can cost you dollars in down time and repairs.
- DURABILITY - Eby trailers are built tough. Quality components and 6061 alloy aluminum provide the ruggedness required in a livestock trailer.

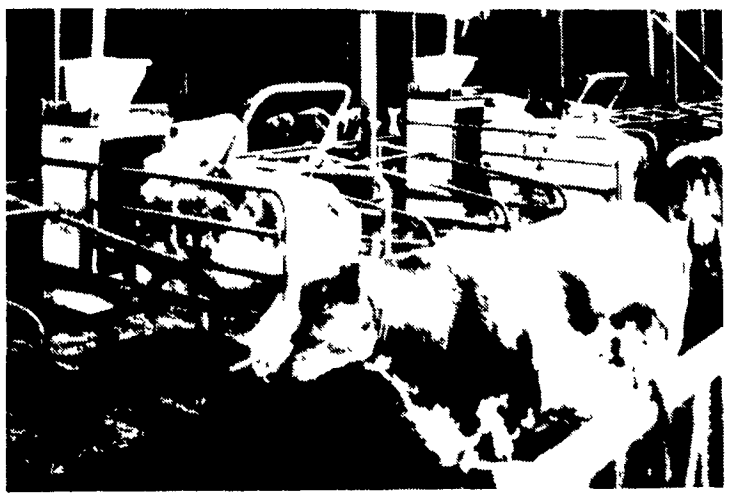
Vicon Introduces Automated Concentrate Feeding System

CAMBRIDGE, ONTARIO — Vicon has launched a new automated concentrate feeding system that significantly reduces concentrate costs and labor input while increasing milk yield per cow. Based on a "feeding for production" strategy, the VA 500 modular system is completely self-contained and does not require complicated and expensive computer support systems.

One feeding station handles up to 30 cows. To expand the system, add-on substations connect to the master to a maximum 20 stations for a 600 cow herd. cows are recognized as they enter a feeding station by their coded responder collar. The microprocessor, an integral part of the master feeder station, instructs the feeder to dispense the concentrate ration at eating speed, based on the requirement for each individual cow over a 24 hour period. Feeding "little and often" eliminates stressful "rush hours" and ensures optimum feed utilization without the danger of slugging and butter fat depression.



Vicon's automated feeding system reduces concentrate costs and labor input while increasing milk yield per cow.

Operation of the system is as simple as keying a calculator. Each cow's ration is based on her lactation curve and can be amended in seconds to balance consumption to actual milk production. An alarm system identifies cows who consume less than 70% of the allowed ration in any 24 hour period.

With the VA 500, the whole herd can be housed together. Individual "on demand" feeding, rather than group feeding, provides an even finer management of concentrate use, higher production and greater control of herd health. Users are reporting a one to two year payback period.

For Vicon better known for specialized forage harvesting and crop cultivation equipment, the VA 500 concentrate feeder marks the first stage of research and development to perfect a fully automated dairy parlour.

A minimum of breakdowns and stoppages allows producers to make the most of the few good days available during spring planting season. Be sure to examine the metering and seed selection mechanisms for worn or broken parts.

Planter Maintenance Is A Smart Move

RACINE, Wisc. — Proper planting is the first step to top crop yields and healthy profits. That is why the planter is one of the most important machines a farmer owns.

Getting the planter in top shape should be on every producer's checklist of spring planting preparations, says Joe Neville, Case IH produce manager, crop production and tillage equipment.

A few simple maintenance steps are a great insurance policy against downtime during the brief but busy planting season, according to Neville.

"Manufacturers have kept planter designs simple," Neville states, "and all planters are designed to deposit seed in the ground accurately." Therefore, the producer's role is to understand the machine's function and then to properly maintain it.

Neville suggests the following steps:

Start with the metering mechanism. The seed selection mechanism should be examined for worn or broken parts.

On air-type planters

• Check for damaged or poorly fitting seals that could cause air pressure leaks.

• Clean seed tubes by pulling a cloth through the tube. This rids the tube of foreign material which can create stoppages.

• Inspect the seal around the seed drum and the rubber seed release wheels. Replace if cracked or worn.

• Check seed cutoff brush and brush rollers for wear. Replace with complete assembly if necessary.

On plate-type planters

• Replace worn or sticky cutoff pawls and knockout rollers. Be sure that the pawls work freely and that the springs are in good condition.

• Check the center bearing for wear. A worn bearing results in excessive play between the seed plate and the sides of the hopper bottoms. This causes variation in the size of the cell.

• Empty the hopper periodically to remove dirt, dust and chaff accumulations which can hamper smooth operation of the hopper parts.

• Take the time to properly match seed size with seed plates.

Two other areas should be given extra attention, Neville advises: planter drive tires should be checked for proper air pressure, and wheel slippage should be considered. Seed population charts are based on a wheel slippage factor on field tests in normal field planting conditions. However, there are a number of factors that can affect slippage:

• Tires with low pressure will increase the planting rate.

• Soft of cloddy soil conditions will usually increase wheel slippage and decrease the planting rate.

• In hard, cloddy soil conditions, increased spring pressure on fertilizer and seed opener units is usually required. This will reduce pressure on drive wheels and could further decrease the planting rate.

Careful maintenance will reduce the problems caused by seed size variation. Air planters can be adjusted easily to take into account the size of the seeds which will be planted. On the Case IH Cyclo® Air planters, for example, the air pressure and brush settings should be matched with the size of the seeds.

Agway Establishes New Swine Business Unit

SYRACUSE, NY — A new swine business unit has been established within Agway Feed Services to provide a full-service program to the Northeast swine industry.

Robert L. Steele is manager of the new swine unit headquartered in southcentral Pennsylvania. A seasoned Agway manager, Steele has experience in field technical work, Agway research and technical development, and Feed Services.

Agway has developed a new Pro:Lean feed line designed to obtain optimum performance and feed efficiency for swine producers. The new swine program also includes financial-assistance programs with deferred payments and contracts for hog production and expanded technical assistance in developing swine-feeding programs, management, and hog marketing.

"This is a long range swine development program to help farmers take advantage of the latest in feed efficiency and management techniques," Steele says. "With the establishment of the new swine business unit, Agway becomes the most complete supplier of swine enterprise production needs in the Northeast."

Steele reports that the new Agway Pro:Lean swine feeds have been formulated to provide maximum economic returns for hog producers. New high protein hog concentrates are also available fortified with higher levels of calcium, phosphorous, vitamins, and minerals for mixing with home-grown grains.

Steele says there is much potential for increased swine production in the Northeast. That potential can be translated into profits by hog producers who take advantage of the new technology, feeds, and superior management practices available.

Hoffman Seeds Alfalfas Top NY Trials

LANDISVILLE — Two Hoffman seeds proprietary alfalfas -- Emerald and Maxim -- topped their trials in the New York Forage and Grassland Council Trials. It marks the second consecutive year that Hoffman alfalfas have led the trials, which are conducted in cooperation with Cornell University.

In heading its class, Emerald produced yields five percent better than the mean, while Maxim finished second with four percent better than mean yields. Each of those results represents an equivalent of more than 500 lbs. per acre of extra forage. Both varieties were one of only a few to produce 100 percent or better than check varieties in all trial locations

Hoffman Seeds, Inc. markets a variety of farm seed products for Eastern agriculture including Funk's G-Hybrid corn.

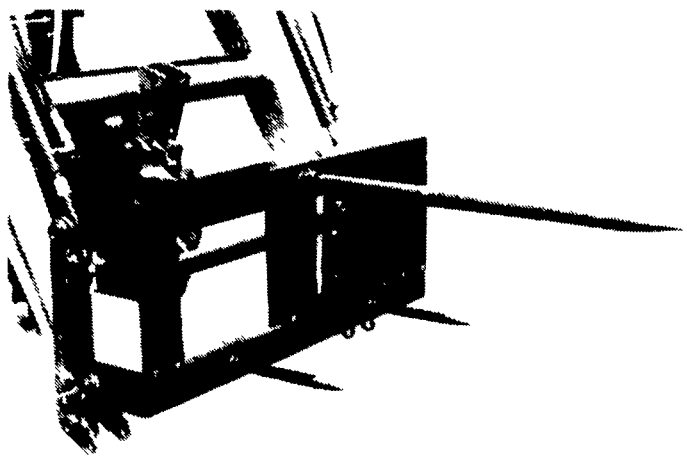
Work Faster With Bush Hog's New Loader Attachments

MOBILE, AL — Bush Hog's new bale spear turns loaders into round bale movers while the company's new quick attachment system for loader components makes it possible to change loader attachments in seconds, according to Robert O. Moore, vice president, sales.

"The new loader attachment and the new bale spear make out material handling line, which was already one of the largest in the industry, an even bigger winner," said Moore. "These tools help save time and manpower."

The quick attachment system for components can be used with Bush Hog's 2400, 2640 and 3450 loader models, which fit more than 500 tractor models. With the quick attachment system installed, one person can change buckets or any other attachments by removing and installing just two pins.

The spear can be attached to the quick attachment system, to any of Bush Hog's five quick attaching loaders or to loaders made by many other manufacturers. Its three spears are arranged in a triangular pattern for stable bale transport over rough terrain and they are tapered for easy penetration and withdrawal.



This attachment has three spears arranged in a triangular pattern for stable bale transport.

The bale spear's frame is built from heavy-duty 4x4 tubing that is welded for strength and durability. The lower spears are 1¼ inches in diameter and the upper spear is two inches in diameter.

"Bush Hog has established a reputation in the industry for providing its customers with dependable, durable implements," Moore said. "The bale spear's strength and the quick attachment system's versatility are just the latest example of how Bush Hog dealers and customers are winning with quality."

Kellogg Discontinues Negative Food Service Advertising

PARK RIDGE, IL — The Kellogg Company has ceased its foodservice advertising, which implied eggs are a major contributor to heart disease. The American Egg Board's action to mount an egg industry letter-writing campaign created the pressure credited with causing Kellogg's decision to withdraw the offensive ads.

In a letter to AEB President Lou Raffel, Kellogg expressed regrets for "the misunderstanding" and said the ads were "in no way intended to stress negatives directed at any specific food." They indicated that the ads in question would be discontinued.

Kellogg's decision was undoubtedly influenced by AEB's action along with that of United Egg Producers, Egg Nutrition Center and the many other egg industry sources who wrote to Kellogg protesting the negative implications directed at eggs in its foodservice advertising. In addition to letters, thousands of preprinted postcards were distributed by AEB to egg-industry personnel.

AEB and the Egg Nutrition Center will closely watch Kellogg's new multi-million dollar consumer advertising campaign. The new advertising has been designed to educate consumers to lower their blood cholesterol levels. The egg industry agrees with the need to reduce blood cholesterol levels of people at risk of heart disease. However, AEB and ENC want to make sure Kellogg doesn't include misleading statements about the role of dietary cholesterol and eggs in its consumer advertising.

Agland Preservation Foundation Preserving More Than Ever

ANNAPOLIS, MD. — According to the 1987 Annual Report recently submitted to Governor William Donald Schaefer, Maryland's Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation program is preserving more farmland than ever before in its ten-year history while at the same time facing an ever-increasing challenge in saving Maryland's fast-disappearing prime farmland.

Created in 1977 to oversee the preservation of Maryland farm and woodland, the foundation celebrated its tenth anniversary by breaking all records for the number of new preservation districts established in a year--153--and placing over 60,000 acres in perpetual easement since the program began purchasing easements in 1980.

During 1987, the Easement Acquisition Program cost $8.8 million in state funds, plus $1.7 million in county funds, for an average acquisition cost of $756 per acre. Of the 142,530 acres currently protected, land use figures show 63 percent in cropland, 13 percent in pasture, 20 percent in woodland, and four percent in other uses.

In keeping with the state's commitment to restore Chesapeake Bay, since 1985 program participation has required design and implementation of a soil conservation and water quality plan for every farm accepting an easement purchase. Soil conservation and water quality plans are currently in effect on 67 percent of existing districts, which is an increase of three percent over FY86 and nine percent over FY85 totals.

However, in spite of being the most successful program in the country, Maryland's farmland preservation efforts have not kept pace with the conversion of farmland to suburbia. In fact, the gap continues to widen between acres saved and acres lost to development. Using current figures, the state has been losing an average of over 18,000 acres per year while preserving almost 9,000 acres. At this rate, approximately 240,000 acres of farmland could be lost by the year 2000, and only 114,000 acres preserved, a net loss of about 125,000 acres.

Although the foundation is proud of the progress made in the past ten years, more must be done if Maryland's farmland is to be preserved for future generations. The foundation will continue in its efforts to preserve precious farmland for the future.

For further information or for a copy of the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation's Annual Report, contact Gerald F. Talbert, Executive Director, Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation, Maryland Department of Agriculture, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD 21401, or call at 841-5860.

Look For Information On Meats In Stores

UNIVERSITY PARK — In celebration of National Meat Month, supermarkets and meat retailers are featuring information about the nutritional value and the place of red meats in your diet. Lean cuts of beef, pork, lamb and veal are low in fat, low in calories, high in protein, iron, zinc and B vitamins, and have a cholesterol content equivalent to poultry.

Various retail meat stores will be featuring bargains on lean and trim red meat products and introducing new convenience foods, such as low-fat, low-salt and low-calorie deli and luncheon meats.

National Meat Month is sponsored by the American Meat Institute, the National Pork Producers Council, the Beef Board and the Beef Industry Council.

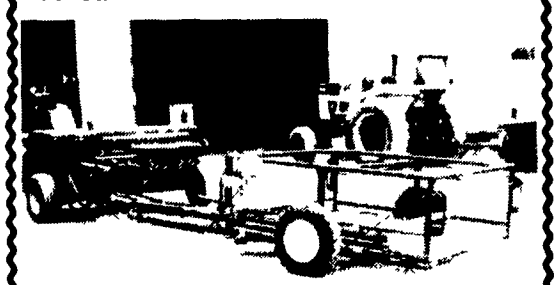
Bale Accumulator

The Steffen Systems Bale Accumulator conveniently and easily packages up to ten 2-tie bales or eight 3-tie bales into a uniform arrangement which can easily be handled by one of the Steffen Systems loaders. The fully automatic electric over hydraulic controls operate the accumulator without the need of an operator. With its quick and smooth functions, there is no need to slow down the baler to allow for proper functioning of the machine. Also available for use in 2-tie bales is an optional tie bar.



Eliminate HAND LABOR into & out of storage. Systems custom designed to your needs.

Dairymen: Now you have choices in mating programs tailored to fit your herd improvement needs.

Linear-Mate S — established through years of experience and nearly 150,000 cows as the elite AI mating service, involving a personal review of each cow and sires recommended by trained Atlantic Linear-Mate Specialists.

New: Linear-Mate C — professional evaluation by our Linear-Mate Specialist, followed by unbiased computer-generated sire recommendations for each cow.

New: TRAIT-MATE — convenient, timely evaluation by dairyman and/or Technician-DHR to determine up to two faults to improve on each cow and receive computerized sire recommendations from a list of bulls you pre-select.

New: HERD-MATE — dairyman and/or Technician-DHR identify herd needs, then our computer provides a list of recommended sires as reference for individual mating selections when cows are bred.

All are priced and programmed to fit your particular needs.

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

Microwaving rice is convenient and easy, but it takes as long as the standard range-top method.

There's no worry of scorching when using your microwave. If rice boils over, clean-up is easy — just a swish of the dish cloth wipes up spills. And, at the end, there's no sticky pan to scrub.

Microwave cooking time varies for regular, instant and brown rice. Regular rice is cleaned and has the hull and outer bran removed during milling. Qften, additional vitamins are added to produce "enriched rice." Regular long-grain rice is best for fluffy rice that separates into kernels. It's ideal for side dishes to serve with meat, chicken, fish or stir-fry vegetables. Microwave it according to directions below. Regular short-grain works well for rice pudding and usually needs slightly longer microwaving time and more liquid to make it softer and creamier.

Instant (or precooked) rice needs less cooking time and moisture. (The most common brand is "Minute Rice.") I usually add less water than package directions and microwave slightly less because I like fluffy drier kernels with a bit of texture. With my method, a five-minute standing time (with rice tightly covered) is necessary in order to achieve texture and proper doneness.

Brown rice has most of the outer layer of bran left on. When cooked, it has a chewy texture and a nut-like flavor. Contrary to popular belief, brown rice is not much more nutritious then enriched regular rice. It contains more potassium and phosphorus, but amounts of protein, calories and calcium are only slightly higher than in enriched regular rice. Brown rice needs about double the microwaving time of regular rice.

If you cook too much rice, don't worry. Microwave reheating or thawing rice is fast and gives perfect results. There's no need to add extra water — just reheat (or heat and thaw in one step) on High in a tightly covered dish. To thaw 2 cups rice: Microwave on Medium (50 percent power, 325-350 watts) 2 to 4 minutes, breaking apart and stirring 1 or 2 times. To thaw and heat 2 cups rice: Place rice in microwavable dish; cover with plastic wrap. Microwave (High) 4 to 6 minutes or until hot, breaking apart and stirring 2 or 3 times.

To micro-cook raw regular or brown rice, use a 3 to 4-quart casserole and a loose-fitting lid (or vented plastic wrap) to help prevent rice from boiling over. Start microwaving on High and when water boils, reset microwave on a lower power. When time is up allow rice to stand, tightly covered, 5 to 10 minutes so it can finish cooking and fully absorb liquid.

Microwave rice according to directions below. Serve it plain under sauced or stir-fried foods. Or combine cooked rice with other ingredients to make Calcutta Rice or Charleston Rice (both below). Either is excellent with chicken or lamb and a green vegetable. Both recipes are adapted from the Rice Council of America.

Calcutta Rice

2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
1-2 teaspoons curry powder
½ -1 teaspoon lemon pepper
1 cup sliced celery
1 large apple, unpeeled, cored and cut in ½ -inch chunks
¼ cup sliced almonds
3 cups cooked rice

Stir together butter, curry powder and seasoned pepper in microwave-safe 2-quart casserole. Microwave (High) 30 to 45 seconds or until bubbly. Stir in celery, apples and almonds. Cover with waxed paper or lid and microwave (High) 3 to 4 minutes or until celery is barely tender-crisp. With a fork, stir in rice. Cover and microwave (High) 3 to 6 minutes (depending on temperature of rice) or until hot. Fluff with a fork. Makes 6 servings.

Each serving: 199 calories, 3g protein, 7g fat, 32g carbohydrate, 108mg sodium, 12mg cholesterol.

Charleston Rice

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup chopped celery
1 can (4 ounces) mushrooms, drained
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
¼ teaspoon salt (optional)
¼ teaspoon celery seed
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
3 cups cooked rice, cooked in chicken broth

Place butter, onion, green pepper and celery in microwave-safe 2-quart casserole; cover with waxed paper or lid. Microwave (High) 2 to 3 minutes or until vegetables are barely tender-crisp. Stir in remaining ingredients. Cover and microwave (High) 3 to 6 minutes (depending on temperature of rice) or until hot. Fluff with a fork. Makes 6 servings.

Each serving: 177 calories, 3g protein, 6g fat, 28g carbohydrate, 105mg sodium, 17mg cholesterol.

Introducing the Hesston Tilt-Tub Bale Processor!

Hesston has something new for feeding round bales! It's the Model BP-20 Tilt-Tub Bale Processor. A revolutionary machine loaded with new features that really make the difference!

Designed after the proven and popular tub grinder concept, this self-loading processor handles nearly any size of round bale. It's exclusive 90° tilting tub gives fast, easy bale pickup...and it feeds at a rate of 4 to 6 minutes per bale!

The rotating tub utilizes the bale's weight in processing instead of "fighting" the bale's weight. With this processor you can range feed or feed into bunks up to 48" high and vary cutting lengths to fit your feeding style!

See the "revolution" in action at your Hesston dealer now...the all-new Tilt-Tub Bale Processor!

Festival For Sheep Lovers

WEST FRIENDSHIP, Md. — The 15th annual Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival, May 7 and 8 at the Howard County Fairgrounds, West Friendship, Md., promises to be the best ever staged, according to Mary E.F. Streaker chairman. "Last year we had problems because of the snow-caused collapse of the principal building, she said, "but we rallied and sheathed the barns with plastic and still hosted more than 30,000 visitors, 120 crafts persons and 500 sheep. This year we have a beautiful new building and other fairgrounds facilities.

Sheep entries for both the shows and sale are due to Donald Sealing II by March 15. Mr. Sealing can be reached at 301-795-6955 Shows will include Border Leicester, Corriedale, Columbia and Romney purebreds, plus natural colored and white wool sheep. Ernest Hall, crafts booth sales coordinator, reports the new building is almost filled. To date 135 exhibitors have reserved space in one of the buildings. Applications will be accepted until all spaces are taken in either the buildings or barns. His phone number is 301-845-8744.

Deadlines for competitions will be listed in the catalog, scheduled to be mailed by March 1, according to Gwen Fisher, catalog chairman. Those who attended in past years will be included in the mailing.

The festival, sponsored by the Maryland Sheep Breeders Association, is designed to bring together producers and consumers to provide a market for live animals, fleeces for hand spinning and the crafts people who utilize and supply the products necessary to turn raw materials into finished products. Of interest are the various food booths serving lamb dishes and the lamb cook-off contest. Lamb cutting and cooking techniques will be demonstrated by a representative of the American Sheep Producers Council.

Two of the most popular events are sheep shearing and sheep dogs rounding up their woolly friends. A multiple winner of international sheep shearing competitions, Charles Swaim, Drakesville, Iowa, will show spectators why he is so adept at de-fleecing sheep in the twinkling of an eye. He also will assist in judging shearing contests. Sheep dog herding demonstrations will be conducted both days by Nathan Mooney, Carlisle, and his Border Collies.

Several seminars have been planned, Friday at 7 p.m. Dr. Scott Barao, extension livestock specialist, University of Maryland, will discuss computer application for record keeping and performance evaluation in the sheep flock. Saturday at 8 p.m. Peter Hagerty, Maine sheep farmer and originator of the Peace Fleece, will present slides of his trip through the Soviet Union. Through his efforts American wool and Soviet wool is blended, dyed and spun in the United States and marketed both in this country and Russia.

Sunday from 12:30 to 2 p.m., West Friendship 4-H club members will conduct an informal "drop in, learn to spin" session. At 1 p.m. Caye Speakman, well-known crafts person, will speak on fleece selection and preparation for spinning. She is an accomplished spinner and weaver. She will be followed at 3 p.m. by a seminar on knitting taught by Beth Brown Reinsel. Mrs. Reinsel is a teacher, designer, writer and organizer of the Harford County chapter of the Knitting Guild of America.

Expertise in spinning and weaving is not limited to the distaff side. To date, six teams have signed up to compete in the sheep to shawl contest--one team all male. Scheduled for 9:30 a.m. Saturday, each team will produce a shawl starting with shearing a sheep, carding and spinning the wool and weaving it into a shawl of pre-determined size.

Fleeces will be judged Saturday morning and many will be offered for sale. Other events include queen contest, junior spinning contest, feeder lamb show and sale, carcass lamb competition, fashion show and entertainment by dancers and musicians.

Further information may be furnished by committee chairmen, Chairman Mary Streaker, 301-321-1344, or public relations chairman Florence Hall, 301-845-8744.

LET'S TALK RESULTS...

"I'LL HAVE ENOUGH HAY TO LAST ME 2 OR 3 YEARS!!"

That's what Ivan Brubacher of Lancaster Co. had to say when he called to cancel his ad for hay wanted after the first week.

"I HAD SO MANY CALLS - ABOUT 18 OR 20 - FIXED ME RIGHT UP - GREAT COVERAGE!"

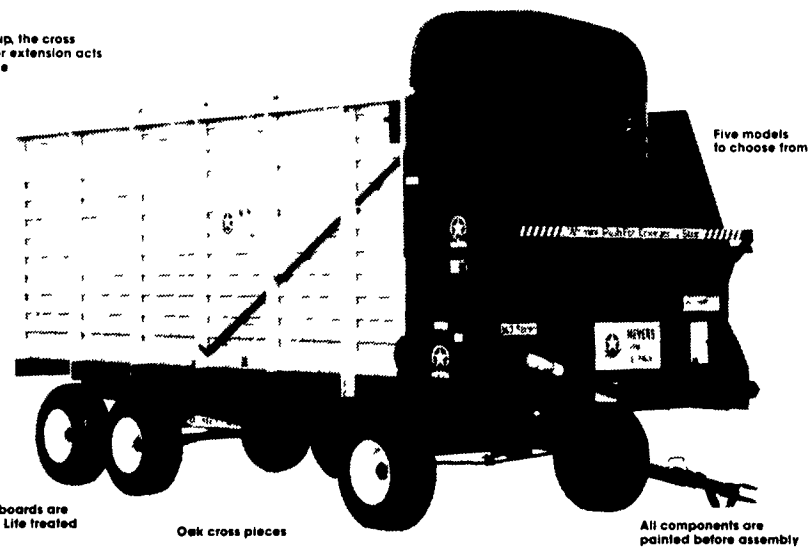
FOR A QUALITY BUILT FORAGE BOX... TRY A Meyer's

500 Series



Folded up, the cross conveyor extension acts as a gate
Five models to choose from Floor boards are Wood Life treated
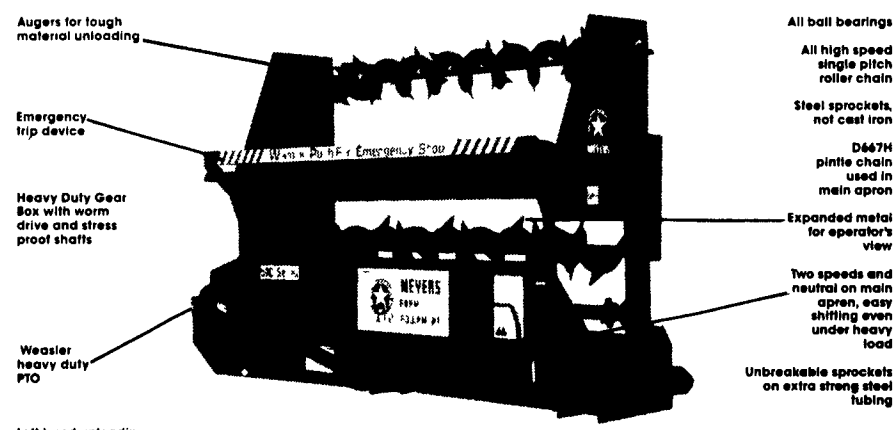
Oak cross pieces
All components are painted before assembly

The 500 Series Unloading Unit has most of the features used in the high-performance 600 Series Unit



Augers for tough material unloading
Emergency trip device
Heavy Duty Gear Box with worm drive and stress proof shafts
Weasler heavy duty PTO
All ball bearings
All high speed single pitch roller chain
Steel sprockets, not cast iron
D667H pintle chain used in main apron
Expanded metal for operator's view
Two speeds and neutral on main apron, easy shifting even under heavy load
Unbreakable sprockets on extra strong steel tubing

STEEL FRAME OR ALUMINIZED SELF UNLOADING FORAGE BOXES

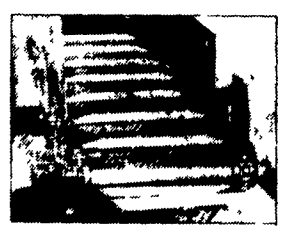
We're extra proud of this box — the design incorporates everything we've learned in over 30 years of Forage Box manufacturing

The 500 Series self unloading Forage Boxes are the latest word in utility convenience and durability.

All the smooth trouble-free performance you have come to expect of a Meyer Box is here plus new features that make it the easiest to use and maintain of any made.

Available as an all bolted and riveted steel frame or aluminized sided box. Both have hardwood bed pieces.

An important feature of all Meyer boxes is that all components are painted before assembly thus preventing hidden rot and rust for long life.



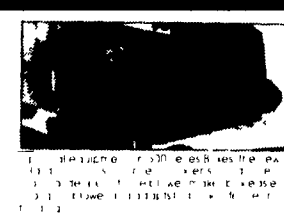
Optional Equipment

Fourth Auger
An optional fourth auger is available as an option for particularly light bulky loads. It's a big help in getting the most out of even unit loading.

Higher Sides
Adds nine inches to the standard sides.

Tie Down Kit
Used to fasten forage to stock running gear tops to keep from moving forward on hill but yet allows some movement up and down.

Optional All Steel Sides (steel frames only)
Heavy 20 gauge rust resistant Galvanneal steel sides with steel liner. The Meyer coat finish is a heat electrostatic applied for long life with 10 year limited warranty.



A standard cross conveyor extends 12 from side of box. The fold down extension adds another 12 inches.

There are so many more features we can't list them all. We urge you to compare before you buy — surely you want the best and Meyer's gives you the most value at an affordable price.

The 96 Series: Advanced Design In The Perfect Size

When your workload falls right in the middle, efficient performers like the 1896 and 2096 really pay off.

Powered by technologically advanced 5.9 liter six-cylinder diesel engines, the 1896 and 2096 pump out more fieldworking power than you'd expect from tractors in the 100-120 PTO hp (74.6 to 89.5 kW) class. The key is turbocharging on both models and aftercooling on the 2096. The state-of-the-art Intelligence Center and Silent Guardian cab complete the package.

So if your tractor demands fall somewhere between moderate and heavy, check out the 96 Series.. and discover the difference top technology can make.

3640 and 3650 ROUND BALERS

They Are Here! We Equip Our Big-Capacity Balers With Even Bigger Features... To Make Your Bales The Best!

The Right Features, The Right Baler. If you've ever had to unplug the throat of a troublesome baler, you know how important it is that material is allowed to enter the bale chamber freely

And that's exactly how the Case IH round balers are built Our open-throat design allows material unobstructed entry ot the bale chamber Even large clumps can pass through easily, because there are no rollers to mat windrows or slow the incoming flow .

But the high-maintenance parts of any round baler are its belts And it's here where Case IH round balers stand out.

Many competitive balers use very long belts that are spliced with wear-prone flexible lacing Case IH uses short, seamless, rubber-faced belts made with durable nylon cord Their 11-inch (279 mm) widths keep them in their tracks and cut down on maintenance In fact, our belts last up to 40 times longer than competitive spliced belts made of the same material

This is just a glimpse. If you have a feeling that the 3640 or 3650 might fit into your big-baling operation, we have a feeling that you're right

Check out the complete rundown on what our line-up can offer you, including the host of options that lets you tailor the 3640 or 3650 to your specific needs

No matter how you outfit a Case IH round baler, you'll be building a better bale

NEW SHUTTLE REVERSE TRANSMISSION

If you've ever been frustrated when looking for a tractor that suits your needs exactly, the CASE III 85 Series may be just what you need

For starters, this line covers a wide range of horsepower offerings The models include the 385 to 35 PTO hp (26 1 kW), the 485 to 42 PTO hp, the 585 at 52 PTO hp, the 685 at 62 PTO hp and the 885 at 72 PTO hp

The versatility continues at the front axle, where up to six different designs are available Every model can be equipped with Mechanical Front Drive (MFD), giving you added traction and maneuverability. Depending on the model, you can choose from these axles· MFD, utility, heavy-duty cast, low profile, swept-back or row-crop

Case IH offers a full line of loaders for the 85 Series, too Combine a loader with MFD on one of these tractors, and you'll make short work of big chores

Equip the 585, 685 or 885 with an available all-season cab, and you'll have a great place to work. With almost 30 sq ft. (2.79 m^2) of tinted glass, you'll see everything clearly Air conditioning and heater are standard, and the cab is seated on exclusive Isomounts® for quiet, vibration-free performance

Transmissions include a standard 8F/8R synchromesh, an optional 8F/8R power shuttle that allows rolling forward/reverse shifts, and an optional 16F/8R two-speed powershift with convenient toggle switch control (standard on 885).

The 485, 585 and 685 are available as Orchard/Vineyard Specials

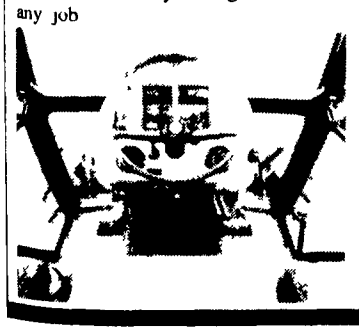
The 94 Series: Where Power Comes In Small Packages

You'll be amazed at how much productivity you can get out of these three mid-sized tractors. Every one of them offers the power and features you need to put nearly any job to rest.

Whichever model suits your demands, from the 65 PTO hp 1394 to the 75 PTO hp 1494 to the 85 PTO hp 1594, you'll be impressed with the level of standard and optional equipment available For instance, Mechanical Front Drive is an option that can enhance the performance of any of these models With the available cab, you can turn a 94 Series tractor into a comfortable, climate controlled workhorse. And by adding a Case III loader, you're set for nearly any job



The powertrain provides all the reliability and performance you expect from Case IH The standard 12-speed transmission gives you three forward speeds in each of four ranges, with on the go synchro shifting between second and third in each range For heavier loads, there's an available 12-speed powershift It provides four on the-go shifts in each of three ranges Both transmissions have four reverse gears.

When you add it all up, you'll find the 94 Series means mid sized tractors that perform in a big way

Check With Us For The Bale Chopper You Need For Commercial And Agricultural Uses

THE BALE CHOPPER IS THE GOOSSEN SOLUTION FOR LANDSCAPE, NURSERY AND BERRY MULCHING

Nursery
The Bale Chopper chops then blows straw around trees, bushes, on bedding areas or any place where you need mulch. Apply mulch with the 30' flexible hose; hand held as shown at right.

Berry Farming
The Bale Chopper is ideal for mulching strawberries or any row crow.

Residential & Commercial Landscaping
The Bale Chopper evenly applies straw over large areas, and is easy to use around trees, behind bushes, or in any hard to reach spot. And it takes the Bale Chopper less than a minute to thoroughly shred and distribute an entire bale, so even large mulching jobs are completeled quickly.

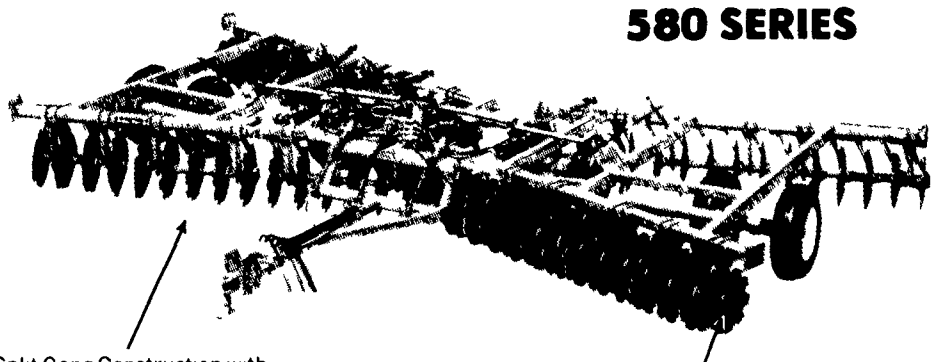
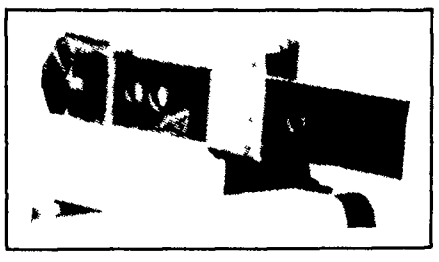
FLEXIBLE WHEEL TANDEM HARROW

580 SERIES



Split Gang Construction with more bearings eliminates axle stretch due to excessively long axles

1-1/8" or 1½" square axles and split gangs give ample strength and durability



Adjustable depth control holds the cutting depth constant Then simply lock bar for transport to eliminate wear and tear on hydraulic transport cylinders on those rough and rocky roads

Positive adjustment leveling, from front to rear is no problem Weight is shifted by these Spring Rods to produce a smooth finish

12'9" TRANSPORT WIDTH

17'5" to 31'4" CUTTING WIDTHS

Buy More Discs For The Dollar With Taylor-Way®

FLEXIBILITY

PRECISION ENGINEERED... FULLY FIELD TESTED!

THE NEW ROUND BALE WRAPPER
An Economical Efficient Method Of Making Silage

This is the Silawrap system:
- The lift-arm places the bale on the turn table.
- Silawrap film is then attached to one of the bale strings.
- As the turn table is rotating, the rollers will slowly turn the bale
- The Silawrap film is stretched around the bale overlapping 2-3-4 or 5 times according to the setting of the gears
- The film is cut, film end secured and bale tipped off

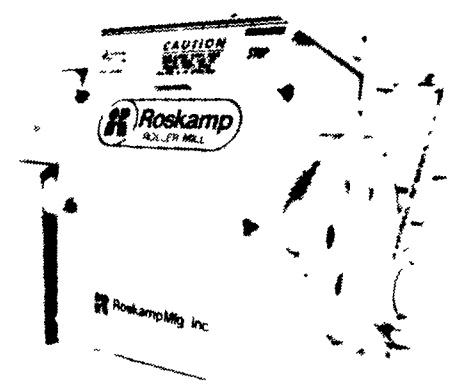
ROSKAMP STATIONARY CORN SILAGE ROLLER MILL



We Will Demonstrate

FOR DAIRY
Rolling silage fresh – just before feeding – increases milk production.

FOR BEEF

FOR HOGS
Freshly rolled silage, with all kernels cracked and all cobs crushed provides a highly palatable and more readily assimilated feed for sows.

DUAL PURPOSE
Hi-moisture or dry shelled corn can be metered into the Roskamp Silage Mill Hopper along with the silage for a uniformly mixed and digestible ration.

University tests have proven that 20% of high moisture whole corn passes through the animal's system undigested. This means evern fifth scoopful of expensive grain is left on your feedlot!

That's why it's money in the bank to freshly roll every bit of high moisture or dry corn just before feeding. Freshly rolled feed is the most palatable and digestible.

Imagine Owning A Prize-Winning Herd Of Holsteins By Age 15

BY BARBARA MILLER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

COLUMBIA CROSS ROADS — For a ninth grader to have accumulated a herd of 23 registered Holsteins is quite a feat, but Danny Hoppaugh did it!

The son of Raymond and Joann Hoppaugh, Danny possesses 14 cows, four heifers, and five calves. With the exception of a couple calves given to him as starter 4-H projects by his father, Danny, 15, purchased all the animals with his own money.

Danny's cattle are housed in his parents' barn with their dairy cows making a total milking herd of 92 registered Holsteins for the Hoppaugh family.

"My dad thought it would be a good idea for me to get into 4-H and learn a little more about farming and showing animals," Danny explained. It was eight years ago that Raymond presented him with a heifer calf named Star, which became his first 4-H project.

From then on, Danny saved the money he received from placing at shows and earned doing extra work to buy more Holsteins.

"He's pennywise," his mother, Joann, remarked, adding that she and her husband feed and house Danny's cows in return for milking them, but that Danny receives any monies from the sale of his animals. Danny also, gets paid for working around the farm.

Danny is a member of the Future Farmers of America, the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association, and for the past seven years, a member of the Leona Dairy 4-H Club. In addition, he belongs to the Troy High School junior varsity wrestling and football teams.

The 11 cows Danny has that are on DHIA test average 19,733 pounds of milk and possess an average classification score of 84.8. In 1986, Alpha, one of his favorites, placed first in her age group at the Bradford County Fair, at the Bradford County Roundup, and at the district competition. Alpha is currently producing 20,141 pounds of milk in a 305-day lactation and has been classified at 88.

This year Danny plans to show Alpha, Dancer, and Trixie, a cow purchased at the 1987 Sulbra Sellabration Sale, an annual sale held at the Troy Fairgrounds.

When he was 9, Danny bought his first calf at the Sulbra Sale. Joann explained she and her husband are members of the Sulbra group and know the quality of the animals sold there. Raymond has served as president of the Sulbra group for two years and this year will be co-chairman of the sale. Danny has purchased most of his cattle at a Sulbra Sale.

"When he first started out we had him buy calves," Joann noted. "It seemed the right combination of his age for showing and for price. Then we had so many calves with his cows and our calves, we talked it over and decided he'd better start buying milking cows."

Four years ago Danny bought his first cow, Alpha, at the Sulbra Sale. Since then the auctioneer's gavel has banged down five more times, making a total of six cows purchased by Danny, who is one of the youngest buyers at the sale.

Whether it's purchasing an additional cow, or deciding which ones to take to shows, Danny consults with his parents. Months before the show season, they closely watch the heifers in an effort to predict which one will have the best appearance at show time. The task is a little easier now than in the beginning, Joann said, because Danny has more animals from which to choose.

The Hoppaughs counsel their son freely on his cows and have

Prize-Winning Herd

Attending college after high school graduation to prepare for a career in agriculture is a distinct possibility for Danny. He likes the diversity inherent to farming. "Farming is something different. You get to drive machinery and you use your brain. You get to think things out."

Although Danny sees no negative aspects about farming as an occupation, there is one facet of showing animals that bothers him. "I don't like going to the show with something really good and losing," he stated.

His mother agreed, but added, "Beauty is in the eye of the beholder." She stated, that what one judge prefers in an animal, another passes by.

The best part of showing animals, according to Danny, is being seen at the show with a cow that's really good.

If Danny settles on farming as a career, it's a foregone conclusion that he won't be starting out like his parents. Neither Joann or Raymond Hoppaugh grew up on a farm. And if Raymond had taken the advice handed out by instructors at Delaware Valley College while he was attending in the 50's, he would never have started farming.

"There's no way to get into farming today unless you are born into it or marry into it," he recalled hearing them say.

Instead, after college he parlayed $100 and an old car into a working farm in New Jersey and moved to his present farm with Joann and Danny in 1973 where he started with "21 scrubs."

Today, he has 200 head of registered Holstein cattle including replacements with a DHIA average of 19,300M and 645F. He is proud of the fact that his herd is home-bred, except for Danny's animals, and has a BAA average of 104.8.

According to Danny's mother, the growth of his herd may be temporarily slowed a bit this year because he's turning 16.

"This could be a crisis year," she jokes. "This year Danny will decide whether to buy a vehicle or a cow."

Parthaven Willow Alpha, one of Danny's favorites, currently produces 20,141 pounds of milk in a 305-day lactation. She has placed first in her age group at the Bradford County Fair, the Bradford County Roundup, and at district competitions.

Sweeping feed closer to the cows is one of Danny's usual barn chores.

A tip of the hat to this year's winners.

At Pioneer, we salute the National Champions, and all the other winners in this year's NCGA Corn Grower's Contest.

Thanks to their hard work and management, Pioneer® brand hybrids earned 3 first place national yield titles and 59 first place state yield titles. And that's a performance story no one else can match.

So hats off to all those listed here, and a warm thanks to all the growers who plant Pioneer products.

Willmar MANUFACTURING

fertilizer equipment from C.U. Stoltzfus Mfg.

When it comes to spreading dry fertilizer, nothing beats Willmar. For accuracy. Or value. Period.

The Willmar S-500 5-ton spreader shown above features spread rates from under 100 pounds per acre to over 1000 lbs. with a highly accurate spread pattern.

Many features assure you of long service life and high resale value: Stainless steel hopper and conveyor chain. 12 Gauge, continuous-weld, 409-stainless steel body. Straight-line PTO shaft — no U-joint. And lots more.

C.U. Stoltzfus Mfg., Inc. has distributed Willmar fertilizer equipment throughout the Northeast since 1972. We are well known for our parts and service departments. Please call or write today for more information.

A LOOK AT INCOME TAXES

By Jesse Cooper

Penn State has been offering a farm income tax preparation program for more than 30 years, started by Monroe Armes in 1955. I wasn't even a part of Cooperative Extension then, but I have put in many years as a participant and a director of the educational programs. My experiences have led me to a number of observations about taxes that I think are worth sharing.

1. INCOME TAX COMPLEXITIES GROW.

I don't think anyone will argue this point. Preparing a farmer's tax return in recent years has been, for most people, "no piece of cake." It is true that we all had several years to get used to new depreciation methods and most everyone sold their dairy cows on Form 4797 instead of Schedule F. If we knew how to calculate it, we took advantage of income averaging and used accumulated investment credit to reduce, even eliminate, our federal income taxes. All well and good until we got a note from the IRS a year later, saying they calculated the Alternative Minimum Tax for us and we still owed a bundle plus penalties.

On the other hand, a lot of farmers' schedule Fs recentlyshowed losses, not profits. It is possible to take a net operating loss (NOL) in one year and use that loss to recover at least a portion of federal income taxes paid in the three previous years. The fly in the proverbial ointment here is that few taxpayers and perhaps fewer tax preparers are willing to tackle and prepare a NOL. You should know that, if you have had a bad year financially, there are tax preparers around capable of properly preparing NOL's and helping you recover taxes paid in those prior years.

That, as they say, is the good news. Understanding taxes get harder and tougher as we take a deep breath, grit our teeth and tackle our 1987 tax returns.

2. THE TAX REFORM ACT OF 1986 DIDN'T SIMPLIFY ANYTHING.

I don't think I'll find disagreement here either. The TRA of 1986 will do a lot of things but simplifying taxes is not one of them. It will reduce or remove some taxpayers in the lower income levels from the tax rolls and reduce the tax burden on high-income taxpayers as well. It will also wipe out most tax advantages previously associated with tax shelters. But remember, this act was not designed to reduce the government's total income tax receipts. If some taxpayers pay less, other taxpayers must pay more. Pennsylvania's dairymen are an excellent example of a group of taxpayers who can expect to pay more taxes in 1987, both because of changes in the tax law and because they are showing more profit and reducing expenses.

First of all, taxable income from cull cow sales will for most dairymen be 2 1/2 times greater this year than last. A dairyman can still sell a cull cow and treat some, maybe all, of the gain on her sale as capital gain. The rub comes because that gain is now fully taxable, just like ordinary income. It's not at all like it used to be in the good old days, when 60 percent of that gain usually escaped tax.

Second, dairymen and other producers raising replacement animals with a preproductive period in excess if two years can no longer expense off those costs until the replacements come into production. The dairyman has two options. He can capitalize the costs, and reduce his current farm operating costs by the same amount. Or, he can continue to deduct from the Schedule F for heifer raising costs, but with two penalties -- he will have to recapture that amount later, when the animal is sold, and he must use the slow alternative depreciation system.

Finally, if the several dozen dairymen I recently visited in northwestern Pennsylvania are typical, then I know that a lot of Pennsylvania dairymen will have considerably more milk income in 1987 than in 1986. To add to the tax problem, dairymen in northwestern Pennsylvania are doing an excellent job of holding the line on the farm business expenses even reducing expenses while producing more milk. In many cases these additional dollars that these dairymen have gained from increased income and reduced expenses have gone to reduce outstanding debt an excellent business move, although it also reduces their year's interest deductions in the process.

WHAT TO DO? WHAT TO DO?

The Tax Reform Act of 1986 is often referred to as a new ball

No spreader on the market can match the versatility of Scavenger.™

A new look in spreader design.

More than 7 years ago, Hedlund/Martin introduced the Scavenger—a manure spreader based on an entirely new technology.

Gone were unreliable apron chains and "rooster comb" beaters. Gone were leaky endgates. Gone were the old-fashioned boxy shape. In their place—a unique patented square auger and side-discharge expeller reel. And with its welded Unibody construction, Scavenger looked like nothing before

Unmatched performance.

While some of these look-alike units are perfectly adequate for certain manure-spreading application, none can match Scavenger's overall versatility Scavenger spreads all kinds of manure—liquid, semi-solid, pen pack (even frozen)—all year 'round. In even spread patterns up to 50 feet. All in one machine.

So when you find it's time to purchase a new spreader, take a hard look at your choices. Don't be misled by spreaders that claim to do it all Compare actual capabilities. We think you'll find your choice obvious. You'll choose the spreader with unmatched performance—Scavenger.

See for yourself.

PA Young Farmers

Richard Weller presents the State Outstanding Young Farmer Under 30 Awardto Michael and Deborah Ewing of the West Snyder Young Farmer Chapter.

Barry Gelb presents the Young Farmer Community Service Award to Wayne and Loudenis Beidel of the Shippensburg Chapter.

DANVILLE — Members of the PA Young Farmers Education Association met for their 28th Annual Convention at the Danville Sheraton Inn on February 3-4, 1988. The two days conducted under the theme "Learning Today Makes 'Cents' in the Future," included delegate meetings, tours, educational workshops, and culminated with the Awards Banquet.

The Spokesperson for Agriculture Award was presented to Robert Tercha of the Kutztown Chapter. Other participants included Brenda Benner of Perry County and Rebecca Schoenberg from Shippensburg. Also presented at the noon luncheon were awards for Largest Convention Registration, Largest Membership, and Largest Increase in Membership; the Manheim Chapter was the recipient of all three awards. Mr. Bill Fleet of Pioneer Hybrids was recognized with the Honorary Young Farmer Award.

The Outstanding Young Farmer Under 30 Award was presented to Michael and Deborah Ewing of the West Snyder Young Farmer Chapter. They own and operate a 160 acre dairy farm. Their herd consists of 40 milk cows and 35 replacements. They grow corn, oats, rye and alfalfa. The Ewings are active in the Baker United Methodist Church, PFA, and the PYFA.

State Young Farmers Promote Ag

DANVILLE — A Young Farmer from Berks County was selected as the 1988 Spokesperson for Agriculture during the 28th Annual Convention of the Pennsylvania Young Farmers Association last week in Danville. Robert Tercha, 32, of Mertztown and a member of the Kutztown Young Farmer Chapter will represent Pennsylvania this December in the National Spokesperson for Agriculture Contest to be held in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Tercha, who farms 500 acres in partnership with his father, entitled his 5-minute presentation "The American Food Dollar." (See the enclosed copy of the speech for quotes.) Other contestants included Brenda Benner of Perry County and Rebecca Schoenburg of Shippensburg.

Following the announcement of a winner, all three Spokesperson Contestants conducted a Media Blitz in the Danville Weis Market. The Blitz was sponsored by the Pennsylvania Young Farmers Association. During the 2 hour visit, the Spokespersons visited with consumers about agriculture and food issues. The highlight of the visit was the unannounced selection of three "lucky shoppers."

The "lucky shopper" idea was developed to emphasize just how much of the so called food dollar is actually spent on food. The shoppers who found this out included: Mrs. Sandra Craig of Danville, Marian Zarko of Elysburg, and Sharon Troutman of Danville.

The Association paid for all of the food items in Mrs. Craig's grocery cart: $72.28 or 80%. Marian Zarko, who shops for her groceries only every 4 weeks, registered a $66.71 food bill or 83% of her total grocery bill. To illustrate that consumers also spend "food money" on non-nutritious food, the Spokespersons elected to pay only for Sharon Troutman's nutritious food in her cart — $57.26 or 67% of her total bill. Non-nutritious food included soda, cookies, doughnuts and the like.

Americans often complain about their food bill, but really should be grateful for the quality and quantity readily available at only a fraction of the cost other countries must spend. Take for example, the average American spends 16% of his income on food, while the Chinese spend about 60% of their income on food.

Hopefully, through the efforts of the Pennsylvania Young Farmers Association, a few more people will realize the true value of their "food dollar."

Northwest Maple Producers Hold Meeting

CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS — The 27th Annual Meeting of the Northwest Maple Producers Association was held recently at the Northwestern Rural Electric Cooperative Association, Cambridge Springs. A total of 81 persons were in attendance.

Dennis Northrop, Corry, Pa., Association President, was master of ceremonies of the event and introduced guests in attendance.

Ted Perdos, Service Forester with the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources, Bureau of Forestry, gave a slide presentation on the importance of good woodland management. A large proportion of the acreage in northwest Pennsylvania is covered with timber and when properly managed can return much to the economy of the area.

For lunch, pancakes with maple syrup, whole hog sausage and coffee were served by the ladies of the Association, under the direction of Mrs. Florence Running.

After lunch, a business meeting of the organization was conducted with the election of directors to serve a two-year term. Those elected were as follows: Dotty Herrick, Cambridge Springs; Dennis Northrop, Corry; Paul Holabaugh, Dennys Corners and Ernest Allen, Corry, an alternate.

A film on maple syrup production, entitled Massachusett's Maple Moon was shown. This film discussed conventional methods of maple syrup production along with the new technology. In addition, the various other products that can be made from maple syrup were discussed. The scenes were depicted in the New England area; however, the maple production procedure would apply anywhere.

Paula Holabaugh, Guys Mills, N.W. Maple Queen and Pennsylvania Maple Sweetheart, spoke on her many activities in promoting maple products. One unique way of promotion she developed was to design two different T-shirts depicting the use of maple syrup.

William Sharpe, Associate Professor of Forest Hydralogy at Pennsylvania State University, discussed the "Impacts of Acid Rain in Pennsylvania." He indicated no specific work on the effect of acid rain on maple trees has been done; however, some relationship could be drawn as to acid rain effects on other trees. In areas where acid rain concentration was the greatest, it did have an environmental negative effect on tree growth and fish culture in the surrounding streams.

New technology by using plastic tubing and vacuum in the sugar bush was discussed by Frank Schambach, West Falls, NY. He stressed that when tubing is laid out correctly, it reduces the hard labor of gathering sap by the buckets. The use of the vacuum pump on the lines increase the sap flow and maple syrup production. In addition, by using tubing, steep areas can be tapped that were impossible to harvest sap from before. However, remember good sanitation must be used by washing the tubing with a sanitizing solution before the season begins and after sap harvest is completed.

John Deets, Titusville, Vice-President of the Association, discussed the advantages of using a filter press to give the public a good clear maple syrup product.

Bernard Tobin, Cambridge Springs, spoke on maple promotion, both locally and overseas. The PA Department of Agriculture is presently looking into overseas markets for Pennsylvania food commodities.

game. Changes in the law will affect everyone, not just dairymen. Individual taxpayers will discover numerous changes in exemption and allowable deductions. Parents will be asked for Social Security numbers for their youngsters and may have to calculate a "Kiddie Tax" if any of their children have over $1,000 or unearned income. Sales tax deductions are out, some interest is still deductible and on and on. And that's just for individual tax returns. Changes in tax reporting for farms and other businesses, while perhaps not as numerous as for individual returns, are just more complicated. Preproductive expense regulations that deal with the so-called capitalization of the direct and indirect costs of raising plants and livestock that require more than two years to bring into production are the best example. But then the new depreciation system, with all its mid-year, mid-quarter and mid-month conventions, is not far behind.

What to do? Now may be the time to take your business to a professional tax preparer who is determined to take the new law in stride. Don't be surprised, though, when the bill he gives you for his tax preparation services is up from last year. He or she will undoubtedly deserve it.

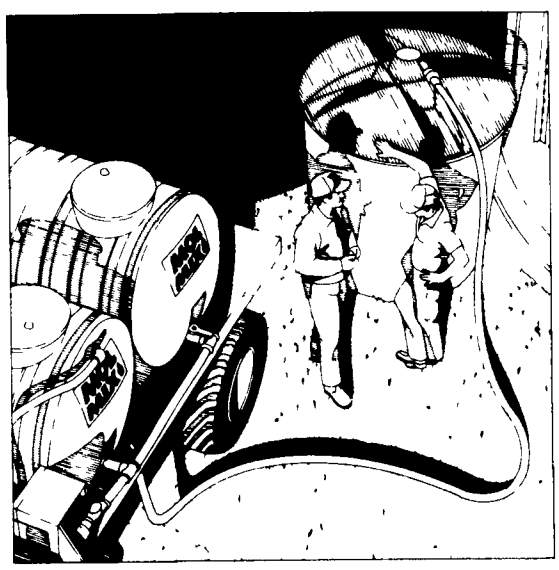
SURPASS



The First All-In-One, Liquid Bypass Protein Available For Dairy Cows

You want maximum milk production from your herd. That means your cows must eat more homegrown feed. They can if their bypass protein is concentrated in liquid form, not dry. And that's Surpass, the result of six years of research and testing at Mol-Mix.

Surpass is economical. Because it's a liquid, Surpass makes the feed more palatable. It's nutritionally stable and has an excellent shelf life. And there's no need to worry about rodent or insect infestation losses

Surpass is easy. Surpass is easier to handle than a dry supplement. Choose gravity or a simple pump. Your Mol-Mix dealer can set you up in no time.

Surpass is nutritious. Its formula has more protein by volume than dry feed or soybean meal and contains the minerals and vitamins your cows need for most rations.

Choose the flexible supplement progressive feeders use: Surpass from Mol-Mix.

A CARGILL PRODUCT

Surpass is not designed to be fed free-choice in a lick wheel feeder. However, for those who like the convenience of a free choice liquid feed, check with us for good prices & service.

FUEL INJECTION & TURBOCHARGER SPECIALIST

WINTERTIME PROBLEMS

The year 'round problems of water damage and carbonizing of the fuel injection system become more acute during the cold winter season And, diesel engines now become exposed to another wintertime problem Waxing and Gelling Diesel fuel contains paraffin wax which develops into crystals as the temperature drops When crystals begin to form, the temperature is at "cloud point" The pour point of the fuel is the temperature at which the crystals have now formed into a lattice type pattern, restricting fuel flow This is waxing and gelling, and it clogs filters and blocks fuel lines

POLAR POWER - THE ULTIMATE WINTERTIME TREATMENT

• POLAR POWER combines the advantages of FUEL POWER and FLOW IMPROVER by preventing water damage, the growth of algae, and the carbonizing of injection system AND by preventing waxing and gelling — giving you the ultimate wintertime product

Working To Get The Premiums

More and more dairymen are striving to qualify for premium payments on the milk they produce. It is encouraging to see dairymen be rewarded for producing good quality milk.

Premiums are being paid for milk that is higher in fat and protein content, lower in bacteria and somatic cell count levels, and of good flavor (lower acid degree values).

This article focuses on some of the things dairymen can do in an effort to qualify for some of these premiums.

Protein and Fat

The percent protein and fat in milk is heritable. It can also be affected by feeding practices.

It's difficult to feed cows for milk that is high both in protein and fat content. Rations that are higher in energy favor protein production, generally at the expense of fat production.

Protein levels in milk generally are about 85% that of fat. This will vary from breed to breed. In other words, if the fat content of milk is 3.7%, the protein content will be about 3.2%.

When the fat content gets close to or below the protein content it may be a sign that cows need more butter or more digestible fiber in the ration. Or, feeding less grain, feeding grain at more frequent intervals, offering cows forages before feeding grain, or blending the ingredients in a total mix ration may help increase fat tests. Cows that are extremely thin generally have a low fat test; this is one situation where additional energy might put more flesh on cows thus supporting higher fat tests as well as protein tests.

Bacterial Counts in Milk

The bacterial content of milk is measured primarily by the Standard Plate Count (SPC) and by the Preliminary Incubation Count (PI). Both offer an indication of the conditions under which milk was produced and stored on the farm. The PI count is the newer procedure, and may eventually replace the SPC; it is a more accurate indicator of production procedures and shelf life of raw milk.

The primary causes of high SPC and PI counts are:

1. Improper cleaning and sanitizing of milk handling equipment.
2. Inadequate cooling.
3. Dirty udders.

Penn State Food Scientist, Sidney Barnard suggests the following practices for reducing bacteria counts:

1. Clip hair from udder and flanks of cow and keep them reasonably clean.
2. Use a sanitizer solution for washing cows' udders. The iodine compounds provide a color indicator at the proper strength of 25 ppm. Use paper towels or cow cloths (not a sponge) to wash and dry the lower udder and teats.
3. Wash all milk handling equipment after each use. disassemble and clean valve, covers, bridge and agitator of your bulk tank each time after milk is picked up. Clean your milker units, transfer system or pipeline twice each day using dairy detergents and a recommended procedure.
4. Sanitize all milk contact surfaces with a chlorine or iodine sanitizer solution. Proper strengths are 200 ppm chlorine or 25 ppm iodine. Do this just before using the equipment and not after cleaning.
5. Cool your milk to 40°F. or below within two hours after finishing milking. Blend temperatures should not exceed 50°F. during the second and subsequent milkings.
6. Check the bacterial count of your water supply to be sure that it contains no coliforms or spoilage bacteria.

Also be sure there is a good slugging action of the wash water in the milk lines. The temperature of the wash water should be at least 120° at the end of the wash cycle. Use the specified amount of water; this is important for maintaining a proper concentration of detergents, necessary for good cleaning action. Similarly, the amount of detergent used is also important and should be adjusted in accordance with the hardness of the water.

Wash milking equipment after each milking. Be sure all parts of the system are properly washed, including hoses, hose nipples, gaskets and couplings, sensors, meters, etc. Avoid dead-ended lines that are difficult to clean. Replace old, cracked gaskets, hoses and inflations. Maintain proper slope on milk lines to enhance good drainage; avoid sags where moisture can lay and support bacterial growth between milkings.

All milking equipment should be sanitized just prior to each usage — for two reasons: 1.) the equiment will be cleanest at time of usage and 2.) chlorine sanitizers which are caustic on rubber, will have less time to deteriorate rubber components of the milking system.

Deposits of fat, protein and calcium are excellent places for bacteria to grow. So, check your equipment for films and deposits.

A greasy film may indicate that temperatures of the wash water were too cool or the concentration of the detergent too weak for proper cleaning action. The same problems can also cause accumulations of yellowish fat deposits.

Droplets of water clinging to equipment surfaces can result from greasy films, or it may indicate the need for an acid rinse following the wash cycle.

When the equipment is dry, check for the presence of white deposits of milkstone (calcium) or the appearance of a blue metallic tinge caused by protein accumulations. Acid cleaners remove milkstone and alkaline cleaners work on protein deposits.

If the bulk tank compressor can't keep milk temperatures below 50° during milking, or if the compressor has to run too long after milking to cool the milk to below 40° or less, you might have to perform maintenance on the compressor, install a larger compressor or install a pre-cooler in the milk line. For uniform cooling, the agitator should be running at milking time when warm "new" milk is being added to cool "old" milk.

Improper cooling of milk can result in higher bacteria counts and lower fat tests, both of which can affect your milk check. Fat tests can be lowered when agitation of warm milk causes formation of butter particles, or when milk freezes to the surface of the bulk tank.

SCC

High somatic cell counts (SCC) generally result from mastitis infections and long lactations. Drying off low producing, late lactation cows can help lower cell counts. SCC premiums gained on a tank of milk may more than make up for the milk lost by drying off high count cows. By lowering cell counts you not only pick up premiums, you also boost production, and the increased milk income over feed costs will probably be as great as or greater than SCC premiums.

Basically, there are two types of mastitis, contagious and environmental. The contagious infections are the ones primarily responsible for increasing cell counts. These contagious infections are caused primarily by Strep ag and Staph aureus bacteria. Both of these organisms live in or on the udder and spread from cow to cow at milking time.

Procedures most effective for controlling environmental infections consist of:

1. Using individual cow towels
2. Using a germicidal teat dipping after milking
3. Dry treating all cows
4. Milking infected cows last
5. Culling cows with chronic Staph infections
6. Treating clinical cases

Treating cows during lactation is not very effective; dry cow treatment is much more effective. Strep ag infections are rather easy to kill with treatment. Once a cow is cured, the challenge is to keep her from becoming re-infected by other cows that have not yet been cured. Once the herd is cured of Strep ag — that is possible — the job of preventing Strep ag is much easier. Care must then be exercised to prevent Strep ag from being reintroduced to the herd by other cattle that are brought onto the farm.

Staph organisms are much more difficult to cure, and cows that fail to respond to treatment, especially dry treatment, are good candidates for culling.

Other procedures that help reduce both the contagious and the environmental forms of infection are:

1. Install a good milking system and maintain it.
2. Properly clean, sanitize and dry the udder before milking.
3. Avoid liner slips, inflation squeaks and teat-end impacts.
4. Milk cows out completely but avoid overmilking.
5. Feed cows properly and keep them healthy so they have good immune response; feed adequate levels of selenium and vitamins A and E to lactating and dry cows.

The other form of mastitis I mentioned earlier is environmental. They spread primarily from the environment to the cow. They thrive in wet, filthy areas where there is a lot of organic matter. This is the type of infection cows are apt to pick up at calving time.

The primary environmental organisms are Strep non-ags and coliforms, and the two main coliforms are E. coli and klebsiella. Because these organisms strike fast and do not thrive well in the udder, there is little time for cows to respond with elevated cell counts.

Procedures most effective in controlling environmental mastitis consist of:

1. Maintaining clean, dry stall beds and maternity areas.
2. Using minimal or no water to prep the cow for milking, and be sure their teats are clean and dry before milking.
3. Pre-dipping teats after they have been properly cleaned.
4. The use of barrier teat dips, when warranted.
5. Keeping cows away from wet, sloppy areas.

Rancid Flavor

There is a high correlation between milk rancidity and acid degree values (ADV). Rancid milk has a soapy-bitter taste. It can be caused by a number of factors, such as foaming of milk, freezing or churning of milk, a lack of protein in the milk, over milking and by extended lactations.

Foaming may be caused by leaks in the milking system. Sloshing of milk, caused by risers in the milk line or by "lifting" milk up into high milk lines, can also contribute to rancidity problems; so will the running of milk pumps in a "starved" condition.

As you can see, many factors contribute to the composition and quality of milk. Efforts to earn premiums for the production of high quality milk can help offset declining milk prices and shrinking profit margins.

The Cooperative Extension Service is an affirmative action, equal opportunity educational institution.

Tax Forms For Conservation

CHAMBERSBURG — Farmers who plan to deduct expenditures for conservation practices can obtain the necessary tax forms from their local Soil Conservation Service offices. John Akers, SCS District Conservationist in Franklin County, says the forms are being made available at SCS offices as a convenience to taxpayers.

IRS Tax Form 8645, "Soil and Water Conservation Plan Certification," is required when a taxpayer elects to take a deduction for the installation of soil and water conservation practices. These expenses include (but are not limited to) the cost of terraces, diversions, drainage ditches, waterways and outlets, ponds, brush removal, and windbreaks.

To be deductible, practices must be included in either the County Conservation Plan or an individual farm conservation plan developed with SCS or the county conservation district. The County Conservation Plan is a list of approved soil and water conservation practices. The County Plan is available at local Soil Conservation Service offices. The Soil Conservation Service office in Franklin County is located at 550 Cleveland Avenue, Chambersburg, PA.

Certain soil and water conservation expenses may not be deductible even if they are made according to an approved plan. These are:

— Expenses paid to drain or fill wetlands;

— Expenses paid to prepare land for center pivot irrigation systems; and — Expenses paid to clear land.

IRS Form 8645 and the County Conservation Plan are new requirements under the Tax Reform Act of 1986. Akers stated that SCS is distributing these forms only as a convenience, and that SCS does not provide assistance on completion of the form. Farm tax questions should be directed to the Internal Revenue

Pork Prose

Pros and Cons of Contract Production

Contracts have become a way of life for ma While contracts are unknown to pork producers in the western part of the state, more and more producers in the Southeast Pennsylvania are using contracts. Some estimates put Lancaster county's hog production at 75 percent contract How do these contracts work? Who benefits?.

WHAT IS A CONTRACT?

A contract is an agreement between a swine producer and another individual or company to share management responsibility and production costs. Under conventional contracts, the producer provides the buildings, utilities and labor. The company writing the contract supplies the pigs, feed, medications and makes mons.

WHAT ARE THE ADVANTAGES OF A CONTRACT?

Producers use contracts fcr several reasons:

* Better guarantee of cash flow - While the payments under a contract do not guarantee a profit, the producer is reasonably assured he won't lose money.

* Less need for operating capital - Companies normally provide the pigs and the feed. For most operations these two expenses amount to at least of the total production costs. So if capital is limited, contracts make financing a lot easier.

* Company provides service - Most producers just getting started need management help. Under a contract, help is available on a weekly basis if necessary. And with few exceptions in this state, the advice provided by the feed, company is solid. In addition to management assistance, many companies provide marketing services. If you condensee reasons into one they spell less risk for producer as well as the banker.

WHAT ARE THE DRAWBACKS TO A CONTRACT?

Perhaps the biggest disadvantage of a contract is that producers lose their independence. They may lose the liberty of changing the feed formule breeding schedule, or the market weights. In short they lose their authority for making the important decisions. And that can lead to the second drawback -- lack of incentive. There is no incentive equal to ownership. Whether it's a home, a car or a swine enterprise. The owner-operator is usually the guy that works longer, thinks harder and manages better.

HOW DO FINISHING CONTRACTS WORK?

Most companies provide the pigs aucer supplies the facilities, labor and utilities. In return, the company pays the producer a base rate per head sold, usually $7 to $9. Some contracts reimburse producers for the weight gain, roughly $.045/pound of gain. The actual payment depends on the final feed conversion ratio. In addition, some companies offer increasing incentives when mortalityercent. Still another variation of the payment includes profit sharing. Under these agreements, producers share in half the profits after all expenses are paid.

HOW DO FARROW-TO-FINISH CONTRACTS WORK?

As in the finishing contracts, producers provide the buildings, labor and facilities, and the company maintains the breeding stock inventory and provides feed. Producers are normally paid about $18 per feeder pig sold, but it can range from $15 to $20. Many companies offer incentives for pigs raised per sow or percent crates filled.

HOW DO FARROW TO FINISH CONTRACTS WORK?

Obligations oy are the same as the farrow-to-feeder pig agreements. Payments range from $25 to $28 per head sold, or in some cases, $.11 to $.12 per pound.

WHAT SHOULD YOU LOOK FOR IN A CONTRACT?

1. Quality of stock - Ideally, the contract should state that pigs are reasonably healthy, have had necessary vaccinations and parasites are under control.

2. Delivery schedule - Pigs should be delivered within a reasonable time after pens are emptied.

3. Payments - It should be clear what the payments are and when they are made. If there are incentives, these should be easy to calculate and simple to document. For example, if a bonus is paid when more than 18 pigs per sow per year are sold, it should be spelled out when replacement gilts are considered part of the sow herd.

4. Market weights - When pigs will be marketed should be spelled out. This is especially important for the producer who is paid on a per hea Length of contract - Starting and ending dates should be specified. Note that some contracts rmit the company, but not the producer, to terminate the contract before the expiration date.

6. Negotiation - Rig you're a producer with a good track record.

HOW WILL A CONTRACT AFFECT OVERALL PROFITS?

In the short run, think about what you will need to cover your facility, labor and utility costs. For most contracts, your payment will cover loan service on the building, utility cost and at least part of the labor cost.

But profits will depend a lot on what you have invested in your facilities and how long you take to pay the loan. For example a 500 head finishin hog. But if you accelerate the pay-back to 5 years, the cost per head jumps to $10.60 per head -- which doesn't leave you much if the contract pays you $8.00.

For the long run, estimate the potential high and low market prices and how your cash flow will vary over these periods. Contracts will protect you from the money-losing proposition of $35 market hog prices. But they also prevent you from the healthy profits that come when hogs hit $65. So in the long run (more than 5 years), you'll generally show more profits when you're independent.

ARE CONTRACTS A GOOD THING?

For many producers, they've been a life-saver. And in general, I don't think they've had a negative impact on the industry. The hope of all producers, however, is that we don't become totally integrated -- to the point that production is controlled by contracts from the breeding barn to the packing point, the free market is lost. And the independent producer ist of a profession.

Bull Olympics '88 Has Begun

ITHACA, NY — The road to Ithaca, the Bull Olympics 1988 is in full swing. The final event will be held at the New York State Bull Test Sale to be held on May 6th at 7 p.m. at the Cornell Livestock Pavillion, Cornell University. The Bull Test is co-sponsored by the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association. New York State Department of Ag & Markets and the Department of Animal Science, Cooperative Extension, Cornell University.

After the second Weigh Period, Bulls heading for gold medals in their respective breeds are: Angus - first place is Ballantrae Farms Bull born 2/11/87 with a cumulative daily gain of 4.89 lbs.; tied for second place are two other Ballantrae Farm bulls with a cumulative daily gain of 4.7 lbs. They were born on 2/6/87 and 3/11/87 respectively. Coming in for the Bronze medal in third place is a Ballantrae Farm Bull born 4/6/87 with a cumulative daily gain of 4.66 lbs. Ballantrae Farm is owned and operated by Allistair and Peter Nixon of Westfield, New York. In the Charolais breed - first place is held by Tamberlane Farm Bull from Canandaiqua with a cumulative daily gain of 5 lbs. Second place Silver is held by Cooper Charolais Farm born 4/1/87 from Windham, ME with an average cumulative gain of 4 lbs. Third Place is currently held by a Meadow View Farm Charolais born 4/6/87 from Frankfort, N.Y. with a 3.79 lbs. cumulative daily gain.

In the Polled Hereford division first place is Valley View Farms Bull born 4/14/87 owned by Eugene Sapp of Buckhannon, West Virginia with a daily cumulative gain of 4.29 lbs. Not far behind in second place is a 3/17/87 Dunwalke/Puddingston Hereford from Far Hills, New Jersey with a 4.27 lbs. cumulative daily gain. In third place and a strong Bronze medal contender is a 4.25 lbs. gainer born 3/29/87 from Follifoot Farm of Dryden, N.Y. Shorthorn breed has a 2/16/87 bull owned by Stony Brook Farms of Locke, N.Y. in first place with a cumulative daily gain of 5.04 lbs. Second place is also held by a Stony Brook Farm Shorthorn born 4/11/87 with a 4.30 lb. gain. Close behind in third place is a 3/1/87 Springbrook Farm Shorthorn from Parish, N.Y. with a cumulative daily gain of 4.27 lbs.

Vieing for medals in the Simmental breed are: first place is currently held by a Forty Dollar Road Farm bull born 3/28/87 from Campbell, N.Y. with a cumulative daily gain of 6.07 lbs. Second place is Shag Bark Farm bull born 3/19/87 from Olean, N.Y. with a 5.59 lbs. gain. A Wheatley Farm Simmental born 2/4/87 from Stanfordville, N.Y. is in third place with a 4.75 lbs. cumulative daily gain.

There are a total of 72 bulls from the Northeast participating in the New York State Bull Test. This represents 51 beef cattle breeders from 7 states. The primary purpose of the performance testing program is to evaluate bulls under unbiased, uniform conditions and to make these performance tested bulls available to beef cattle breeders. According to Bill Greene, Extension Associate, in charge of the Bull Test, there will be a total of five weigh periods of 28 consecutive days. The bulls are fed a ration containing approximately 75% TDN and 14% protein.

The next weigh period will be February 23rd. At that time, the race for the gold will be on and the road to Ithaca in the Bull Olympics '88 will mount with excitement.

Looking For Easier-To-Pluck Chickens

MIFFLINTOWN — Researchers are trying to find a breed of chicken from which feathers can be plucked more efficiently in cold water, as required by kosher laws.

"It is difficult to pick feathers from chickens soaked in water with temperatures ranging from 32 to 53 degrees," said John Appel, nutritionist for Empire Kosher Foods in Mifflintown.

"As a result, our chickens incur such damages as skin tears and broken parts while passing through additional picking machines."

Most poultry-processing plants "scald" birds in hot water, at around 126 degrees to make the removal of feathers easier. Doing it this way requires only one-fourth of the chicken-picking machines used in kosher plants like Empire's.

Jewish dietary laws, known collectively as Kashruth, provide exacting requirements for the slaughter and processing of meat products. At Empire Kosher, for example, rabbis, using a sharp knife, slaughter all poultry by hand.

Blood must be extracted from meat. During the processing, heated water is prohibited. Soaking in cold water and salting allow blood in the chicken to be extracted, said Meir A. Babad, vice president of rabbinical affairs. Seventy rabbis work at Empire Kosher.

In addition to cold water scalding and extra picking machines, kosher birds also are subjected to a "salting" process to extract remaining blood.

"To remain competitive, we've got to find a way to process kosher chickens at lower costs," said Ron Swanger, Empire's executive vice-president.

The research is being conducted by Empire's staff and Drs. Morris G. Mast, professor of food science, and Herbert Siegel, professor and head of poultry science, at Penn State.

Their research is being funded, in part, by a challenge grant from the Advanced Technology Center of Central and Northern Pennsylvania, Inc., Ben Franklin Partnership.

Under the partnership, government, businesses and educational institutions work together to create and retain jobs in Pennsylvania.

Typically, the poultry industry can raise a chicken for processing in about seven weeks. "It takes us about nine weeks because, since we can't use hot water, we need to feed them longer to reduce fat content," Appel noted. "Excess fat makes it more difficult to pick feathers off a chicken."

"Feeding a chicken longer, of course, increases costs considerably," Appel added. "To raise our breed — Penobscotts — we use 2.18 pounds of feed per pound of chicken. By contrast, the poultry industry uses only two pounds of feed.

"Since we process thousands of chickens each week, longer feeding times add significant costs to our labor-intensive business.

"We want to find a strain of chicken that can be raised in seven weeks and can be more easily plucked of feathers. Above all, however, we want to maintain the quality of our product. Our testing is focusing on the release of feathers, after soaking in cold water."

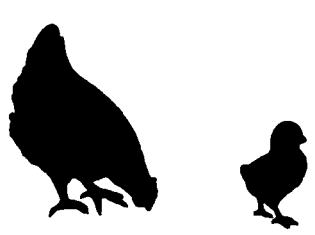
In discussing the project to date, Swanger said "so far so good."

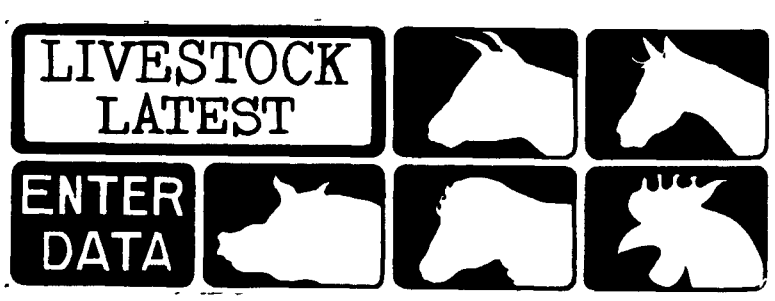
"We have tested one flock that dresses well in cold water. This result is encouraging, but it is only preliminary. More tests are being conducted with the Penn State researchers to determine how well the strain can be picked in kosher processing over the long term."

In the future, research also will be conducted on the feeding regimes of chickens. "We want to develop a diet that will decrease the amount of fat, making it more efficient to process kosher chickens," said Appel.

Success with this research project, Swanger added, will mean more jobs for Pennsylvanians. Empire presently is the largest employer in the Juniata County area, with 1100 employees.

"If we can develop the strain of chicken we want to, we will increase our sales," Swanger added. "This, in turn, would enable us to increase our work force to about 1290 employees next year."





PDA Urges Completion Of 1987 Census Of Agriculture

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture is urging farmers to promptly complete and return 1987 Census of Agriculture report forms. The forms were mailed to the nation's farmers by the U.S. Bureau of Census. The forms arrived by mail in early January.

The Bureau of Census has asked farmers to report on their agricultural operations during the past year and return the report forms by February 1st. Prompt return of the forms will reduce costly follow-up mailings and it will speed up publishing of data.

The Census of Agriculture needs basic information concerning land use and ownership, crop acreages and quantities harvested, livestock and poultry inventories, value of crops and livestock sold, and operator characteristics. Twenty percent of the Census forms request additional information on production methods and expenses, market value of land and buildings, income from farm-related sources (including government payments), payments from farmland renting, and sales of forest products.

Farmers seeking assistance in completing forms can call local offices of the Cooperative Extension Service, Soil Conservation Service, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, and the Farmers Home Administration.

People not operating a farm or ranch who receive a census form should return it to avoid additional mailings. Farmers who have not received a form should write to the Bureau of the Census, 1201 East 10th Street, Jeffersonville, Ind. 47133.

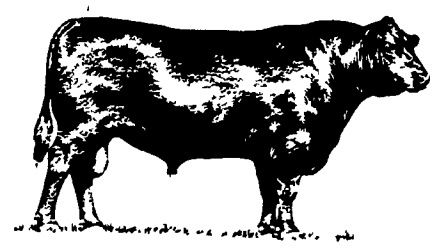
Information submitted on census report forms is confidential by law. Completed forms can be viewed only by sworn Census Bureau employees and may be used only for statistical purposes. Other government agencies are denied access to completed forms and copies retained by farmers are immune from legal processes.

Data gathered through the Census of Agriculture assists legislators, policymakers, agribusiness planners, and farm organizations seeking to devise farm programs and policies.

Graystone Farm Bull Wins Senior Championship

DAYTON, PA — At the recently completed National Western Stock Show and Rodeo held in Denver, Colorado, Graystone Farm of Schellsburg, Pa. took the Championship banner in the Senior Calf Division of the International Hereford Organization show. GS Blue First Class 8, a 12 month old bull standing 57¼ inches tall and weighing 1320 pounds was slapped the champion over a strong field of contemporaries.

Bill and Beth Gray the owners of Graystone Farm were particularly pleased by the bull since he is a son of R&S Bluehills Classic, a past national champion bull, that is owned by the farm. The Champion Calf Get of Sire at the show was also sired by their bull, R&S Bluehills Classic.



WORKAHOLICS

Nothing works harder than a Kubota B and L Series tractor. With tractors ranging from 10 to 40 PTO Horsepower, you're sure to find one that meets your needs. You'll find them at work on farms, in parks, nurseries, estate homes and even on construction sites. A choice of 2- or 4-wheel drive on most models and a hefty 3-point hitch.

So if you're looking for hard workers, look no further than a Kubota tractor.

Crops Day Held In Lancaster County

BY LISA RISSER

LANCASTER — Every spring the tillers come out to work the fields, followed by the manure spreaders, discs, and planters. Farmers take special pains to juggle the variables to produce a corn crop that yields bushels and bushels to the acre. A prime consideration is insect control.

Having accurate information on the major corn pests is the key to insect management, according to Dr. Dennis Calvin, Penn State entomologist. Speaking at the Soil and Crops Day at the Lancaster County extension office, Calvin discussed controlling corn root worm and European corn borer.

There are two major periods during the growing season for root worms. The first is from June until the beginning of July, followed by mid-July to late fall.

"Until the 1980s, we dealt only with the greenish-colored, quarter-inch Northern root worm," Calvin stated. "The Western corn root worm is now predominant in a large part of the state. It was in central Pennsylvania in 1986 and by 1987, it had moved several counties east."

The Western corn root worm is twice as damaging as its Northern cousin, of which there must be numerous worms to injure a plant. The Western variety hatches out earlier and therefore catches the corn plants when they're younger and more vulnerable. They also feed more vigorously and have a higher reproductive potential.

"Along the front line of the Western corn root worm emmigration there is a population explosion in certain areas," Calvin said. "This is because they have no natural predators in the area and they have lots of food."

For two to three years after first coming to an area, the Western corn root worm population will decline and moderate itself. During the initial infestation period a farmer might have to pay more for pesticide in order to control the problem.

If a farmer sees root worms lodging in the corn plant's roots, he can't do anything, but must wait until the next year to correct the situation, according to Calvin. The farmer will suffer reduced yields that year. However, if there is a lot of rainfall, the farmer may get some yield out of the damaged plants.

In order for a farmer to know what action to take for the following year, he must scout his fields for the insects. "Farmers need to count the number of adults in a field to determine whether or not to apply corn pesticides and in what quantity," Calvin explained. Scouting should take place between August 1 to 15 in the southeastern portion of the state and between August 10 to 20 for the central region.

An alternate method of corn root worm control, other than pesticides, is crop rotation. "If you rotate into legume or a smaller grain, it will cause the larvae to die. In addition, adults will not move into the field. In the first year of corn after this rotation, the chances of a problem are zero, unless you have soybean with volunteer corn."

European corn borer

Calvin also discussed the European corn borer, which is an undistinct, dirty brown insect with a dark head capsule. The larvae winter in the corn stalks as well as other crops. The adult stage is in May, with pupaeing as moths in late May.

Adults lay eggs on leaves in masses that contain an average of 60 eggs. When the eggs hatch out, the larvae hit the corn in the aural stage. "The earliest planted corn will get hit more with the first-generation larvae," Calvin explained. "Later plantings aren't as attractive to the female."

Corn has little natural protection against the larvae until they are 12 to 18 inches high, at which point the larvae can't eat the plant.

Damage appears on the leaves, which will have nibbled edges or will roll to form tight tunnels that the larvae like to travel, punching small holes as they go.

"You want to catch them when they are small," Calvin advised. "The larger they are, the harder they are to kill."

The first-generation larvae generally habitate in the whirl area. Calvin suggests that farmers use a granular insecticide at this point, because granules will fall into the whirl area where the larvae are. Liquid pesticides will land on the leaf and stay there. As the plant grows, the pesticide will travel with the leaf, farther from the whirl area.

As the corn matures to the silk stage, the larvae move to the stalk and tunnel. Then they pupate in mid-July and the next generation of adults emerge later in the month.

"This time the females are attracted to the silks to lay their eggs," Calvin said. "80 to 90 percent of the eggs are laid on the first two to three leaves around the ear, other than the ear leaf."

When a farmer sees eggs he should immediately apply pesticide because once the larvae hatch, they go to the ear, where they're protected. Calvin reported that the second-generation larvae hatch three to four days after the eggs were laid.

Second-generation corn borers are more difficult to destroy than first generation. This is mostly because they are more protected by

HARDY OUTSIDE WOOD FURNACE HEATS YOUR HOME AND YOUR HOT WATER

* FURNACE SITS OUTSIDE - 10'-100' from home/business/barn. Removes fire danger.
* CLEAN - No ashes, dust smoke, trash inside.
* CONVENIENT - Load every 10-12 hours. Burns logs up to 16" in diameter. Stops most log splitting.
* THERMOSTAT CONTROLLED - Even heat.
* EASILY CONNECTS to forced Air/Hot Water System. Needs no chimney or water heater. Heats domestic hot water year round. Warm months of the year firing every 6 to 10 days.
* DAIRY FARMERS - BIG savings for you on hot water costs at barn.

Crops Day Held In Lancaster County

the ear and the stalk, where they do a lot of tunneling, which restricts water and nutrient flow within the plant.

Crop rotation isn't an alternative method of control for the corn borer, which can fly, unlike the root worm. "Tilling the stalks under will eliminate some of the population, but unless everyone in the neighborhood does the same, it won't mean much," stated Calvin. "The corn borer can fly for several miles."

Corn production also depends on factors such as seed quality, tillage, and planting. Seed size has no effect on emergence or seedling vigor, according to Dr. Joseph McGahen, Penn State agronomist. It may, however, be a problem to plant depending on a planter's capabilities.

Seed inbreeding doesn't occur very often due to the precautions taken by manufacturers. "Manufacturers remove the tassels on female rows to prevent cross breeding. They also insure against it by taking a small amount of seed and growing it out in a trial," McGahen said. "Manufacturers almost guarantee good-quality seed."

Over-tilling land, making it too fine, makes it harder for plants to come up because they have to break through the crust that forms. "Good seed to soil contact is necessary to get good seed emergence," McGahen stressed.

Planting should occur when the soil is 55 degrees or warmer, and the seed should be placed where there is moisture in the soil. "If there is not good soil to seed contact, moisture won't get into the seed," McGahen explained. "If you plant shallow and no moisture is there, the plant won't germinate unless it rains. Look at soil moisture to figure out the depth of planting. You can go down 2- to 2½ -inches in a dry period."

The seed depth on planters should be changed with each different type of tillage. For instance the seed depth for conventional tillage will be shallower than for no-till, where the seed must compete with trash.

Triazine-resistant weeds

Lancaster County has a problem with triazine-resistant weeds, John Yocum, told farmers. Senior research agronomist for Penn State's Research Farm, Yocum said, "The resistant species develop after repeated exposure to herbicides. They develop in no-till first, where triazine is used."

According to Yocum, because of the costs involved in controlling the weed, farmers may have to learn with triazine-resistant weeds. This will mean a loss of flexibility in tillage options.

Soybeans are a crop being planted more and more frequently. Dr. Elwood Hatley, extension agronomist gave farmers several tips for raising soybeans:

•Seeds should be planted 1 to 1½ inches deep, with a seeding rate of 150,000 plants per acre.

•Planting below 100,000 plants per acre will cause a drop in overall yield.

•One reason for planting many plants in narrow rows is that it causes the pods to be higher. The lower the pod, the harder it is to control weeds.

•The seeding date is the same as corn. The response to delayed planting isn't as dramatic in bushels per acre. The plants all will flower at the same time; flowering is keyed by the amount of daylight.

•Complete ground cover should be achieved by June 21, the longest day in the year.

First Cattle Industry Convention In Maryland

HAGERSTOWN, MD — Preparations are under way for the first-ever Maryland Cattle Industry Convention and Trade Show, scheduled March 25 and 26 in the Sheraton Inn at Hagerstown.

The trade show part of the event will open at 1:30 p.m. on Friday, March 25. Educational sessions will begin at 2:30 p.m., with guest speakers from the beef cattle industry and the University of Maryland.

This will be followed by an evening of entertainment. A social hour and prime rib dinner are planned. Dr. Guy W. Logsdon of Tulsa, Okla., will entertain guests with "Songs and Poetry of the American Cowboy." Logsdon is a professor of teacher education at the University of Tulsa, specializing in American folklife, with emphasis on Great Plains culture and folk music.

More educational sessions are set for Saturday. Commercial exhibits will be in place throughout the convention.

Jo Ann Smith, a Florida beef cattle producer, will be the Saturday luncheon speaker. Mrs. Smith is current chairman of the Beef Promotion and Research Board and past president of the National Cattlemen's Association. She is the first woman to hold either position.

Scott M. Barao, livestock specialist from the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service, encourages every interested person to attend.

"It is only through the support and cooperation of all -- the Maryland beef cattle breed associations, the Maryland Cattlemen's Association, the Beef Council and the Department of Animal Sciences at the University of Maryland -- that this convention can be a real success," he declared.

Persons wanting further information about the convention may contact Dr. Barao by calling (301) 454-1513, or by writing to him at the Department of Animal Sciences, The University of Maryland, College Park, Md. 20742. County offices of the Cooperative Extension Service throughout the state also have registration materials. Deadline for advance registration is March 4. The $15 advance registration fee includes three meals and a social hour. Late registration will be $35 per person.

March 20 Is National Agriculture Day

WASHINGTON, D.C. — What is new about Ag Day 1988? A fine arts poster, the first of a continuing series reproduced from a specially commissioned oil painting, a Capitol Hill display to attract the attention of urban legislators and an all-out effort to involve every sector of agriculture across the country, are exciting features of Ag Day '88.

"These new features," says Robin Bird, J I CASE representative on the ACA board and chairperson of the Ag Day National Steering Committee, "should encourage more and more people and organizations to get involved. The greater participation we have, the greater will be our ability to get the consumer's attention and reach urban audiences with the facts about agriculture."

National Agriculture Day has been celebrated since 1973 by communities and organizations throughout the nation. It is officially recognized by the U.S. Congress, the President, and most governors. The Secretary of Agriculture has served as honorary chairman since 1981 and Secretary Lyng has agreed to serve in that capacity for the 1988 observance.

As national coordinator, the Agriculture Council of America Education Foundation produces the Ag Day poster and other printed materials, and assists groups throughout the country with ideas for promoting and conducting Ag Day activities locally.

"Ag Day is celebrated primarily at the local level," Robin Bird pointed out. "ACA's role is to complement the groups that celebrate Ag Day, encourage the ones that don't, and promote it on a national level."

Since 1980, Agriculture Day has been coordinated nationally by the ACA Education Foundation, building on work during the 1970's of the Agriculture Day Foundation, the National Agri-Marketing Association, the American National Cattlewomen's Association and a number of cooperatives and agribusiness firms that remain active supporters today.

AG DAY 1988 FINE ARTS POSTER SERIES

Bart Forbes, nationally known artist and the designated artist of the 1988 Olympics, was commissioned to do an original oil painting which will be reproduced as part of the Agriculture Day poster for 1988.

Carrying the theme: "NATIONAL AGRICULTURE DAY...Honoring America's Providers," this year's poster is the first in an annual series of fine arts posters designed by nationally known artists which will make up the "National Ag Day Collection." Each year a new artist and theme will be selected.

The poster can accommodate the logo of an Ag Day sponsor upon request. Organizations wanting further information about how they can have their logo printed on the Ag Day poster should contact the ACA offices directly.

THE CAPITOL HILL DISPLAY OF 1988

Designed to attract the attention of all legislators, but especially those representing urban Amercia, a large-scale reproduction of the National Agriculture Day painting will be the focus of a display on Capitol Hill.

To demonstrate solidarity in the agricultural community and the diversity of the industry, flanking each side of reproduction will be wall-sized boards listing in large print the names of individuals and organizations that make up the food and fiber industry. Letters are being sent to individuals, businesses and organizations throughout the country requesting their participation. Those who haven't received information and would like to be included in the display, should contact the ACA offices for further information.

This is a unique opportunity to join with others throughout the country in getting agriculture's messages across to the nation. All are urged to participate.

A National Ag Day Steering Committee is being formed to establish liaison with the many organizations who traditionally participate in Ag Day activities.

To increase the flow of information about Ag Day activities, ACA is producing an AG DAY BROCHURE with ideas about activities and promotion, and an AG DAY NEWSLETTER to highlight outstanding events in various communities across the nation, to list ideas, and feature articles. Send Ag Day activity write-ups and information to ACA.

AD SLICKS, as in previous years, will be made available to farm publications and others who can use them in newsletters.

SUPPORT MATERIALS will be produced for use throughout the year. These include an AG FACTBOOK and I.Q. QUIZZES on nutrition, history and trade.

Materials will be available in January.

New Soil-Saving Provisions Added To Conservation Reserve

LEESPORT — Cultivated farmland next to streams causes water turbidity and sediment downstream. To reduce topsoil runoff from land adjacent to streams, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) added Vegetative Filter Strips as a new eligible provision for the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), a voluntary program designed to give farmers a chance to retire land, yet earn annual payments from the USDA. Other CRP provision requirements do not apply when determining Vegetative Filter Strip criteria.

Vegetative Filter Strips must be adjacent and parallel to streams that flow permanently throughout the year or part of the year and meet Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) cropping history requirements (cropped two years, 1981 to 1985). Also, land next to a lake or wetland area, with at least five surface acres, may be eligible. This new provision allows farmers to use the CRP as a cost-effective way in controlling waterway pollution.

Vegetative Filter Strips are no wider than from 66 to 99 feet, beginning at the cropland boundary. By preventing soil erosion, these strips will improve stream water quality for fish, improving not only habitat, but will eventually increase fish quantities.

Valuable wildlife habitat will be created and songbird and waterfowl nesting areas will be significantly enhanced. Mallard ducks, black ducks, Canada geese and others like to nest in vegetated areas adjacent to waterways.

Under the CRP, farmers enter into contracts to retire eligible cropland for 10 years. In return, USDA makes annual payments and shares half the cost of establishing Vegetative Filter Strips.

Dairy Research Update

FERMENTABLE FIBER

Is Critical To Development Of Super-Energy

"MAXI-TECH 32 F.F."

Dairymen know a higher level of energy maintains higher milk production. However, proper forage intake is critical, therefore the amount of grain must be limited. Use of high energy fat (250% more energy than grain) has been limited by the fat-fiber reaction in the rumen. Therefore, Dairy Cows Limiting Factor Continues To Be Energy.

MAXI-TECH 32 F.F. works in four new ways to Increase Your Cows Energy Digestion:

1. Purina Mills Technology Made It Possible to Create An Extreme Density Of Super-Energy Animal Fat In Maxi-Tech 32 F.F.
2. Maxi-Tech 32 F.F. Has Twice the Fiber Found in Average Supplements. This Fiber Allows More Fat To Be Consumed Without Creating A Fat-Fiber Imbalance.
3. Fermentable Fiber Is Digestible, So The F.F. Component Of The Maxi-Tech 32 F.F. Is Converted Into More Additional Energy.
4. Fermentable Fiber Also Creates A More Favorable Environment For Essential Rumen Bacteria, Therefore The Entire Diet (Not Just The Maxi-Tech 32 F.F.) Is Utilized More Efficiently!
